The State House is the center of Maryland government. Three hundred years ago, in February 1694/95, that center, the capital, moved from St. Mary's City to Anne Arundel Town, now Annapolis. A bitter winter gripped the land, when the records of government were transported. "Lyeing so thick dead up & down the Country," swine, cattle, and horses were "dyeing dayly in great Numbers by means of the extremity of Weather & want of food . . ." (Archives of Maryland, XX: 191-192). Packed in hide bags, secured by cordage, the records were conveyed by boat across the Patuxent River and by horseback to the new capital.

FOREWORD

With limited staff, the Maryland Manual traces the origins, functions, and key personnel of State government agencies over time. To facilitate the annual review of the State budget, the same staff outlines the organizational structure of agencies through the Organization of Maryland State Government, prepared each summer for the Department of Budget and Fiscal Planning. Such basic information about local government offices, though necessary for their effective functioning, is not readily accessible.

The Maryland Manual provides a means for analyzing and evaluating State government. But the functions and budget of State government daily enmesh with those of local government. Thus, to understand and administer State government requires a base from which to learn more about local jurisdictions. A Maryland Manual volume on local government could constitute that essential base if funding were available.

Government, over time, creates community resources. They are evident in the organizational charts of local government introduced in this new Maryland Manual. They include institutions, such as schools and libraries; and facilities, such as parks and senior citizen information and assistance centers. These shared resources took much work and many years to create. As public investments, they are our strength. As public resources placed in the service of the community or nation, they should be noted for their excellence. In its own way, the Maryland Manual is such a resource.

Although we cannot predict how community resources will be used, we do know, from our experience, that they will be needed. In anticipation of that need, this year, the Manual takes another form. The Maryland Manual, 1994-1995 is the first edition to be created and, soon, to be made available in a totally electronic format. This means that not only the text but also the digital image files created in-house will enable us to provide electronic access to the Manual's content. The Manual also will become available to Marylanders through computers via modems in their homes, libraries, or schools by means of the computer network—"Sailor"—assembled over the last year by the Division of Library Development and Services in the State Department of Education. With a new electronic Maryland Manual soon to be available, Maryland government information may travel easily through computers, via modems and compact disks to schools and libraries in Baltimore City, Western Maryland, the Eastern Shore, and every part of this State.

A resource tool like this may be used in unanticipated ways as well. For example, in addition to the direct value of the information presented to Marylanders in each edition, the Manual has been used overseas to illustrate the nature of Maryland government. In April 1994, Clarke R. Williams, a budget analyst with the Department of Budget and Fiscal Planning was chosen for a technical assistance mission to the Union of South Africa. There, the United States Agency for International Development sponsored management training for South African state and local government officials. During this two-week program, Mr. Williams helped explain the executive budget process. He distributed Maryland Manuals to the participants so they could relate the functions of government to fiscal administration.

Information is a public resource. But information created today and stored in electronic formats is highly fragile. We need to pay close attention to how it is maintained and managed, and provide for its conservation and preservation. This applies not only to daily information processing but to those records of government which have historical, legal, fiscal, administrative or other archival values. We need to ensure that permanently valuable records, including electronic records, are preserved and made accessible. If that information is to survive beyond this century—to become the resource upon which future generations will draw—we need to act now and allocate funds wisely for this purpose.

The State Archives, by law, is responsible for preserving and making accessible those records of government which have permanent value. In other words, we are charged with maintaining a public resource—the memory of government—for the benefit of this and coming generations. To preserve the historical record, the State Archives has no choice but to engage in the electronic world of information technology. We must ensure that machine-readable records will indeed be readable in the future.

Commissioner of Land Patents

PREFACE

The Maryland Manual, 1994-1995 highlights the General Assembly. As well as providing new legislative material, this Manual also better defines the Executive and Judicial Branches of State government and offers new data on local and federal agencies in Maryland.

In the Legislative Branch section, for the first time, the Manual begins to set forth the institutional history and structure of the State Senate (p. 51) and the House of Delegates (p. 71), and their standing committees. New legislative election districts also are noted (p. 123).

New to this edition are retrospective budget and personnel summaries covering the past three years for State government agencies. Under each Constitutional officer and the Secretary of each principal executive Department are named the many boards and commissions on which they are required to serve by virtue of their office. Also in the Executive Branch, thanks to Ann J. Baker, this Manual includes expanded histories of the Department of Juvenile Services (p. 374), and the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services (p. 443).

For the Judicial Branch, historical background has been added on the courts, and new sections cover the Conference of Circuit Judges, the District Court Administrative Judges Committee, and committees of the Maryland Judicial Conference (p. 607).

When considering Maryland government, we generally think of State government and, indeed, most of this book describes the State level of government. Yet, Maryland government is the interaction of federal, State and local governments. In many areas of concern—education, health, and transportation, for example—public policy decisions are made at all three levels of government and daily affect each of us. To understand State government we need to know its relation to federal and local governments.

Federal agencies are found not just within the District of Columbia, but in Maryland as well. For this reason, the Maryland Manual, 1994-1995 encompasses more federal offices in the section on Maryland and the Federal Government. These include the U.S. Bankruptcy Court, U.S. Magistrate Judges, and the U.S. Marshal for the District of Maryland (p. 803). Added also is a listing, by county, of Federal Agencies in Maryland (p. 805) on which Ray F. Lynch labored, and a description of new Congressional election districts (p. 796).

This Manual edition defines key elements of local government. For the governments of each county and Baltimore City, organizational charts now appear along with budget and personnel summaries for the past three years and personnel, addresses, and phones for Administrative Offices, Community Services, Education, Elections, Health, Judicial Offices, Legal Offices, Liquor Licensing, Planning, and Public Safety (p. 675). Text notes whether officials or boards are elected or appointed and to whom they are accountable. The organizational charts, introduced with this edition, highlight four key areas of local government: administration; community resources; land use and environment; and public safety. Regardless of organizational structure, these areas of responsibility are common to each county and Baltimore City. The improved text on local government is the work of Elizabeth W. Newell and Patricia S. Shaffer.

In State government, we are grateful for the assistance of John R. Stierhoff, Counsel to the President of the Senate, in making this Manual possible. We also thank those agencies and conscientious public servants who shared their knowledge and insight for this edition: Patricia E. Joyce, Penny MacAdams, and Jennifer Mayhew of the Governor's Appointments Office; the staff of the Speaker of the House of Delegates; Lynda C. Davis, Department of Legislative Reference; the Department of Fiscal Services; Anna Sakers and Ginger Lambros, General Assembly Mail Room; Alexander L. Cummings, Clerk of the Court of Appeals; Leslie D. Gradet, Clerk of the Court of Special Appeals; Betty L. Thompson of the District Court of Maryland; Roxanne P. McKagan, Administrative Office of the Courts; John J. Pirro, Jr., Department of Budget and Fiscal Planning; Steve Cassard, Department of General Services; Michael T. Borkowski, State Administrative Board of Election Laws; and Michel A. Lettre, Office of Planning.

At the State Archives, we appreciate the guidance of State Archivist Edward C. Papenfuse and the help we received from Lynne MacAdam; Donna R. Hill; Diane Elizabeth (Betsy) Steele; Shirley A. Bodziak; Teresa M. Fountain; James S. Heffelfinger; Oscar J. Dufrene; Shashi P. Thapar; James T. Bricker; Theresa Boston; Wilder F. Stewart; and Cecelia C. Smith. Special thanks also go to David M. Williams.

MARYLAND AT A GLANCE

NAME

Maryland's name honors Queen Henrietta Maria (1609-1666), wife of Charles I of England (1600-1649) and daughter of Henry IV of France (1553-1610). Of nine children born to the Queen, three died in infancy, and two later assumed the throne. In 1644, Henrietta Maria left England for France. Her husband was executed in 1649. Her son, Charles II, ruled Great Britain and Ireland from 1667 to 1685, followed by her son James II from 1685 to 1688.

STATE CAPITAL

Annapolis is the State capital but St. Mary's City was the first seat of colonial government. In 1694, the General Assembly designated Anne Arundel Town as the capital and, in February 1694/5, the government moved there. After Queen Mary's death in December 1694, Anne Arundel Town was renamed Annapolis for her sister, the heiress apparent, Princess Anne.

STATEHOOD

Maryland, on April 28, 1788, became the seventh state to ratify the federal Constitution.

GOVERNMENT

Executive. The Governor, elected by popular vote for a four-year term, is the chief executive of the State. Fifteen cabinet-level executive departments oversee most State agencies.

Legislative. The General Assembly, Maryland's bi-cameral legislature, consists of a 47-member Senate and a 141-member House of Delegates. As of January 1994, the Senate has 38 Democrats and 9 Republicans; the House of Delegates includes 116 Democrats and 25 Republicans. Annually, the General Assembly convenes to enact laws on the second Wednesday in January for a 90-day session.

Judicial. The Judiciary consists of four court divisions: the Court of Appeals, the Court of Special Appeals, the Circuit Courts, and the District Court of Maryland.

Local. Of the 50 states, Maryland is among those with the fewest number of local governments. Local government exists in Maryland's 23 counties, 154 municipal corporations (including Baltimore City), and special taxing districts.

SEAFOOD PRODUCTION

Maryland is a prominent producer and processor of seafood and a national leader in the production of blue crabs and soft clams. In 1992, dockside value of Maryland seafood products totaled about $32 million, which in turn created over $372 million in value-added products and provided jobs for 14,000 people.

For every on-farm job, 10 farm-dependent jobs were created. Gross farm income for Maryland totaled a record high of $1.58 billion in 1992.

AQUACULTURE

Aquaculture, or fish farming, is a significant industry in Maryland. The wholesale value of aquacultural products grown in the State totaled nearly $12.8 million in 1992. Aquaculture produces a variety of finfish, shellfish, and aquatic specialties. "Growouts," young fish (fingerlings) grown to marketable size, are the major type of aquaculture, but fingerling or seed production (young grown to feeding size) and hatcheries are also important.

MARYLAND'S ECONOMY, 1982—1992

The services sector, with 30% of the total, is the largest employer in Maryland, followed by retail trades and government. From 1982 to 1992, Maryland's service industry grew at a rate of 75%, five times faster than other industries. This sector consists mainly of establishments such as computer firms, hotels, auto repair shops, janitorial services, and hospitals which provide services to individuals, businesses, and government. The largest concentration of service industries is found in Montgomery County, where in 1992, some 36.1% of the work force is employed in services.

Federal, State and local governments employed 394,232 in 1992 (19.3%). The State and local government workforce was 259,943, a decline from 281,174 in 1990. Maryland now ranks 45th among states in the number of government employees per 100,000 residents, down from 18th a decade ago. The 85,644 State employees comprise about 21.7% of the total government workforce.

By 1992, manufacturing ranked 4th after services, trade, and government, with 9% of total employment.

The largest concentration in Maryland is found in Dorchester County, where manufacturing employs 38.5% of the workforce and constitutes 41.9% of the payroll. Concentrated in Anne Arundel County, manufacture of search and navigation equipment accounted for 30% of high tech manufacturing.

In 1992, Maryland became a part of a federally designated Consolidated Metropolitan Statistical Area (CMSA). Using commuting patterns, development, and other criteria, the U.S. Office of Management and Budget merged the Baltimore and Washington areas, a region with 6.7 million people, into a single economic market creating the fourth largest economic market in the nation, after New York, Los Angeles, and Chicago. The Area stretches from the Eastern Shore to the Shenandoah Valley and from the Pennsylvania line to the suburbs of Richmond.

Scientific and technological research leading to product development plays an increasing role in the State's economy. Federal agencies located in Maryland such as the National Institutes of Health, National Institute of Standards and Technology, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Goddard Space Flight Center, and Department of Defense operations have been a catalyst for the State's technology base. Advanced technology enterprise is especially strong in telecommunications, computer sciences, and biotechnology. New research parks facilitate joint research among universities, State and federal government institutions, and private industry. These parks include: The Johns Hopkins Bayview Research Campus in Baltimore (life sciences research); Shady Grove Life Sciences Center in Montgomery County (biomedical and life sciences research); and University of Maryland Science and Technology Center in Prince George's County, future site of the federal Defense Department's Supercomputer Research Center (hub of U.S. efforts to build a fifth-generation computer). Also significant are the Applied Physics Laboratory in Columbia and the Space Telescope Science Institute in Baltimore, both affiliated with The Johns Hopkins University.

PORT OF BALTIMORE

The Port of Baltimore has a vital role in Maryland's economic development, generating almost $1.8 billion in economic benefits and thousands of jobs. Closer to the Midwest than any other East Coast port, and within an overnight drive of one-third of the nation's population, the Port serves over 60 ocean carriers making nearly 2,500 annual port visits. The Port's container capacity increased by 50% with the opening of the new Seagirt Marine Terminal, a 260-acre center for automated cargo handling. General cargo moving through the State's five marine terminals in 1993 increased to 5,423,471 short tons, up 5.4 percent from 1992.

In 1993, Baltimore benefited from new South American services started by Maersk Line and Zim Israel Navigation Company. Among the Port's other steamship line additions was the new weekly joint service to the Mediterranean, Middle East, and Indian subcontinent by Maersk, P&O Containers, and Sea-Land. In December 1993, China Ocean Shipping Company (COSCO) announced its plans to call at Baltimore with its new containerized service to and from the Far East.

Chief Exports: coal, corn, soybeans, lignite and coal coke, and petroleum, fuel oils, and asphalt. The Port leads the nation in overseas exports of automobiles and trucks. The World Trade Center—Baltimore, headquarters for the Port, serves as the center of international commerce for the region, housing the U.S. headquarters for several major shipping lines.

Chief Imports: Baltimore is a major port of entry for imported containerized cargo with 1,933,880 short tons moving through the Port in 1993. Baltimore also continued its growth as a major distribution center for imported wood pulp and paper. In 1993, wood pulp became the second largest general cargo commodity handled at the Port with 338,269 short tons, a 13.2 percent increase over the 1992 total of 298,746 short tons. Paper tonnage more than quadrupled to 72,941 tons in 1993, up from 17,622 short tons in 1992. Other chief imports are automobiles and small trucks, iron ore, petroleum and petroleum products, gypsum, sugar, cement, bauxite, salt, crude mineral substances, fertilizer and fertilizer materials, coal, and ferroalloys.

STATE GOVERNMENT BUDGET

STATE AIRPORTS

The State owns and operates two airports, Baltimore/Washington International (BWI) and Martin State Airport.

BWI Airport, a gateway airport for the United States, is served by 19 airlines and has 600 daily commercial flights. In 1992, BWI reported handling 8.8 million commercial passengers and 238 million pounds of air freight. The Airport offers both passenger and cargo flights to a variety of international destinations that include Reykjavik, Iceland; London and Luxembourg in Europe; Montevideo, Santiago, and Buenos Aires in South America; Tel Aviv in the Middle East; Ottawa, Montreal, and Toronto in Canada; Aruba, St. Maarten, St. Thomas, and Jamaica in the Caribbean.

In 1993, BWI became the first east coast airport home of Southwest Airlines. In 1993, two international carriers, Air Aruba and British Airways, also began service. In 1994, the airport will undergo a $16.3 million enhancement program, including the addition of carpeting, lighting, a Baltimore-Washington regional photo mural, interior and exterior landscaping and an observation area. An extension of one of the two major jet runways also will be completed. The State also has proposed the construction of a new $130 million international wing at BWI, featuring a light rail terminal in the Airport, to be completed in 1996.

Martin State Airport is the largest general aviation facility on the East Coast. Handling primarily private and corporate aircraft, Martin is also the main base for Maryland's two air National Guard Squadrons; the Maryland State Police Aviation Division (MED-EVAC); the Baltimore City Police Helicopter Unit; and the Baltimore County Police Marine Division.

HIGHWAYS

The National Road, begun in Cumberland in 1806, was the nation's chief route west for many years. As U.S. Route 40, it remains a principal east-west artery today. The State's highway network has over 5,200 miles of interstate, primary and secondary roads and over 2,000 bridges, designed, built, and maintained by the State Highway Administration.

The William Preston Lane, Jr. Memorial Bridge (Chesapeake Bay Bridge) spans 4.2 miles between Sandy Point, Anne Arundel County, and Kent Island, Queen Anne's County. Opened in 1952, it transformed access to the eastern shore of the State. A second parallel Bay Bridge opened in 1973. Beltways encircle Baltimore and Washington with connections to the major routes between the cities. The Baltimore Harbor Tunnel opened in 1957, providing the first direct link north and south under the Harbor for vehicles bypassing Baltimore City. The Harbor Tunnel was followed by the 1.6-mile long Francis Scott Key Bridge over the Harbor in 1977 and the Fort McHenry Tunnel in 1985.

Most Maryland highways are open to all travelers without fee. Tolls are required, however, at the John F. Kennedy Highway (Interstate 95) at Perryville; the Harbor and Fort McHenry tunnels; the Francis Scott Key Bridge; the Thomas I. Hatem Bridge (U.S. 40) at Perryville; the Chesapeake Bay Bridges (for eastbound traffic only) outside Annapolis in Anne Arundel County; and the Governor Harry W. Nice Bridge in Charles County. The maximum speed limit anywhere in the State is 55 miles per hour.

PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION

Bus. Bus transportation is provided by the Mass Transit Administration (MTA), the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA) and local buses. The MTA operates statewide commuter bus routes linking metropolitan areas, funds general bus transportation for elderly and disabled persons on a statewide basis, and supports local public transportation funding in many counties and small cities. Under its state-wide commuter bus program, the MTA provides eight privately contracted services from Crofton, Annapolis, Columbia, Frederick, Hagerstown, Huntingtown, North Beach, Charlotte Hall, and Waldorf to Washington DC. The MTA also operates over 62 bus routes in the Baltimore area. With suburban service operating from Annapolis, White Marsh, Columbia, Bel Air, Havre de Grace and Laurel to downtown Baltimore, 850 buses serve more than 250,000 passengers daily. Services for passengers with disabilities include regularly scheduled lift-equipped service; Call-A-Lift service for passengers on bus routes without scheduled accessible buses; and Mobility, a van and taxi service for passengers unable to use regular MTA buses. In winter months, the MTA operates a Shelter Shuttle which picks up homeless individuals and families and transports them to city-run shelters seven nights a week. In Montgomery and Prince George's counties, bus transportation is provided by WMATA's Metrobus system, Montgomery County's "Ride-On" service, and Prince George's County's service called "The Bus."

Subway. Subways operate in the Baltimore and Washington, DC, areas. The Baltimore Metro, operated by the Mass Transit Administration, runs 14 miles from Owings Mills to Charles Center in Baltimore City, carrying 40,000 passengers per day. A northeast extension to Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore City is scheduled to open in 1995. Commuters between Washington, DC, and the Maryland suburbs are served by *Metro*rail, operated by the Washington Metropolitan Transit Authority and financially supported by the Maryland Department of Transportation. Metro rail has 70 miles in operation, with 22 stations in Montgomery and Prince George's counties.

Light Rail. The main leg of the first light rail line in Maryland, with electric-powered trains that run mostly on existing railroad rights-of-way, began service between Timonium and Camden Station on May 18, 1992. Called the Central Corridor Light Rail Line, it is operated by the Mass Transit Administration. Additional stops were added in 1992 at Patapsco Avenue and, in 1993, at Linthicum and Cromwell stations. Eventually, it will link the region from Hunt Valley north of Baltimore, through Baltimore City, to Baltimore/Washington International (BWI) Airport and Glen Burnie in Anne Arundel County.

Railroad. The State currently runs three commuter train lines. Two Baltimore-Washington lines and a Martinsburg, WV—Brunswick-Washington line form the Maryland Rail Commuter Service (MARC), carrying nearly 19,000 passengers each weekday. Service also operates north of Baltimore on the northeast corridor into Harford and southern Cecil counties with these trains terminating at Perryville. The Mass Transit Administration contracts out operations for four freight lines on Maryland's Eastern Shore and two through Frederick and Carroll counties, covering over 100 miles. Additional train service is provided by Amtrak (passengers) and CSX Transportation (freight). Offhistorical note, the Baltimore and Ohio (B & O) Railroad Company was chartered by the General Assembly in 1827 to construct a transportation link to the west, establishing the nation's first long-distance railway.

EDUCATION

Elementary and Secondary Education. Public education in Maryland is a shared responsibility between State government and the local governments of Maryland's 23 counties and Baltimore City. The State Board of Education sets minimum educational standards, certifies teachers, provides some State funds for school construction and instruction, and monitors individual school performance. County boards of education often establish requirements beyond the State minimums, develop new programs, and provide substantial funding. Maryland ranks 11th in the nation with an average per pupil expenditure of $5,823 in 1992. In the 1992-93 school year for prekindergarten through high school, 751,780 students were enrolled in 1,270 public schools; 148,714 students were enrolled at 985 private schools.

Public high schools graduated 36,347 students in 1993. Those intending to continue their education: 77% (74.2% in a college or university and 2.8% in a trade or business school); to work: 28.8%; and to enter military service: 4.2%. Maryland students consistently excel on national tests. With 66% of high school seniors participating, Maryland ranks 2nd in the nation on Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores among states where more than half the students take the test. On Advanced Placement (AP) exams, 72% of Maryland students received scores required for college credit.

Public School Special Programs. In the 1992-93 school year, some 88,480 students with disabilities received special education services to facilitate learning. Services range from assistance for part or all of a regular school day, to specialized services for students in separate facilities, hospitals, or homebound programs. Prekindergarten programs served 16,082 four-year olds; 131,759 students participated in vocational-technical educational programs. Gifted and talented programs were conducted by the State, on a tuition basis, at 13 summer centers for 2,000 students who qualified academically, met geographical distribution requirements, and were able to meet the cost. In correctional institutions, 2,489 inmates completed educational programs: 888 earned literacy certifications; 677 received high school diplomas; 1,565 completed vocational programs; and 96 received postsecondary degrees in 1993.

Public School Resources. An interactive computer network soon will link the State's more than 200 high schools and 56 colleges via fiber-optic cable. The network, called "Advantage: Maryland," is unique in the United States. Maryland students can draw upon the cultural resources of not only Annapolis and Baltimore but also those of the nation's capital, Washington, DC.

Higher Education. Maryland has a three-part system of public higher education that consists of 18 community colleges; 2 four-year colleges and universities (St. Mary's College of Maryland, a liberal arts institution, and Morgan State University); and 11 campuses of the University of Maryland System.

Among independent postsecondary institutions are 4 two-year colleges; 22 four-year colleges and universities; and approximately 206 proprietary schools. The U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis is a federal institution. Postgraduate professional degree programs are offered in medicine by the University of Maryland at Baltimore and The Johns Hopkins University; in dentistry by the University of Maryland at Baltimore; and in law by the University of Maryland at Baltimore and the University of Baltimore.

Some 268,560 students, in 1992, continued their education in undergraduate and graduate postsecondary academic programs in the State. Of these, public community colleges, four-year colleges and universities enrolled 228,022 students. State residents made up 89.1% of 201,072 undergraduates and 67.4% of 26,950 graduate students. Private colleges and universities enrolled another 40,538 students: 24,012 undergraduates (57.9% from Maryland); and 16,526 graduate students (71.2% from Maryland).

University of Maryland System encompasses eleven campuses: University of Maryland at Baltimore; University of Maryland College Park; Bowie State University; Towson State University; University of Maryland Eastern Shore; Frostburg State University; Coppin State College; Salisbury State University; University of Baltimore; University of Maryland University College; and University of Maryland Baltimore County, with University of Maryland College Park designated the "flagship" institution for the System. In addition, the System includes three major research and educational components: the Maryland Institute for Agriculture and Natural Resources, the Center for Environmental and Estuarine Studies, and the Maryland Biotechnology Institute.

LIBRARIES & ARCHIVES

Libraries, 1992. Twenty-four public library systems, one in each county and Baltimore City, include 190 public libraries and 18 bookmobiles, with total collections of 12.5 million items. School library media centers are located in 1,187 elementary, middle and secondary schools, with total collections of over 11.8 million items. Sixty-three college and university libraries have collections numbering 12.4 million items.

The Maryland State Library Network serves over 400 libraries throughout the State, primarily through interlibrary loan of materials and information. The Network is composed of the State Library Resource Center (Enoch Pratt Free Library, Central Building in Baltimore City); three Regional Library Resource Centers (Eastern Shore, Southern Maryland, Western Maryland); four academic libraries that lend specialized materials and information; and more than 125 libraries that fill interlibrary loan requests from their collections. Libraries and their users locate needed items through the statewide union catalog, MICROCAT/ULPM, which describes holdings of 100 libraries on microfiche and in electronic formats.

Maryland residents may register with and borrow materials from any public library in the State. Information and materials found through the Network may be transferred electronically, sent by delivery truck, or mailed to the local library. The public checked out over 47.5 million items in 1992.

Archives and Special Libraries. Maryland records of State and local government, dating from 1634 to the 1990s, are housed at the State Archives in the new Hall of Records building at Annapolis. The State Archives also holds special collections of maps, newspapers, photographs, State publications and reports, business records, records of religious bodies, and private papers. Many federal government records will be found at the National Archives at College Park, Maryland. The College Park facility, known as Archives II, is scheduled to open in May 1994. Special libraries of note include Enoch Pratt Free Library, and the Johns Hopkins University Libraries, Baltimore; the State Law Library, and Nimitz Library of the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis; National Library of Medicine, Bethesda; University of Maryland Libraries, College Park; the Libraries of the National Institute of Justice, and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, Rockville; and U.S. Bureau of the Census Library, Suitland.

Maryland medical institutions have been recognized as vital contributors to medical research and discovery since the College of Medicine (now part of the University of Maryland System) was chartered in 1807 and pioneered in preventive medicine. As early as 1853, a researcher at that institution advanced the diagnosis of cancer by identifying malignant cells with a microscope. The Johns Hopkins Hospital, founded in 1889, has revolutionized medical education. Physicians there opened the first school of public health; standardized surgical techniques for specific procedures; initiated the use of rubber gloves and nerve-blocking anesthesia; discovered vitamins A, B, and D; and, more recently, catalogued genetic traits. University Hospital in Baltimore opened the nation's first shock trauma unit in 1961. The Shock Trauma Center has developed lifesaving methods of trauma management; it remains in the forefront as the hub of the State's emergency medical services system, admitting over 3,000 critically injured or ill patients per year. The Johns Hopkins Children's Center, opened in 1964, serves as the regional shock trauma center for children, developing equipment and diagnostic and treatment techniques specialized for their emergency care.

The National Institutes of Health in Bethesda carry on this innovative research tradition, as does the National Cancer Institute's Laboratory of Tumor Cell Biology in Bethesda where trailblazing AIDS research is underway.

Maryland also is the site of the world's first institution of dental education, the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, which opened in Baltimore in 1840. The College is now the School of Dentistry at the University of Maryland at Baltimore.

The Maryland Medical Care Programs enable persons below certain income levels to receive medically necessary services through enrollment in Medical Assistance and Pharmacy Assistance, which reimburse participating health care professionals and facilities. In 1992, the Medical Assistance Program (Medicaid), funded jointly by the State and federal governments, averaged monthly enrollments of 429,334 persons, or 8.9% of the State's population. The State-funded Pharmacy Assistance Program averaged monthly enrollments of 16,578 persons who were not eligible for Medicaid and could not afford prescriptions and other pharmaceuticals.

THE ARTS

The arts reflect Maryland's geographic and cultural diversity from traditional Appalachian fiddle music in Western Maryland and African-American quilting on the lower Eastern Shore to experimental performance and media arts in metropolitan areas surrounding Washington, DC, and Baltimore City.

The State's cultural institutions include more than 150 privately incorporated arts organizations and 45 university, college and governmental presenters of annual arts events.

Maryland is home to important museums, including the Walters Art Gallery, the Baltimore Museum of Art, and the Ward Museum of Wildfowl Art in Salisbury. These and 30 other art museums and galleries attracted more than three million visitors in 1992. The State has 12 regional interdisciplinary arts institutions, including Easton's Academy of the Arts, the Strathmore Hall Arts Center in Rockville, Frostburg State University's new Performing Arts Center, and Maryland Hall for the Creative Arts in Annapolis. Historically a center for the performing arts, Baltimore is the site for the Baltimore Symphony, Center Stage, the Arena Players and the Baltimore Center for the Performing Arts.

More than 2,000 actors, creative writers, dancers, musicians, singers, and visual artists live in Maryland. Annual scholarship and award programs and in-school artist residencies nurture student interest in the arts, as do more than 30 schools and academies devoted to training young artists, including Baltimore's School for the Arts, the Peabody Institute of The Johns Hopkins University, and the Bethesda Academy of Performing Arts. Aggregate State, county and municipal funding for the arts totaled more than $21 million in 1992.

MARYLAND'S OFFICIAL STATE SYMBOLS

GREAT SEAL OF MARYLAND

The Great Seal of Maryland is used by the Governor and the Secretary of State to authenticate Acts of the General Assembly and for other official purposes. The first Great Seal was sent from England shortly after settlement of the colony. Except for the period of crown rule (1692-1715) when different seals were used, the first Great Seal remained in use, though slightly altered, until the Revolution. The State of Maryland then adopted a new seal similar in form and spirit to those of other states. One hundred years later, Maryland readopted its old seal (Joint Resolution no. 5, Acts of 1876). Only the reverse of this seal has ever been cut. The obverse, however, is still considered part of the seal and often adorns public buildings.

The reverse consists of an escutcheon, or shield, bearing the Calvert and Crossland arms quartered. Above is an earl's coronet and a full-faced helmet. The escutcheon is supported on one side by a farmer and on the other by a fisherman. It symbolizes Lord Baltimore's two estates: Maryland, and Avalon in Newfoundland. The Calvert motto on the scroll is "Fatti maschii parole femine," usually translated "manly deeds, womanly words." The Latin legend on the border (the last verse of Psalms 5 from the Vulgate) is translated "with favor wilt thou compass us as with a shield." The date, 1632, refers to the year the Maryland charter was granted by Charles I, King of England, to Cecilius Calvert, second Lord Baltimore.

The obverse of the Seal shows Lord Baltimore as a knight in full armor mounted on a charger. The inscription translated is "Cecilius, Absolute Lord of Maryland and Avalon, Baron of Baltimore" (Chapter 79, Acts of 1969; Code State Government Article, secs. 13-101 through 13-105).

STATE BIRD. The Baltimore Oriole (Icterus galbula) is the official Maryland bird (Chapter 54, Acts of 1947). Special provisions have been made for its protection (Chapter 154, Acts of 1882; Code State Government Article, sec. 13-302). The oriole's plumage of black and yellow, the same colors as in the Calvert shield, led to its early association with the name of the proprietor. In 1698, "Baltimore Birds" were among the "Beasts of Curriosity" ordered sent from Maryland to grace the royal gardens (Archives of Maryland 23:455-56).

STATE BOAT. The skipjack was designated the State Boat in 1985 (Chapter 788, Acts of 1985; Code State Government Article, sec. 13-312). Skipjacks, named after a leaping fish, are the last working boats under sail in the United States. In winter, they dredge oysters from the floor of Chesapeake Bay.

STATE CRUSTACEAN. In 1989, the Maryland Blue Crab (Callinectes Sapidus) was designated the State Crustacean (Chapter 724, Acts of 1989; Code State Government Article, sec. 13-301(b)).

STATE DOG. In 1964, the Chesapeake Bay Retriever was declared the official dog of Maryland (Chapter 156, Acts of 1964; Code State Government Article, sec. 13-303).

STATE FISH. The striped bass or rockfish (Roccus saxatilis 2) was designated as the official fish of the State of Maryland in 1965 (Chapter 513, Acts of 1965; Code State Government Article, sec. 13-304).

STATE FLAG. Maryland's flag bears the arms of the Calvert and Crossland families. Calvert was the family name of the Lords Baltimore who founded Maryland, and their colors of gold and black appear in the first and fourth quarters of the flag. Crossland was the family of the mother of George Calvert, first Lord Baltimore. The red and white Crossland colors, with a Greek cross terminating in the foils, appear in the second and third quarters. This flag was first flown October 11, 1880, in Baltimore at a parade marking the 150th anniversary of the founding of Baltimore. It also was flown October 25, 1888, at Gettysburg Battlefield for ceremonies dedicating monuments to Maryland regiments of the Army of the Potomac. Officially, it was adopted as the State flag in 1904 (Chapter 48, Acts of 1904). Maryland law requires that if any ornament is affixed to the top of a flagstaff carrying the Maryland flag, the ornament must be a gold cross bottony (Chapter 862, Acts of 1945; Code State Government Article, secs. 13-201 through 13-204).

STATE FLOWER. The Black-Eyed Susan (Rudbeckia hirta) has been the official Maryland flower since 1918 (Chapter 458, Acts of 1918). A yellow daisy, or coneflower, it blooms in late summer (Code State Government Article, sec. 13-305).

STATE FOSSIL SHELL. In 1984, the shell of the Ecphora quadricostata (Say), an extinct snail, was designated the State fossil shell (Chapter 313, Acts of 1984; Code State Government Article, sec. 13-311). The Ecphora inhabited Chesapeake Bay and other East Coast tidal waters 5 to 12 million years ago. An Ecphora shell found in St. Mary's County, c. 1685, was one of the first North American fossils illustrated in European scientific works.

STATE INSECT. The Baltimore Checkerspot Butterfly (Euphydryas phaeton) is the official arthropodic emblem of the State (Chapter 253, Acts of 1973; Code State Government Article, sec. 13-301(a)).

STATE SONG. The nine-stanza poem, “Maryland, My Maryland,” was written by James Ryder Randall in 1861. A native of Maryland, Randall was teaching in Louisiana in the early days of the Civil War, and he was outraged at the news of Union troops being marched through Baltimore. The poem articulated Randall’s Confederate sympathies. Set to the traditional tune of “Lauriger Horatius” (“O, Tannenbaum”), the song achieved wide popularity in Maryland and throughout the South. “Maryland, My Maryland” was adopted as the State song in 1939 (Chapter 451, Acts of 1939; Code State Government Article, sec. 13-307).

STATE SPORT. The equestrian sport of jousting is the official sport of Maryland (Chapter 134, Acts of 1962; Code State Government Article, sec. 13-308).

STATE TREE. Maryland has chosen for its tree the White Oak (Quercus alba). The magnificent specimen represented here is known as the Wye Oak, located at Wye Mills on the Eastern Shore. It is owned by the State (Chapter 731, Acts of 1941; Code State Government Article, sec. 13-310).

MARYLAND'S NICKNAMES

Maryland is known as both the Old Line State and the Free State.

Old Line State. According to some historians, Gen. George Washington bestowed the name "Old Line State" and thereby associated Maryland with its regular line troops, the Maryland Line, who served courageously in many Revolutionary War battles.

Free State. The nickname "Free State" was created by Hamilton Owens, editor of the Baltimore Sun. In 1923, Georgia Congressman William D. Upshaw, a firm supporter of Prohibition, denounced Maryland as a traitor to the Union for refusing to pass a State enforcement act. Mr. Owens thereupon wrote a mock-serious editorial entitled "The Maryland Free State," arguing that Maryland should secede from the Union rather than prohibit the sale of liquor. The irony in the editorial was subtle, and Mr. Owens decided not to print it. However, he popularized the nickname in later editorials.

POET LAUREATE OF MARYLAND

Linda Pastan, 1991—

In the 18th century, Ebenezer Cook, author of The Sot-weed Factor: Or, A Voyage to Maryland (1708), styled himself Poet Laureate. Maryland did not have an official poet, however, until 1959. In that year, the General Assembly authorized the Governor to appoint a citizen of the State as Poet Laureate of Maryland (Chapter 178, Acts of 1959; Code State Government Article, sec. 13-306). Since 1979, the incumbent has been appointed to a three-year term.

STATE THEATERS

In 1978, Center Stage in Baltimore was designated the State Theater of Maryland (Chapter 1003, Acts of 1978). By the same act Olney Theatre in Montgomery County was named the State Summer Theater of Maryland (Code State Government Article, sec. 13-309).

OVERVIEW OF MARYLAND STATE GOVERNMENT

MARYLAND GOVERNMENT

Maryland government is based on a written compact known as the Constitution of Maryland. The State has had four constitutions, each containing a declaration of rights, the State's equivalent of a bill of rights. Maryland's first constitution was adopted during the Revolutionary War in 1776, the second in 1851, and the third in 1864. The fourth and present constitution was adopted in 1867. It consists of a declaration of rights, the Constitution proper, and those amendments ratified to date.

The source of all power and authority for governing the State of Maryland lies with its citizens. The Constitution's Declaration of Rights makes clear "That all Government of right originates from the People, is founded in compact only, and is instituted solely for the good of the whole; and they have, at all times, the inalienable right to alter, reform or abolish their Form of Government in such manner as they may deem expedient." (Art. I)

While responsibility for promoting the public interest is vested in specific officers and agencies of State government, actual governing authority remains with the registered voters of Maryland. A registered voter must be eighteen years of age or older, a citizen of the United States, and a resident of Maryland thirty days prior to the date of an election.

Believing that it would be too cumbersome for all persons to participate directly in the operation of government, framers of the Constitution of 1867 followed precedent established in earlier Maryland constitutions by delegating power to elected representatives. They also continued to separate powers of government into three distinct branches—executive, legislative, and judicial—which exercise certain checks and balances on each other.

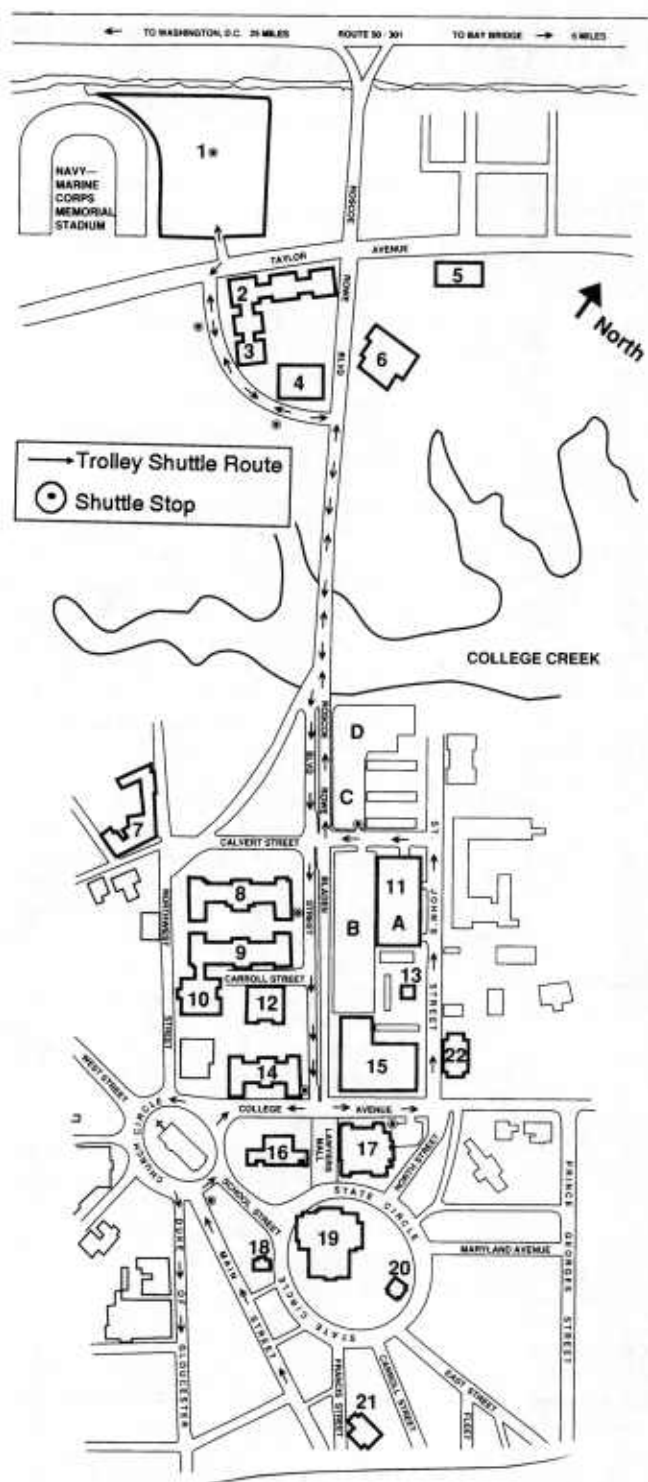

EXECUTIVE BRANCH

The Executive Branch, consisting of various constitutional and statutory officers and agencies, implements and enforces Maryland's laws and provides executive direction within a centralized administration. The chief executive officer is the Governor, elected by the voters to a four-year term each even-numbered year that is not a presidential election year. The Governor is responsible for ensuring that Maryland's laws are executed effectively; that certain appointments as provided by the Constitution or by law are made; that a budget is presented annually to the legislature; and, as commander in chief of the military, that the armed forces of the State are able to meet any emergency. The Governor may veto legislation passed by the legislature, and the Governor appoints judges to the State judiciary. The Governor is assisted by the Lieutenant Governor, who runs for election on a joint ballot with the gubernatorial candidate. Duties of the Lieutenant Governor are limited to those assigned by the Governor. The Governor and Lieutenant Governor each must be at least thirty years old and a resident and voter of Maryland for the five years immediately preceding election.

Other statewide executive officers also are provided for in the Constitution. The Comptroller of the Treasury superintends the fiscal affairs of the State. The State Treasurer accounts for all deposits and disbursements to or from the State treasury. The Secretary of State attests to the Governor's signature on all public documents and oversees all executive orders, commissions, and appointments. The Attorney General serves as legal counsel to the Governor, the legislature, and all State departments, boards, and most commissions. Each of these executive officers serves a four-year term. The voters elect the Comptroller and Attorney General. The Treasurer is selected by joint ballot of both houses of the General Assembly, and the Secretary of State is appointed by the Governor. An important agency of the executive department is the Board of Public Works, composed of the Governor, the Comptroller, and the Treasurer. The Board approves all sums expended through State loans, most capital improvements, and the sale, lease, or transfer of all real property owned by the State.

Until recently, Maryland, like most states, had experienced a steady proliferation of governmental agencies, boards, and commissions as the need for public services increased. Between 1969 and 1972, the executive branch of government was reorganized to bring agencies with related functions together under a new departmental structure. The General Assembly passed legislation creating twelve new cabinet-level departments, encompassing nearly 250 separate governmental entities. In order of their creation, the twelve departments were: Health and Mental Hygiene, Budget and Fiscal Planning, Natural Resources, State Planning, Personnel, General Services, Human Resources, Public Safety and Correctional Services, Licensing and Regulation, Economic and Community Development, Transportation, and Agriculture. The State Department of Education became a principal department in 1976, and in 1983, the Department of Employment and Training was created.

In 1987, a second major reorganization of government was enacted by the General Assembly. The Departments of Economic and Community Development and Employment and Training were abolished. Their functions were reorganized under the new Department of Economic and Employment Development, and the Department of Housing and Community Development. At the same time, the Department of the Environment was created to assume those environmental responsibilities previously overseen by the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, and the Department of Natural Resources.

The General Assembly in 1989 formed a new Department of Juvenile Services and reassigned functions of the Department of State Planning to other agencies.

Within the executive branch now are fifteen principal departments. Each, except for Education, is headed by a secretary, who serves at the pleasure of the Governor and is appointed by the Governor with Senate consent. Each secretary carries out the Governor's policies pertaining to that department and is responsible for the department's operation. The State Department of Education is headed by the State Board of Education, which appoints the State Superintendent of Schools to direct the department. Certain State agencies whose purpose or functions do not permit easy integration into one of the fifteen cabinet-level departments have remained independent, such as the State Department of Assessments and Taxation, the Public Service Commission, and the University of Maryland System. Executive departments and independent agencies are augmented by special study commissions and task forces at the discretion of the Governor.

LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

The Legislative Branch consists of the General Assembly and its supporting agencies. General Assembly is the legal name of the Maryland legislature. The General Assembly sometimes is considered the "popular" branch of government, because its members more directly represent the electorate than do officials of either the executive or judiciary. Legislators are elected to both houses of the General Assembly from districts redrawn every ten years after the federal census to ensure equal representation based on the concept of "one person, one vote." Geographical size of the districts varies according to population density.

Like all states but Nebraska, Maryland has a bicameral legislature. The lower house is the House of Delegates and the upper house is the Senate. Representatives to both houses are elected in each gubernatorial election year for four-year terms. Candidates for the House of Delegates must be at least twenty-one years of age and those for the Senate at least twenty-five. The House of Delegates consists of 141 members, while the Senate has 47 members. Both houses convene annually on the second Wednesday in January for a 90-day session. Sessions may be extended by resolution of both houses, and special sessions may be called by the Governor. The General Assembly passes all laws necessary for the welfare of the State's citizens and certain laws dealing with the counties and special taxing districts; determines how State funds are to be allocated; and adopts amendments to the State Constitution, subject to ratification by the voters. Bills may be introduced in either house, and when passed by both houses and signed by the Governor, they become law. Current laws are compiled in the Annotated Code of Maryland.

The General Assembly employs various committees—statutory, standing (or continuing), and joint—to facilitate its work during and between sessions. The legislative branch also encompasses several State agencies. The Department of Legislative Reference assists in the preparation of legislation and maintains information services essential for legislators and the public. The Department of Fiscal Services prepares financial impact statements and monitors fiscal functions for the General Assembly.

One of the single most important tasks of the General Assembly, and one that requires close coordination and consultation with the Executive Department, is adoption of the annual budget for Maryland State government. The Constitution specifies that it is the responsibility of the Governor to present the annual budget to the General Assembly within five days of the beginning of each legislative session. The budget of Maryland must not exceed anticipated revenues. This requirement prevents deficit spending and accounts in large part for the excellent bond rating enjoyed by the State. Reflecting the principle of separation of powers within State government, the Governor must incorporate into the budget unchanged requests from the legislative and judicial departments, as well as the estimated expenses required for operating the public schools. Beyond these items and other obligations for certain State debts and the salaries of officials specified in the Constitution, the Governor has considerable discretion in determining what programs and agencies to fund in the budget. The budget process thus is a major policy-shaping tool for the Governor. Supplemental budgets may be submitted by the Governor after adoption of the annual budget, but all requests for such funds must be matched by additional anticipated revenues.

JUDICIAL BRANCH

The Judicial Branch is responsible for the resolution of all matters involving civil and criminal law in the State of Maryland. Judges base their decisions on statutory law, common law, or equity. Maryland has a four-tiered court system consisting of the District Court of Maryland, Circuit Courts, the Court of Special Appeals, and the Court of Appeals.

The District Court of Maryland was created in 1971 on a statewide basis in each county and Baltimore City. As a court of limited jurisdiction, it replaced local justices of the peace and county trial magistrates. District Courts have jurisdiction in minor civil and criminal matters and in virtually all violations of the Motor Vehicle Law. District Court judges are appointed by the Governor for ten-year terms.

In each county and in Baltimore City is a Circuit Court. The Circuit Court has original jurisdiction over more serious criminal and civil cases and also hears appeals from decisions in the District Court. Circuit Court judges are nominated by special judicial selection commissions and appointed by the Governor with Senate consent. At the first statewide election occurring at least one year after their appointment, Circuit Court judges must successfully stand for election to continue in office for a term of fifteen years.

The Court of Special Appeals is the second highest court in Maryland. Like the State's highest court, the Court of Appeals is an appellate court. It was established in 1966 to ease the caseload of the Court of Appeals and to facilitate resolution of cases requiring appellate adjudication. Composed of thirteen judges, members of the Court of Special Appeals are appointed by the Governor with Senate consent for ten-year terms, subject to approval of the voters at the next election after their appointment. The Court of Special Appeals has exclusive initial appellate jurisdiction over any reviewable judgment, decree, order, or other action of a circuit court, except for appeals in criminal cases in which the death penalty is imposed.

The Court of Appeals has a long history in Maryland, dating from the seventeenth century and reformed by the first State constitution of 1776. As Maryland's highest court, the Court of Appeals reviews cases of major importance where the decisions rendered are based on constitutional interpretation of the law. The seven judges of the Court of Appeals are appointed by the Governor with Senate consent. They serve ten-year terms. Like judges of the Court of Special Appeals, judges of the Court of Appeals must win approval of the electorate at the first election occurring at least one year after their appointment.

Various units, boards, and commissions exist within the judiciary to facilitate the judicial process and assist judges of the different courts. The Judicial Nominating Commissions, for example, present names to the Governor when vacancies occur on any of the appellate or circuit courts. The State Law Library is the principal law reference library in the State. Also within the Judiciary Department are the State Board of Law Examiners, which conducts examinations for prospective members of the State Bar, and the Attorney Grievance Commission, charged with supervising and administering the discipline of attorneys.

The three branches of State government—executive, legislative, and judicial—act to preserve, protect, and extend the privileges and obligations provided to the citizens of Maryland by the State Constitution. All three branches represent the interests of the citizens of the State in their relations with other states and the federal government, and each works closely with and supplements the services of municipal and county administrations. Checks and balances provided by the Constitution of Maryland ensure a certain beneficial degree of tension and proprietorship among the three branches of State government, and each carefully guards its prerogatives. The fundamental goal of State government as a whole, however, is to serve the public interest. Through periodic elections, referenda, and amendments to the Constitution, citizens ultimately determine the policies, functions, and extent of the government of the State of Maryland.

WILLIAM DONALD SCHAEFER
*Governor of Maryland
Democrat*

William Donald Schaefer has served as governor of Maryland since January 1987, leading the State to the forefront in environmental protection, education reform, and health care reform. He was elected 58th governor of Maryland in 1986 by the greatest margin in State gubernatorial history, and was re-elected decisively for a second term in 1990.

Governor Schaefer has guided the State in both good and bad economic times, capitalizing on opportunities in the strong budget years and streamlining State government during the leaner years of a nationwide recession. Since the governor took office, every area of the State has enjoyed growth with the State's help. The Eastern Shore has benefited from new roads and bridges, and help with tourism, while Southern Maryland, preparing for a major expansion at the Patuxent Naval Air Station, has received help with housing, schools, and transportation. Western Maryland was opened up with a new interstate and capital investments which built on the region's strengths. Counties in the Washington suburbs grew through capital projects at the University of Maryland at College Park, revitalization efforts in Montgomery County, and investments in high-tech and science research. Fast-growing counties in the northern and central regions of Maryland won jobs with the help of State economic development loans and grants.

Making government more proactive about tackling problems faced by its citizenry, Governor Schaefer has stressed prevention as a means to save money, lives, and heartache. State agencies now devote resources to help Marylanders before they need costly health, social or public safety services. The emphasis on prevention represents a shift in government philosophy — moving away from just reacting to problems and toward trying to prevent them.

The governor has expanded social programs from housing to child care, started the nation's first State outreach effort for AIDS patients, and reorganized State departments to devote more resources to children and juvenile services. He has steered more money to preventive health programs, through a cancer campaign, anti-smoking efforts and expanded immunizations. Also he has used waivers from the federal government to make federally funded health and welfare programs work preventively, while stressing personal responsibility.

Maryland's school systems have benefited from Governor Schaefer's two terms in office. School funding has increased substantially, to $1.2 billion a year, and school performance has improved through programs aimed at early intervention and help for underachieving students. To prepare students for school, the Schaefer administration made kindergarten attendance mandatory and expanded pre-kindergarten programs to help at-risk students.

A reorganization of Maryland's higher education system, coupled with increased funding for institutions and students, produced more focused academic missions for four-year campuses and made college degrees more accessible to Marylanders. The University of Maryland at College Park has benefited from its designation as Maryland's flagship institution, while two other institutions—St. Mary's College of Maryland and Morgan State University—have excelled under special status each received as part of the reorganization. Community colleges, bolstered by increased funding and sharing in higher education's capital building boom, also attained higher status during the Schaefer years.

Environmental protection gained greater awareness through the governor's leadership, with a new Department of the Environment created to oversee Maryland's commitment to saving natural resources. Maryland pledged to restore the Chesapeake Bay's water quality, signing a regional agreement to curb pollution that produced measurable results. Governor Schaefer, recognized as a leader by his colleagues in the Bay restoration efforts, was twice chosen chairman of the Chesapeake Bay Executive Council. Other environmental accomplishments have included streamlining wetlands permits, enacting a reforestation effort, and initiating statewide recycling to make 23 percent of all household trash recycled by 1994.

In public safety, Governor Schaefer has continued building correctional institutions to keep pace with the growing prison population, but also has pushed for alternatives to incarceration. He opened one of the nation's first boot camps for first-time offenders, implemented a home detention program, and empowered local governments to operate community service programs for nonviolent offenders. He has been a consistent advocate of tougher gun laws, and led the fight to implement a handgun roster board to ban so-called Saturday-night specials.

Recognizing that the steadiest path to growth is stimulating new jobs, Mr. Schaefer has headed more than a dozen international trade missions, seeking markets for State products, promoting Maryland as an ideal tourist destination, and strengthening relations throughout Europe, Asia, and the former Soviet Union. He challenged State and local governments to work with businesses interested in locating in Maryland or expanding their facilities here. The result was new jobs and trade agreements steering contracts to Maryland companies.

Governor Schaefer has been a builder, championing construction of a premier baseball stadium for the Baltimore Orioles, Maryland's first light-rail transit line, and an expanded Baltimore Convention Center. Maryland's college and university campuses benefited from the building boom, with projects such as the performing arts center at College Park, and local school systems enjoyed an increase in funding for public school construction.

Mr. Schaefer came to Annapolis as governor after serving 15 years as mayor of Baltimore and overseeing the City's renaissance. His urban rejuvenation program, which combined resources from federal, State and local governments, and the private sector, triggered a widespread revitalization of Baltimore's neighborhoods. With the development of the Inner Harbor, and a major push to draw hotels, restaurants, and shops to the downtown, Baltimore emerged as a major tourist center.

Governor Schaefer has received ten honorary doctorates and won the highest tributes from national trade journals, fraternal organizations, civic and service clubs, health and welfare agencies, and neighborhood associations. He is the fifth person in the nation to receive the "Distinguished Public Service Award" from Brandeis University along with Eleanor Roosevelt, Chief Justice Earl Warren, Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, and Speaker of the House Thomas "Tip" O'Neill.

A life-long resident of Maryland, Governor Schaefer was born in West Baltimore on November 2, 1921, to William Henry and Tululu Irene Schaefer. Educated in Baltimore's public schools, he graduated from Baltimore City College in 1939 and from the University of Baltimore Law School in 1942.

His legal career put on hold by U.S. entry into World War II, Mr. Schaefer joined the Army, achieved officer rank, and took charge of administering military hospitals both in England and on the Continent. After his tour of duty, he remained in the U.S. Army Reserve and retired in 1979 with the rank of colonel. After the war, he resumed his legal career, practicing real estate law, and went on to earn a Master of Laws degree from the University of Baltimore. His leadership roles in citizen associations propelled him to a seat on the Baltimore City Council in 1955.

In 1967, rather than seek a fourth term as a councilman, Mr. Schaefer ran successfully for City Council president, and four years later was elected to the City's top job. He was inaugurated as Baltimore's mayor on December 7, 1971, and served four consecutive terms until he was elected governor. He first was inaugurated as Maryland's chief executive on January 21, 1987; his second inauguration was January 16, 1991.

MELVIN A. STEINBERG
Lieutenant Governor
Democrat

Melvin A. Steinberg, Maryland's fourth Lieutenant Governor since the office was reestablished in 1970, brings more than twenty years of legislative experience to the State's second highest elected office.

Lieutenant Governor Steinberg began his career in public service in November 1966 when he won election to the State Senate. He made an immediate impact on the State political scene, elected as Chairman of the Baltimore County Delegation during his first year in the Senate.

In the years to follow, Mr. Steinberg continued to demonstrate strong leadership qualities as Chairman of the Joint Committee on Ethics, the Committee on Narcotics, Subcommittee on Family Law, and the Joint Committee on Racing, and as a member of numerous task forces and committees. In January 1975, he was designated Vice-Chairman of the Judicial Proceedings Committee and, in January 1979, he became Chairman of the Finance Committee.

In January 1983, beginning his fifth consecutive term as a Senator, Mr. Steinberg was chosen by his colleagues to serve as President of the Senate. Mr. Steinberg served in that capacity until his election as Lieutenant Governor in November 1986.

During Mr. Steinberg's tenure in the General Assembly, he sponsored or was the leading spokesman for a number of significant bills. Mr. Steinberg served as a member of the blue ribbon Task Force on Health-Care Cost Containment and, under his leadership in the Senate, major legislation was enacted which achieved substantial progress in controlling rising health care costs. As Chairman of the Senate Ethics Committee, he developed and drafted the original rules pertaining to disclosure and conflict of interest for legislators.

As a member of a special legislative task force, Mr. Steinberg assisted in drafting the Dangerous Substance Control Act which placed Maryland at the forefront of efforts to control dangerous drugs. Major legislation also was enacted under his leadership to rekindle the vitality of the racing industry in Maryland. With a tradition stemming from Colonial days, racing in our State has the third largest impact of any industry on our economy.

Mr. Steinberg introduced legislation which became the basis of condominium law in the State of Maryland. He sponsored legislation to elect county council members by district rather than at-large in Baltimore County. Mr. Steinberg also sponsored numerous bills concerning mental health and domestic relations law.

As a member of the Maryland State Senate, Mr. Steinberg actively promoted economic development as well. In the fall of 1984, he represented Maryland and the General Assembly on an economic development mission to Japan. In the spring of 1985, Mr. Steinberg, as President of the Senate, represented the State in London when the Pride of Baltimore sailed under the Tower Bridge to complete its first Atlantic crossing.

Mr. Steinberg also has been active in the field of higher education, having served on the Commission on Excellence in Higher Education which recommended restructuring the higher education system in Maryland.

Since his first election as Lieutenant Governor in 1986, Mr. Steinberg has continued to build on a solid record of achievement gained during his twenty years of service in the Maryland General Assembly.

On behalf of Governor William Donald Schaefer, Lieutenant Governor Steinberg coordinated and developed the Administration's legislative agenda. The Lieutenant Governor served as chairman of the Governor's Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, and the Maryland Executive Helicopter Advisory Committee. He currently is chairman of the Peabody Institute Oversight Committee.

Lieutenant Governor Steinberg was born in Baltimore City on October 4, 1933, and attended the public schools of Baltimore City. He is a graduate of Baltimore City College and received his Associate of Arts Degree from the University of Baltimore in 1952. In 1955, he received a Juris Doctorate Degree from the University of Baltimore School of Law and was admitted to the Maryland Bar the same year. He served on active duty in the United States Navy from November 1955 through 1957. In addition, he has honorary degrees from Goucher College, Villa Julie College, and St. Mary's College of Maryland.

Mr. Steinberg returned to Baltimore following military service and became active in a number of civic organizations and political clubs. He entered the private practice of law as an associate with his cousin, Marvin B. Steinberg, Esquire, now a Judge of the Circuit Court of Baltimore City. Subsequently, Mr. Steinberg became a partner in the law firm of Levin and Gann, P.A. He is a member of the Baltimore County, Maryland State and American Bar Associations.

Lieutenant Governor Steinberg and his wife, Anita, have been married for thirty-five years. The Steinbergs have three children, Edward, Susan, and Barbara. Edward, a graduate of Bucknell University and the University of Baltimore School of Law, is currently practicing law in Baltimore City. Edward's wife, Halaine, is a graduate of Towson State University and is a former public school teacher. Susan is a graduate of Drew University and the University of Maryland School of Law and is a practicing attorney. Barbara is a graduate of Dickinson College and is a C.P.A. employed in the corporate setting. Lieutenant Governor Steinberg also is grandfather to twins, Mitchell Jacob and Julie Sarah Steinberg, and their brother, Jason Andrew Steinberg.

LUCILLE MAURER
State Treasurer
Democrat

First elected in January 1987, and re-elected in 1991, Lucille Maurer is the first woman to serve as Treasurer of Maryland. She is the twenty-first State Treasurer since the Constitution of 1851 combined the treasurers of the Western and Eastern Shores into one officer selected by the General Assembly. As Treasurer, she also serves as a member of the Board of Public Works, the first woman to serve on Maryland's highest administrative council.

A resident of Montgomery County since 1950, Treasurer Maurer served in the House of Delegates from 1969 to 1987. She was a member of the Ways and Means Committee for sixteen years and also chaired the Joint Committee on Federal Relations for four years. In the legislature, she became widely known for her experience in developing funding formulas for the public schools and for her leadership in fiscal affairs.

During the years she served in the legislature, Ms. Maurer also was active in the National Conference of State Legislatures, chairing the Education Committee, 1979-80, and the Tax and Trade Committee, 1985-86. From 1980 to 1982, she served on the Intergovernmental Advisory Council of the U.S. Department of Education as a Presidential appointee.

Before her election to the House of Delegates, Treasurer Maurer was twice elected to the Montgomery County Board of Education, serving simultaneously as a Trustee of Montgomery College from 1960 to 1968. In 1967, she was elected to the Maryland Constitutional Convention where she served on the Executive Branch Committee. She has been a delegate to several Democratic Party National Conventions.

Since her election as Treasurer, Ms. Maurer has continued to take an active interest in national professional organizations. She is an active member of the National Association of State Treasurers, serving as President in 1993. Formerly, she served as senior Vice President, Legislative Chair and Chair of the Northeast Regional Conference. Treasurer Maurer also served on the Executive Committee of the National Association of State Auditors, Comptrollers, and Treasurers and served on its State/Federal Cash Management Reform Task Force. She also has held a number of offices and leadership roles in the Women Executives in State Government.

Born in New York on November 21, 1922, Ms. Maurer grew up in Rockland County, New York. She attended the then Woman's College of the University of North Carolina and was graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1942 with a degree in Economics. After working for the U.S. Tariff Commission as an economist, she received her M.A. in General Studies from Yale University in 1945. Treasurer Maurer was awarded the honorary degrees of Doctor of Humanities by Hood College in 1984, and Doctor of Humane Letters by the University of Maryland's University College in 1990.

Treasurer Maurer is a member of many community organizations, such as the League of Women Voters. She is the recipient of many honors and awards from groups, including the Maryland Association of Boards of Education, Maryland Association of Counties, Maryland Association for Retarded Children, and chapters of the Business and Professional Women, National Organization for Women, and the American Association of University Women. In March of 1990, Treasurer Maurer was inducted into the Maryland Women's Hall of Fame. In 1989 she received the Judge Sarah T. Hughes Award for Distinguished Public Service from Goucher College, and the William G. Baker, Jr. Memorial Fund Award from the University of Baltimore's William Donald Schaefer Center for Public Policy. In 1988, she was awarded the prestigious Louis B. Brandeis Justice in Government Award by the American Jewish Congress. Among many other publications, she is listed in Who's Who in America, Who's Who in American Politics, Who's Who of American Women, Foremost Women of the Twentieth Century, and Community Leaders and Noteworthy Americans.

Ms. Maurer is married to Ely Maurer, an Assistant Legal Adviser in the U.S. Department of State. They have three grown sons: Stephen, Russell, and Edward.

J. JOSEPH CURRAN, JR.*Attorney General
Democrat*

J. Joseph Curran, Jr., was born in West Palm Beach, Florida, on July 7, 1931. He attended Baltimore parochial schools, Loyola High School, the University of Baltimore, and the University of Baltimore Law School (LL.B., 1959). Mr. Curran served in the U.S. Air Force during the Korean conflict, with duty in Japan and Korea.

In 1986, Mr. Curran was elected Attorney General of Maryland after serving four years as Lieutenant Governor with Governor Harry Hughes. In 1990, he won re-election handily. Under Mr. Curran, the Maryland Attorney General's Office has been a national leader in consumer protection, criminal investigations, Medicaid fraud prosecution, securities regulation and antitrust enforcement. During Mr. Curran's tenure, for the first time in State history, a jail sentence has been imposed on defendants solely for the commission of environmental crimes.

Long a proponent of sensible gun control laws, Mr. Curran played a leading role in the successful 1986 handgun referendum to ban over-the-counter sales of so-called Saturday-night specials in Maryland.

In a landmark 1990 case, Maryland v. Craig, Attorney General Curran successfully urged the U.S. Supreme Court to uphold Maryland's law permitting victims of child abuse to testify via one-way television. In 1993, the Office, along with attorneys general from other states, prevailed in the Supreme Court in a major antitrust case against insurance companies. Under Mr. Curran's direction, the Criminal Investigations Division obtained fines and restitution of more than $13 million and put 97 defendants behind bars. Among those receiving prison sentences have been suspected or convicted drug dealers who were prosecuted for failing to pay State taxes on their income from drug trafficking. The Division also has prosecuted 10 individuals and corporations for fraud under the State's minority business enterprise law.

The office's Medicaid Fraud Control Unit has been recognized repeatedly as one of the country's best under Mr. Curran's leadership. Since 1986, Maryland has been awarded more than $4.5 million in restitution and fines as the result of the Unit's more than 100 criminal prosecutions for fraud and patient abuse. In 1992, Maryland received national attention by becoming the first state to successfully prosecute a physician for criminally neglecting his nursing home patients.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division responds to 100,000 telephone calls a year, handles 9,000 to 11,000 written complaints, and has obtained several million dollars in restitution and fines.

The Health Education and Advocacy Unit alone has recovered nearly $420,000 for consumers by resolving billing disputes, and obtaining medical services from health insurance companies and HMOs.

The Securities Division has initiated an average of 400 disciplinary actions each year against stockbrokers and investment advisers. The Division has obtained major settlements including one against a brokerage firm which resulted in the return of $300,000 to Maryland investors during 1992. During Mr. Curran's tenure, the Securities Division also has implemented the most comprehensive regulatory plan for investment advisers in the country.

The Antitrust Division under Mr. Curran has obtained criminal convictions of numerous persons and businesses for rigging bids in State construction and asbestos abatement contracts; spearheaded nationwide settlements returning more than $50 million to consumers victimized by resale price maintenance schemes in the consumer electronics industry; thwarted a price-fixing agreement among Baltimore area pharmacies that raised the cost of prescriptions to HMO subscribers; and broadened the availability of a new anti-psychotic drug for schizophrenic patients by forcing its manufacturer to halt an arrangement that rendered the drug prohibitively expensive.

In the Attorney General's Office, Mr. Curran established an in-house continuing education program; encouraged assistant attorneys general to handle pro bono cases; and appointed a Special Assistant Attorney General to serve as attorney hiring coordinator.

Attorney General Curran began his career in public service in 1958 when he was elected to the House of Delegates while still a law student. In 1962, he was elected to the State Senate where he served on the Judicial Proceedings Committee. During this time, he became an early advocate of open housing laws for Maryland, even though his home was picketed by angry demonstrators. In 1967, Mr. Curran was chosen as chairman of the Judicial Proceedings Committee and held that position for sixteen years.

During Mr. Curran's service in the General Assembly, he sponsored or was the leading spokesman for many significant bills, including those creating the Court of Special Appeals and the District Court system. He consistently supported bills to improve the courts and the corrections system, toughen drunk-driving laws, guarantee equal rights, and require handgun permits. He also sponsored legislation to modernize Maryland's divorce and alimony laws, reform adoption and guardianship laws, and protect victims of domestic violence. The Maryland Higher Education Loan Program, which

Mr. Curran first sponsored as a member of the House, was passed under his leadership while he was a member of the State Senate.

As Lieutenant Governor, Mr. Curran served as legislative liaison for Governor Hughes' Administration bills and was appointed to chair task forces on drunk driving, the insanity defense, victims' services, and liability insurance. Mr. Curran also chaired the committee to study budget flexibility for higher education, the Maryland Criminal Justice Coordinating Council, and the State Trade Policy Council. He also served on the Joint Executive-Legislative Task Force on Medical Malpractice Insurance.

Mr. Curran is married to the former Barbara Marie Atkins. They are the parents of five children, Mary Carole, Alice, Catherine, J. Joseph III (Max), and William (deceased). The Currans reside in the Homeland section of Baltimore City.

TYRAS S. ATHEY
Secretary of State
Democrat

The Governor appointed Tyras S. Athey to be Secretary of State in 1993.

Mr. Athey was born in Burtonsville, Maryland, on March 30, 1927. He attended Montgomery County public schools, and went on to serve in the U.S. Navy from 1945 to 1947.

Mr. Athey served as a member of the House of Delegates from 1967 to 1993. He chaired the House Ways and Means Committee, 1979-93, and served as House chair of the Special Joint Committee on Income Tax Reform. Earlier he had chaired the Commission on Intergovernmental Cooperation and the Anne Arundel County Delegation. He was a member of the Rules and Executive Nominations Committee; the Legislative Policy Committee (management subcommittee); the Spending Affordability Committee; and the Special Joint Committee on Energy Pricing. He also served on the Executive Committee of the Southern Legislative Conference (past chair); the Joint Budget and Audit Committee, 1979-90; and the Special Joint Committee on Patuxent Institution, 1988-89.

As a legislator, Mr. Athey served on numerous special commissions. Among these were the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission, 1976-80; the Maryland Committee on Federal Income Tax Conformity, 1982-83; the Governor's Task Force to Study Flexibility for Higher Education, 1983-84; the Governor's Task Force on State Support for Volunteer Fire, Rescue and Ambulance Companies, 1983-85; the Fiscal Review Committee, 1984-86; the Executive/Legislative Committee to Study the Feasibility of a Biennial Budget, 1985; the State Trade Policy Council, 1985-89; the Task Force on School Construction Finance, 1987; and the Governor's Drug and Alcohol Abuse Commission, 1991-93. He was the Maryland representative to the Council of State Governments (past chair, fiscal affairs and governmental operations committee). He also co-chaired the Task Force on Property Tax Reform.

Secretary Athey is a member of the Elks and the Moose. He is married to the former Dorothy N. O'Lexey and is the father of Darlene, Brian, and Cathleen.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Maryland's Legislature. The lawmaking powers of the State are vested in the General Assembly, which consists of two separate branches — the Senate and the House of Delegates (Const., Art. III, sec. 1). The General Assembly has 188 members, with 47 Senators and 141 Delegates. One Senator and three Delegates are elected from each of the 47 legislative election districts. After every decennial census, legislative district boundaries are redrawn to conform to the principle of one person/one vote.

Requirements of Office. Each Senator or Delegate must be a citizen of Maryland and a resident for at least one year preceding the date of election. A prospective legislator must have resided for the six months prior to election in the legislative district the candidate seeks to represent. A Senator must be at least twenty-five years of age at the time of election and a Delegate at least twenty-one. Persons elected to or holding a civil or military office other than as a member of a reserve component under the federal or State government are not eligible for election to the General Assembly (Const., Art. III, secs. 9, 10, 11). All seats in the General Assembly are up for election every four years. (The next general election will be held November 1994.)

Terms. The term of each Senator and Delegate is four years from the second Wednesday of January following the date of election (Const., Art. III, sec. 6). No limit is placed on the number of terms a legislator may serve. If a vacancy occurs in either house through death, resignation, or disqualification, the Governor appoints a replacement whose name is submitted by the State Central Committee of the same political party as the legislator whose seat is to be filled. All persons so appointed serve for the unexpired portion of the term (Const., Art. III, sec. 13).

Purpose and Powers. The purpose of the General Assembly is to pass laws necessary for the welfare of the State. The legislature may establish executive departments as needed for the efficient operation of State government and may create special taxing districts or areas within the State to administer a special function or functions. In accordance with the Constitutions of Maryland and of the United States, the General Assembly may levy taxes. It may propose State Constitutional amendments, which must be passed by three-fifths of the total membership of each house and submitted to the voters for ratification at the next general election after passage. Legislative authority is limited only by the State Constitution, the U.S. Constitution, and judicial decisions.

Each house elects its own officers, judges the qualifications and election of its own members, establishes rules for the conduct of its business, and may punish or expel its own members. Legislators, however, are not liable in civil or criminal actions for words spoken in debate (Const., Art. III, secs. 18, 19). The Senate and the House of Delegates each appoint staff such as desk officers. The Secretary of the Senate and the Chief Clerk of the House are the highest ranking staff members in their respective chambers.

Leadership. On the first day of a regular legislative session, the Secretary of the Senate calls the roll and conducts the election of a President Pro Tem, who in turn presides over the election of the President of the Senate. The President Pro Tem administers the oath of office to the President and thereafter carries out any duties assigned by the President. In the House of Delegates, the Chief Clerk calls the roll and proceeds with the organization of the House. A Speaker Pro Tem is elected first, who presides over the election of the Speaker of the House and administers the Speaker's oath of office.

The Senate President and House Speaker each appoint a Majority Leader with whom they consult on the selection of a Majority Whip and Deputy Majority Leader. In both House and Senate, the political party having fewer seats chooses a Minority Leader and a Minority Whip.

Duties and prerogatives of the President and Speaker enable them to influence the legislative process significantly. The President and the Speaker appoint the members of standing committees, joint committees, conference committees, and select committees. They designate the chairperson and vice-chairperson of all committees, except for the Joint Committee on Investigation whose members elect their own officers. The President and Speaker preside over the daily sessions of their respective chambers, maintaining decorum and deciding points of order. As legislation is introduced, they assign it to a standing committee for consideration and a public hearing.

Sessions. Since 1971, the General Assembly has convened annually on the second Wednesday in January. Sessions are held in the Senate and House chambers of the State House in Annapolis. Normally, sessions do not exceed ninety consecutive days. The General Assembly may extend its sessions an additional thirty days by resolution passed by three-fifths vote of the membership in each house. The Governor is the only person with the power to call the legislature into special session and in fact must do so on petition of a majority of the elected membership of each house (Const., Art. II, sec. 16; Art. III, sec. 14). No single special session, however, may last longer than thirty days. Special sessions were constitutionally provided for at a time when the General Assembly convened every two years instead of annually, but as recently as 1992, the Governor called the General Assembly into special session twice. The Governor cannot adjourn the General Assembly, but before any proposed adjournment sine die, the General Assembly must ask if the Governor wishes to make any further communications to either house (Senate Rule 111; House Rule 111). Both houses must agree to adjourn.

County Legislation. The General Assembly spends considerable time dealing with local issues, ordinances, and expenditures. The Constitution adopted in 1867 kept the power to pass public local laws vested in the General Assembly. In essence, this gave control of county government to county delegations in the General Assembly. Since 1948, however, thirteen counties and Baltimore City have opted for some form of home rule, allowing the General Assembly a more statewide focus. The Municipal Home Rule Amendment of 1954 virtually prohibits the General Assembly from passing local legislation for incorporated cities and towns, although the Assembly retains its power to pass a general statewide law that affects them (Const., Art. XI-E). Power to regulate elections and to license and regulate the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages, however, is reserved to the General Assembly, and home rule counties are limited to exercising the powers enumerated in the Express Powers Act (Code 1957, Art. 25A, sec. 5).

Referendum. Local bills passed by the General Assembly may include a referendum provision that requires submission of the bill to voter approval. With the exception of a proposed amendment to the Constitution, a statewide bill may not be submitted by the General Assembly to referendum, because such an action has been construed by the courts to constitute a delegation of the legislature's lawmaking powers. Most statewide bills (except appropriations) and any local bill that concerns a county or Baltimore City, however, may be petitioned to a referendum by the voters. No bill subject to referendum, except an emergency bill, is enforceable until approved by a majority of the voters at the next election. An emergency bill subject to referendum goes into effect upon passage and remains effective for thirty days following its rejection by the voters (Const., Art. XVI).

Additional Powers. The House of Delegates has sole power to impeach officers and judges of the State. A majority of all members of the House must approve any bill of impeachment. The Senate tries all impeachment cases, and two-thirds of the total number of Senators must concur in reaching a verdict of guilty (Const., Art. III, sec. 26).

Both houses elect the State Treasurer by joint ballot. The General Assembly also elects the Governor or the Lieutenant Governor if the popular election results in a tie or the winning candidate or candidates are ineligible. If a vacancy occurs in the office of Lieutenant Governor, the Governor nominates a person to succeed to that office upon confirmation by a majority vote of all members of the General Assembly in joint session. If vacancies occur in both the offices of Governor and Lieutenant Governor at the same time, the General Assembly must convene and elect a Governor by a majority vote of all members in joint session. The chosen Governor then nominates a Lieutenant Governor requiring the same confirmation.

The President of the Senate serves as acting Governor if the Lieutenant Governor is unable to do so. Should a vacancy occur in the office of President of the Senate while the President is authorized to serve as acting Governor, the Senate must convene and fill the vacancy (Const., Art. II, secs. 1A, 1B, 6, 7A).

THE LEGISLATIVE PROCESS: HOW A BILL BECOMES A LAW

Current laws of the State are compiled in the Annotated Code of Maryland. The General Assembly changes, adds, and repeals laws through the legislative process of introducing and passing bills.

BILLS

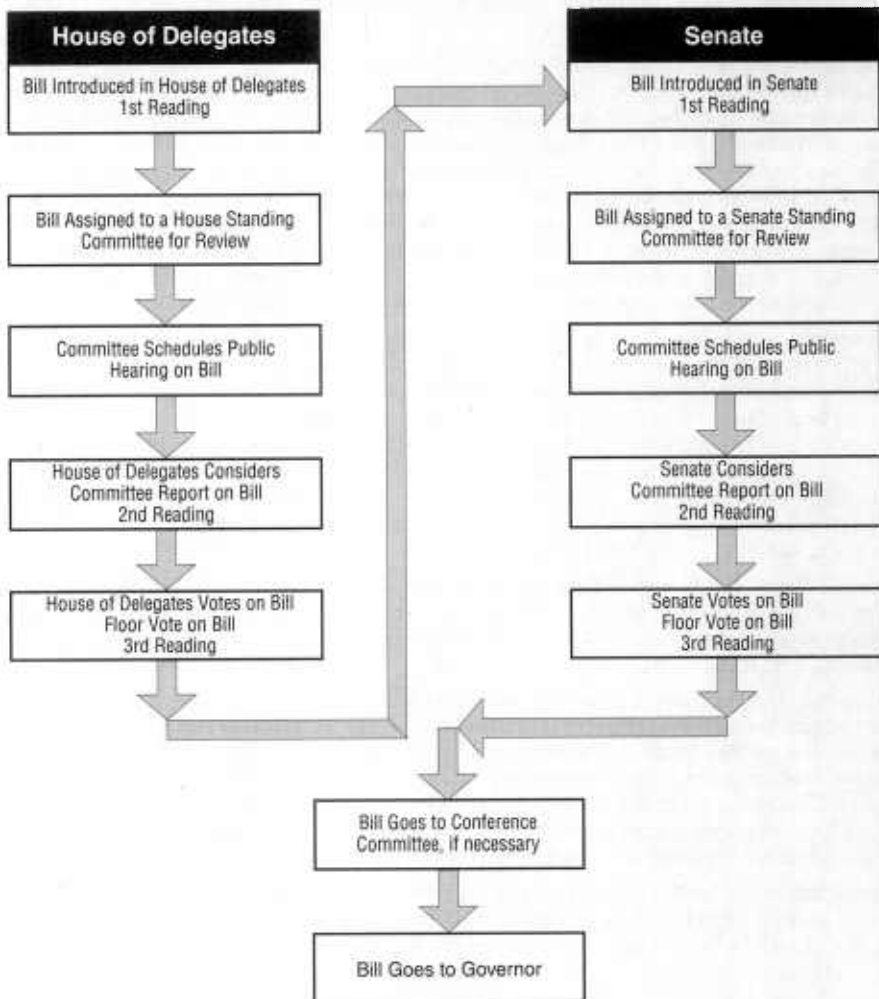

Ideas for bills, or proposed laws, come from many sources: constituents, the Governor, governmental agencies, study commissions, special interest groups, lobbyists, professional associations, and legislative committees, for example. However, each bill must be sponsored by a legislator. The State Constitution mandates that bills be limited to one subject clearly described by the title of the bill and be drafted in the style and form of the Annotated Code (Const., Art. III, sec. 29). The one-subject limitation and the title requirement are safeguards against fraudulent legislation and allow legislators and constituents to monitor a bill's progress more easily. Omnibus bills, common in the U.S. Congress, are clearly forbidden under Maryland law.

At the request of legislators, bills are drafted to meet constitutional standards by the Department of Legislative Reference. The Department begins to receive bill-drafting requests for the next legislative session shortly after the previous session ends in mid-April, although bill drafting does not begin in earnest until July. In the interim between sessions, legislators meet in committees, task forces, and other groups to study and formulate bill proposals.

From 1991 through 1993, the number of bills introduced per session has averaged 840 in the Senate and 1,496 in the House of Delegates. This volume of bills makes it difficult for each bill to get through the legislative process within the 90-day session. Therefore, legislators often try to introduce their bills as early as possible. A bill filed with the Secretary of the Senate or the Chief Clerk of the House prior to the first day of a regular session is called a prefiled bill. Such a bill is introduced (i.e., read across the floor) and assigned to a standing committee on the opening day of a session, thus obtaining a head start advantage. In 1993, some 175 Senate bills and 127 House bills were prefiled.

JOINT RESOLUTIONS

In addition to bills, legislators introduce joint resolutions. Substantive in nature, a joint resolution expresses the will, opinion, or public policy of the General Assembly (Senate Rule 25; House Rule 25). They are subject to the same legislative process as are bills, must be passed by both houses, but after passage are not codified in the Annotated Code. Joint resolutions that pass both houses are numbered and printed in the Session Laws for that year. The Governor does not veto joint resolutions and may or may not sign them.

Certain issues are required by law or the Constitution to be introduced in the form of a joint resolution and such joint resolutions have the force and effect of law. Examples include salary recommendations from the General Assembly Compensation Commission, the Governor's Salary Commission, and the Judicial Compensation Commission; reapportionment plans for General Assembly membership required after every decennial census; and amendments to the U.S. Constitution submitted for ratification.

LEGISLATIVE PROCESS

After the Department of Legislative Reference drafts legislation in the form of a bill or a joint resolution, the sponsor files it, "drops it into the hopper", with the Secretary of the Senate or the Chief Clerk of the House of Delegates. A bill or resolution is numbered, stamped for approval and codification by the Department of Legislative Reference (Senate Rule 26; House Rule 26), and printed for first reading. Senate legislation appears on white paper and House legislation on blue paper.

The Constitution of Maryland requires that before any bill becomes law, it must be read on three different days in each house, for a total of six readings. A bill may not be read for the third time in its house of origin until it has been reprinted. The Constitution also specifies that a bill must be passed in each house by a majority vote of the total membership, and the final vote on third reading in each house must be recorded.

STANDING COMMITTEES

Standing committees are defined as those committees set forth in the Rules of the Senate or the Rules of the House of Delegates (Code State Government Article, sec. 2-101(f)). Their primary function is to consider all legislation referred to them by the Senate President or House Speaker.

To review proposed legislation, the Senate has four standing legislative committees and the House has six (Senate Rule 18; House Rule 18). At the beginning of each session, the Senate President and House Speaker appoint the members of standing committees and designate chairpersons and vice-chairpersons. A senator or delegate may not be appointed to more than one standing committee whose main function is to consider legislation.

The rules of each chamber require every bill to be referred by the presiding officer to the appropriate standing committee (Senate Rule 33; House Rule 33). An exception is made for bills which are strictly local with no statewide impact. Such bills are referred instead to select committees. A select committee is usually composed of a county's delegation in the House or its senators, with other members appointed as necessary to make up the minimum number of three. Counties without home rule keep their select committees busy.

The Senate or House of Delegates may suspend rules in order to consider a bill or resolution without referring it to a standing committee as long as each member receives a copy of the bill or resolution to be so considered (Senate Rule 33(f); House Rule 33(f)).

BUDGET BILL

The Constitution provides for an annual budget bill. Each year, the Governor presents a bill to the General Assembly containing the budget for State government for the next fiscal year. (In Maryland, the fiscal year begins July 1 and ends June 30.) The budget, however supplemented or amended, must be balanced; total estimated revenues always must be equal to or exceed total appropriations (Const., Art. III, sec. 52(5a)). If the General Assembly has not acted upon the budget bill seven days before the expiration of a regular session, the Governor, by proclamation, may extend the session for action to be taken on the bill. After both houses pass the budget bill, it becomes law without further action (Const., Art. III, sec. 52).

INTRODUCTION OF BILL (1ST READING OF BILL)

A bill may be introduced throughout the ninety days of a session, but the later a bill is introduced, the more difficult its passage becomes. Any Senate bill introduced after the 24th calendar day of a session must be referred to the Senate Rules Committee, cannot be required to be returned to the floor except by a two-thirds vote of the membership, and may not be petitioned from committee (Senate Rule 32). A House bill introduced after the 45th calendar day must be referred to the House Rules and Executive Nominations Committee, requires a two-thirds vote to be returned to the floor, and cannot be petitioned from committee (House Rule 32). For a bill to be introduced during the last 35 days of a session, the rules must be suspended by a two-thirds vote (Const., Art. III, sec. 27). Except for the annual budget bill and bills creating or amending State debts, a House bill that crosses over to the Senate after the 76th day of session is subject to the same restrictions as is a bill introduced after the 24th day.

COMMITTEES

The committee system is a vital part of the legislative process. Rules of each house require that every bill or joint resolution, with one exception, be referred to a standing committee after first reading (Senate Rule 33; House Rule 33). Bills having a purely local impact are referred to select committees composed of the local delegation or the local Senators. The fate of most legislative proposals is determined in committee. Committees hold a public hearing on each bill or joint resolution assigned to them. During session, the Department of Legislative Reference publishes a weekly hearing schedule so that those interested may testify for or against proposed legislation. The Department of Fiscal Services prepares a fiscal analysis for each bill and these fiscal notes are considered during committee deliberations. At the committee hearing, testimony usually is heard from the bill's sponsor and other proponents and opponents of the bill. Testimony and further consideration may result in amendments to the bill made by the committee. The final vote of the committee is recorded by member, and may be favorable (with or without amendment), unfavorable, or without recommendation. Having been "voted out of committee," the bill now returns to the floor of its chamber of origin accompanied by a report of committee action.

CONSIDERATION OF COMMITTEE REPORT (2ND READING OF BILL)

After consideration of committee amendments, the bill is then open to amendment from the floor. There, committee action may be reversed, although this happens infrequently. Second reading is completed when the presiding officer orders the bill, with any adopted amendments, printed for third reading.

FLOOR VOTE ON BILL (3RD READING OF BILL)

No amendments may be presented on third reading. In the chamber of origin, a recorded vote is taken to pass or reject the bill. To pass, the bill must receive a majority vote of the elected membership.

The bill then passes over to the opposite chamber, has its first reading, and is assigned to a committee for a hearing. The procedure followed is identical with that of the chamber in which the bill originated, except that amendments may be proposed during second and third readings. If not amended in the second chamber, final passage may occur without reprinting.

If amended in the second chamber, the bill is returned to the chamber of origin so that house may consider the amendments. If the chamber of origin votes to concur with the amendments, the bill is voted on as amended and action is complete. The bill is reprinted, or "enrolled", to include the added amendments before being submitted to the Governor.

If the chamber of origin votes to reject the amendments, the amending chamber may be asked to withdraw its amendments. If it refuses, either chamber may request that a conference committee be appointed to resolve the differences between the two chambers.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE

Appointed by the Senate President and the House Speaker, a conference committee consists of three members of each house. The committee reports back to both chambers where its recommendations are adopted or rejected without amendment. If the report is adopted, the bill is voted upon for final passage in each house. If the report is rejected by either house, the bill fails.

The Senate and the House of Delegates may adopt a "consent calendar" procedure if members of each house receive reasonable notice of the bills placed on each consent calendar. The consent calendar is a list of bills to be read and voted upon as a group (Const., Art. II, sec. 17; Art. III, secs. 27, 28). This procedure greatly expedites the legislative process. In 1988, the Senate revised its rules to place bills and joint resolutions on consent calendars by category as they are voted out of committee (Senate Rule 55). The House of Delegates still retains a Consent Calendars Committee to determine which bills and joint resolutions may be included on consent calendars (House Rules 18 and 55).

EFFECTIVE DATE OF LAWS

All bills passed by the General Assembly become law when signed by the Governor, or when passed over the Governor's veto by three-fifths of the membership of each house. According to the Constitution, laws thus approved take effect on the first day of June after the session in which they were passed, except when a later date is specified in the act, or the bill is declared an emergency measure. For many years, most laws took effect July 1. During the 1992 Session, October 1 began to be used as the standard effective date for legislation. Emergency bills, passed by three-fifths of the total number of members of each house, become law immediately upon their approval by the Governor.

All bills, except the budget bill and constitutional amendments, must be presented to the Governor within twenty days following adjournment of a session. The Governor may veto such bills within thirty days after presentation. If the Governor does not veto a bill, it becomes law. The budget bill, however, becomes law upon its final passage and cannot be vetoed. Constitutional amendments also cannot be vetoed; they become law only upon their ratification by the voters at the next general election.

VETOED BILLS

The power to override a veto rests with the General Assembly. If the Governor vetoes a bill during a regular session, the General Assembly immediately considers the Governor's veto message. If the Governor vetoes a bill presented after the session, the veto message must be considered immediately at the next regular or special session of the legislature. The General Assembly may not override a veto during the first year of a new legislative term since the bill would have been passed by the previous legislature (Const., Art. II, sec. 17). A three-fifths vote of the elected membership of both chambers is necessary to override a veto.

SOURCES OF INFORMATION ON STATUS OF BILLS

Legislators. A constituent's State Senator or Delegate, or the bill's sponsor often are the most effective source of information on the status of a bill.

During the legislative session, the Department of Legislative Reference publishes the daily floor proceedings for both the Senate and the House of Delegates, as well as daily synopses of legislation introduced. The proceedings list all actions taken on bills and joint resolutions in either chamber each day. The synopses summarize legislation introduced each day, and note the primary sponsor(s), the committee assignment, and the section of the Annotated Code of Maryland affected by the legislation. As with printed bills, the Senate proceedings and synopses are on white paper, the House on blue. The Department also publishes weekly the Committee Meetings and Hearing Schedule with the times and places for all legislative committee meetings. The hearing schedule is published weekly all year, but is especially useful during the legislative session because it lists what bills will be heard each day.

A limited number of synopses, proceedings, and hearing schedules are available to the public at the Information Desk of the State House (ground floor) or the Information Desk in the Legislative Services Building (basement level). Copies of printed bills and joint resolutions may be obtained from the Bill Room in the Legislative Services Building.

The Department of Legislative Reference offers a subscription service to persons or organizations with a broad continuing need for bill information.

JOINT STATUTORY COMMITTEES

Joint statutory committees are created by act of the General Assembly. Their duties, membership, and tenure are specified either in the Annotated Code of Maryland or the Laws of Maryland. Most commonly, these committees are composed of an equal number of members from the Senate and House of Delegates.

Presently, the General Assembly has eleven joint statutory committees. They oversee Legislative Policy; Administrative, Executive and Legislative Review; Budget and Audit; Chesapeake Bay Critical Areas; Federal Relations; Health Care Delivery and Financing; Legislative Ethics; Management of Public Funds; Spending Affordability; Vehicle Emissions Inspection; and Workers' Compensation Benefit and Insurance.

The Legislative Policy Committee originated in 1939 as the Legislative Council (Chapter 62, Acts of 1939). The Council was reorganized under its current name in 1976 (Chapter 362, Acts of 1976).

The Legislative Policy Committee coordinates and supervises the work of the standing committees of the General Assembly. The Committee studies the rules and procedures of the Senate and House of Delegates, and appoints special committees and subcommittees to study legislative matters. During the interim between sessions of the General Assembly, the Committee refers any recommended subject matter it receives to interim committees, holds hearings on any subject matter, and subpoenas witnesses and records as required. The Committee may prepare its own legislative recommendations and may endorse a legislative program in the form of bills, resolutions, or other proposals to be submitted to the General Assembly.

The Committee consists of twenty-six members, thirteen from the Senate and thirteen from the House of Delegates. The Senate is represented by the Senate President; President Pro Tem; Majority Leader; Minority Leader; and the chairpersons of the standing committees on Budget and Taxation, Economic and Environmental Affairs, Finance, and Judicial Proceedings. The Senate President appoints five additional senators to represent the various areas and interests of the State. The House of Delegates is represented by the House Speaker; Speaker Pro Tem; Majority Leader; Minority Leader; and the chairpersons of the standing committees on Appropriations, Commerce and Government Matters, Economic Matters, Environmental Matters, Judiciary, and Ways and Means. The House Speaker appoints four additional delegates to represent the various areas and interests of the State. The Senate President and House Speaker serve as co-chairpersons (Code State Government Article, secs. 2-401 through 2-410).

MANDATED REPORTS

Annual Report to Legislative Policy Committee & General Assembly.

The Joint Committee on Administrative, Executive and Legislative Review (AELR) was formed in 1964 as the Committee on Legislative Review (Chapter 96, Acts of 1964). It was renamed the Committee on Administrative, Executive and Legislative Review in 1972 (Chapters 400, 699, Acts of 1972).

The Committee reviews State agency regulations with regard to the legislative prerogative and procedural due process. The Committee also may inquire into any failure of a State government officer or employee to comply with Maryland statutory or constitutional law. Further, the Committee sits as a legislative advisory board for the Code of Maryland Regulations (COMAR).

The Committee receives copies of all regulations of each State agency. Unless submitted to the Committee, certain regulations or standards may be invalid (Code State Government Article, secs. 10-101 through 10-139).

The Committee is required to receive emergency energy executive orders promulgated by the Governor (Chapter 1, Acts of 2nd Special Session of 1973). This legislative authority has been updated annually.

The Committee is composed of nine senators and nine delegates, who are appointed by the Senate President and the House Speaker at the beginning of each regular session. Members serve for one year. The chairperson and vice-chairperson alternate each year between the two houses. Representation of each political party is approximately in the same proportion as its membership in each house (Code State Government Article, secs. 2-501 through 2-507).

JOINT BUDGET & AUDIT COMMITTEE

Richard N. Dixon, House Chairperson

Staff: Dana A. Thompson (410) 841-3761

MANDATED REPORTS

Annual Report to General Assembly.

The Joint Budget and Audit Committee was established in 1968 (Chapter 456, Acts of 1968). The Committee studies and reviews State fiscal policies and post audits, and other matters relating to fiscal affairs. From the Executive Department and the Department of Fiscal Services it receives annual reports on how long-term State debt affects the State's financial condition.

Annually, the Committee reviews federally funded projects requiring future State funds and nonbudgeted funds used for capital programs. It also reviews rules and regulations that require increased expenditures and establishes policies and directives for the Department of Fiscal Services.

The Committee's twenty members include the Senate President, the House Speaker, and the majority and minority floor leaders or designees. Other members are divided equally between legislators from the fiscal committees of the Senate and House of Delegates. The presiding officers name the chairperson and vice-chairperson (Code State Government Article, secs. 2-601 through 2-606).

JOINT COMMITTEE ON CHESAPEAKE BAY CRITICAL AREAS

(410) 841-3881

The Joint Committee on Chesapeake Bay Critical Areas was authorized in 1984 (Chapter 794, Acts of 1984). Periodically, the Committee meets with the Chesapeake Bay Critical Area Commission to review the progress of the critical areas program for the Bay.

The Committee consists of ten members: five senators appointed by the Senate President and five delegates appointed by the House Speaker (Code Natural Resources Article, sec. 8-1808).

MANDATED REPORTS

*Annual Report to General Assembly due 15 days

The Joint Committee on Federal Relations originated as the Maryland Commission on Intergovernmental Cooperation in 1937 (Chapter 331, Acts of 1937). The Commission was reorganized under its current name in 1983 (Chapter 401, Acts of 1983). The Committee monitors and evaluates the relations between State and federal government and the impact on the State, local government, and Maryland citizens of proposals to alter those relations. It keeps State legislative and executive officials informed of federal relations and the impact of proposals for change. The Committee serves also as a forum for considering certain State-local issues.

To advance cooperation between the State and other units of government, the Committee proposes adoption of compacts, and uniform or reciprocal administrative rules; and enactment of uniform or reciprocal laws. The Committee also endorses informal cooperation of governmental offices, personal cooperation of government officials and employees, and the exchange and clearance of research and information.

The Committee consists of sixteen members. Eight are senators appointed by the Senate President and eight are delegates appointed by the House Speaker. The Senate President and House Speaker designate the chairperson and vice-chairperson (Code State Government Article, secs. 2-901 through 2-906).

The Advisory Commission on Federal-State-Local Relations considers issues of concern to the Joint Committee on Federal Relations.

ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

The Senate of Maryland originated as the Upper House of the General Assembly, formally distinguished from the Lower House in 1650 (Chapter 1, Acts of 1650). The Governor and the Governor's Council constituted the Upper House until 1675. Thereafter, the Upper House consisted of the Governor's Council. To this day, the Senate still functions as the Governor's Council when it confirms or rejects appointments made by the Governor.

The Constitution of 1776 established the Senate. Members were chosen by electors to represent regions. In the period 1776 to 1837, from the Western Shore nine senators were selected and from the Eastern Shore, six (Const. 1776, secs. 14-18). In 1838, senators first were elected by the voters, rather than by an electoral college, and first were chosen to represent either an individual county or a legislative election district of Baltimore City, rather than a broad area.

For most of its history, the Senate represented geographic regions of the State. Regardless of population, each county elected a single senator. With the exception of Baltimore City, representation in the Senate was based on geography, not population, until 1966. Since the legislative apportionment plan of 1972 took effect in the 1974 elections, each of the General Assembly's 47 senators has been elected from one of 47 legislative election districts. These districts provide for equal representation based on population.

SENATE STANDING COMMITTEES

The Senate, having fewer members than the House of Delegates, often met as a whole body, rather than in committee, to review proposed laws. Nonetheless, although Senate committees functioned earlier, by the nineteenth century, standing (or continuing) committees were formed, beginning in December 1823. At that time, the Senate President appointed standing committees on Ways and Means; Internal Improvements; and Pensions and Revolutionary [War] Claims. While names of standing committees have changed over the years, their purpose remains the same—to review proposed legislation.

Presently, the Senate has four standing committees to review bills: Budget and Taxation; Economic and Environmental Affairs; Finance; and Judicial Proceedings. Two additional standing committees are Executive Nominations, and Rules.

Functions of the Budget and Taxation Committee originated with the Finance Committee, which was created in 1831. Responsibility for reviewing bills concerned with the budget of State government and tax matters were reassigned to the Budget and Taxation Committee when it was established in 1975.

The Committee considers legislation relating to State operating and capital budgets, including revenues, expenditures, and supplementary appropriations; State and county bond authorizations; legislative budgetary procedures; taxation and property assessments; and proposals requiring significant expenditures. The Committee consists of thirteen members.

Under the Budget and Taxation Committee are five subcommittees: Capital Budget; Health, Education, and Human Resources; Pensions; Public Safety, Transportation, Economic Development, and Natural Resources; and Revenue and Taxes.

The Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee traces to the Economic Affairs Committee, which was formed in 1967. From that committee came the present standing committee in 1984.

The Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee considers legislation relating to administrative law; agriculture and land preservation; alcoholic beverages; business and occupational licensing and regulation (including health occupations); education; elections; environmental health; fire prevention and safety; housing and economic development; local government; natural resources; procurement; State government reorganization and procedures; and veterans and defense. The Finance Committee was formed in December 1831. Originally, it bore the responsibility of reviewing all bills concerned with fiscal matters. In 1975, the review of budgetary and tax matters was assigned to a separate committee—the Budget and Taxation Committee.

The Finance Committee considers legislation relating to banks and financial institutions; commercial law; credit regulation and consumer financing; economic and community development; health; horse racing; insurance; labor and employment; lottery and gambling; pensions and retirement; State personnel; social services; transportation; unemployment insurance; utility regulation; and worker's compensation. The Committee consists of eleven members.

In November 1796, the Senate formed a committee to "report rules and regulations to be observed in the Senate." Called first the Committee on Rules and Regulations, it came to be known as the Rules Committee.

The Rules Committee considers proposals concerning the rules, organization, and procedures of the Senate; reviews legislation introduced after the 24th day of a regular session; and decides on re-referral of those bills to other committees for consideration. Eleven senators serve on this committee.

ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

In Maryland, the House of Delegates originated as the Lower House of the General Assembly in 1650, when the legislature became a bicameral body (Chapter 1, Acts of 1650). To the Lower House freemen in each hundred elected burgesses as their representatives. From 1654, the county replaced the hundred as the local area represented.

The Constitution of 1776 established the House of Delegates whose members represented the voters who elected them from each county and the towns of Annapolis and Baltimore (Const. 1776, secs. 1-6). With four delegates representing each county, two representing Annapolis, and two Baltimore, the House of Delegates originally was based on geographic representation. After 1837, however, population became the basis of legislative apportionment for the House of Delegates. Since the legislative apportionment plan of 1972 took effect in the 1974 elections, the House of Delegates has had 141 members.

HOUSE OF DELEGATES STANDING COMMITTEES

Following the practice of the English House of Commons, the Lower House of Maryland's General Assembly began to use standing (or continuing) committees in the seventeenth century. These committees were responsible for considering all proposed laws on a given subject. Any bills relating to their assigned subject matter received committee review before any final action on the floor. In 1692, the Lower House formed four standing committees on accounts; aggrievances; elections and privileges; and laws.

To review proposed legislation today, the House of Delegates has six standing committees: Appropriations; Commerce and Government Matters; Economic Matters; Environmental Matters; Judiciary; and Ways and Means. Two additional standing committees are Rules and Executive Nominations, and Consent Calendars.

APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEE

Howard P. Rawlings, Chairperson
James E. McClellan, Vice-Chairperson

Lowe House Office Building, Room 131
6 Governor Bladen Blvd.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-3407

The Appropriations Committee originated in 1692 as the Committee on Accounts. By the time of the Revolutionary War, it had become the Committee on Claims (upon the Treasury). The Claims Committee functioned from 1776 to 1968 when its responsibilities were shifted briefly to the Economic Matters Committee. In 1971, budgetary and other duties were assigned to the Appropriations Committee created in that year.

The Appropriations Committee considers legislation relating to budget; bonds and loans; collective bargaining; fiscal procedures; higher education; local government; Medicaid and other medical assistance; personnel matters; procurement; social services (Aid to Families with Dependent Children; welfare); special funds and grants; State government (legislative, executive, and judicial; sunset review); and transportation. Twenty-seven delegates serve on this committee.

Under the Committee are four subcommittees: Capital Budget; Education and Transportation; Health and the Environment; and Human Resources and Public Safety. The Committee also is aided by three oversight committees: Pensions; Personnel; and Program Open Space and Agricultural Land Preservation.

COMMERCE & GOVERNMENT MATTERS COMMITTEE

Gerald J. Curran, Chairperson
John F. Wood, Jr., Vice-Chairperson

Lowe House Office Building, Room 141
6 Governor Bladen Blvd.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-3502

The Commerce and Government Matters Committee was created in January 1994. The Committee considers legislation relating to banking, credit unions, and savings and loans; election laws; ethics; local government; procurement; transportation; and vehicle laws. Twenty-two delegates serve on this committee.

ECONOMIC MATTERS COMMITTEE

Michael E. Busch, Chairperson
Elijah E. Cummings, Vice-Chairperson

Lowe House Office Building, Room 151
6 Governor Bladen Blvd.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-3519

The Economic Matters Committee was formed in 1968. The Committee considers legislation relating to licensing and regulation; liquor laws; procurement; real estate and real property; unemployment insurance; vehicle laws; and workers' compensation. Twenty-four delegates serve on this committee.

ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS COMMITTEE

Ronald A. Guns, Chairperson
Virginia M. Thomas, Vice-Chairperson

Lowe House Office Building, Room 161
6 Governor Bladen Blvd.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-3534

In 1969, the Environmental Matters Committee was established. Yet, earlier the House of Delegates had formed standing committees concerned with the environment. The Committee on Chesapeake Bay and its Tributaries, for example, had functioned from 1872 to 1968. Created in 1947, the Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee also had continued until 1968, when the Natural Resources Committee briefly was established. In the following year, the Environmental Matters Committee assumed responsibilities of that committee.

The Environmental Matters Committee considers legislation relating to agriculture; business occupations; environment; fire and public safety; health—general (communicable diseases; developmental disabilities; family and child daycare; mental health; vital records); health—occupations; natural resources; Public Service Commission; and State government (commissions and task forces). This committee is composed of twenty-three delegates.

JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

Joseph F. Vallario, Jr., Chairperson
Joel Chasnoff, Vice-Chairperson

Lowe House Office Building, Room 121
6 Governor Bladen Blvd.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-3488

Origins of the Judiciary Committee trace first to the Committee on Aggrievances, which began in 1692, and then to the Committee on Aggrievances and Courts of Justice which was functioning by 1722 in the Lower House of the General Assembly. By 1751, the Committee was styled the Committee on Grievances and Courts of Justice. Under that name, the Committee continued until 1852. Some of the Committee's legislative concerns had been assumed in 1828 by the Crimes and Punishments Committee, a standing committee established that year. Responsibilities of both these committees were assigned to the new Judiciary Committee in 1852, when the House of Delegates established the Standing Committee on Judiciary. At its first legislative session following ratification of the Constitution of 1851, the House formed the Committee to consider laws relating to a court system, newly altered by Maryland's second constitution.

Today, the Committee still considers legislation relating to judicial administration and court structure. It also is concerned with administrative law; alcoholic beverages; civil rights; commercial law; constitutional amendments; corporations and associations; crimes and punishments; election laws; estates and trusts; ethics; family law; juvenile causes; the legal profession; legal rights and immunities; and vehicle laws. Twenty-two delegates serve on this committee.

WAYS & MEANS COMMITTEE

Sheila E. Hixson, Chairperson
Richard Rynd, Vice-Chairperson

Lowe House Office Building, Room 111
6 Governor Bladen Blvd.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-3469

A predecessor of the Ways and Means Committee first appeared in the House of Delegates in 1791. During that legislative session, the Committee on Public Revenues, Debts and Expenditures, and Ways and Means was formed as a special committee apparently for that session only. As a standing committee, the Ways and Means Committee began in 1818.

The Ways and Means Committee considers legislation relating to education; gambling; health (minors' access to cigarettes; compulsive gambling; treatment); local government; social services (adult public guardianship); State government (special commissions; State Archives; Secretary of State); taxes; and transportation. The Committee consists of twenty-two delegates.

Under the Committee, five subcommittees were formed in 1994: Education; Financing Resources; Housing and Social Issues; Taxes and Revenues; and Transportation.

RULES & EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS COMMITTEE

Hattie N. Harrison, Chairperson
Rose Mary Hatem Bonsack, Vice-Chairperson

6 Governor Bladen Blvd.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-3923

In November 1795, the House of Delegates established a committee "to report such rules as are proper to be observed during this session." The Committee came to be known as the Rules Committee. In 1966, it was renamed the Rules and Organization Committee and, in 1968, reorganized as the Rules, Organization, and Executive Nominations Committee. The Committee received its present name in 1969.

The Rules and Executive Nominations Committee considers proposals concerning the rules, organization, and procedures of the House; and considers proposals affecting the legislature as an institution and its agencies. The Committee reviews legislation introduced after the bill deadline, and decides on re-referral of those bills to other committees for consideration. In addition, the Committee examines nominations requiring House confirmation and reports its recommendations.

CONSENT CALENDARS COMMITTEE

Casper R. Taylor, Jr., House Speaker
Kenneth H. Masters, Majority Leader
Ellen R. Sauerbrey, Minority Leader

The Consent Calendars Committee determines the bills and joint resolutions proposed for inclusion on the consent calendar (House Rule 18).

LEGISLATIVE ELECTION DISTRICTS

In Maryland, a legislative election district, commonly called a legislative district, is a geographic area from which voters elect their representatives to the General Assembly.¹ The State Constitution delineates the procedure by which these districts are determined (Art. III, secs. 3, 4, 5).

Procedure for Establishing Legislative Districts. The Constitution requires the Governor to initiate the legislative reapportionment process. After each U.S. decennial census and after public hearings, the Governor prepares a plan setting forth legislative district boundaries. This plan must conform to requirements of the Maryland Constitution (Art. III, secs. 2, 3, 4). The Governor presents the plan to the Senate President and the House Speaker. They, in turn, introduce the plan as a joint resolution to the General Assembly by the first day of the regular legislative session in the second year following every census. Prior to the regular session, the Governor may call a special legislative session in which to present the plan.

The General Assembly, following each decennial census, may adopt by joint resolution a legislative district boundary plan. The plan must conform to Constitutional requirements (Art. III, secs. 2, 3, 4). If the General Assembly adopts such a plan by the 45th day after the opening of the regular session (in the second year following every census), that plan becomes law. If no plan has been adopted by the 45th day after the opening of the regular session, the Governor's legislative district plan becomes law.

The Constitution also provides for judicial review. Upon petition of any registered voter, the Court of Appeals may review the legislative districting of the State and may grant appropriate relief, if it finds that State districting does not conform to requirements of the federal or Maryland constitutions.

Division of Each County and Baltimore City into Legislative Districts. Legislative districts first were used for elections in 1800. From 1777 to 1799, voters found only one polling place in each county and in Baltimore City. This proved a hardship to those who lived far away. Since it was considered "... desirable that the full, free and fair voice of the people should be expressed in their choice of the functionaries of government," for the 1800 election each county and Baltimore City was divided into several election districts to afford citizens a polling site nearer their place of residence (Chapter 115, Acts of 1798). The newly formed election districts did not extend beyond the boundaries of each county or Baltimore City. Indeed, subsequent redistricting was confined to these borders until 1965, when election districts began to cross boundary lines of the counties.

Prior to statewide apportionment, legislative districts were local geographic areas. They were defined within the boundaries of individual counties or Baltimore City—Maryland's units of local government. Geographic representation gave each county, rural or suburban, an equal vote regardless of population. Place, for the most part, determined representation, certainly in the Senate. From the first popular election for senators in 1838, each county was allotted one senator. Baltimore City was granted one senator for each of its legislative districts. With the exception of Baltimore City, population had no bearing on the number of senators until 1965. Apportionment for electing delegates, however, was influenced by population and population was to become the basis of representation. Yet, dividing each county and Baltimore City into legislative districts did not produce districts of equal population.

Division of the State into Legislative Districts. To attain legislative districts of comparable population size, it became necessary to apportion not individual counties and Baltimore City but the entire State. In 1965, when "senatorial districts" were drawn to bring Maryland's practice closer to the principle of "one man, one vote," some legislative districts for the first time encompassed two or more counties' voters.

Not until 1974 did voters elect all members of the General Assembly on the basis of equal representation by population. Legislative districts reflecting this change were formed by a statewide apportionment, instituted by a 1972 Constitutional amendment that allowed districts to encompass part of a county, parts of adjoining counties, an entire county, or more than one county. Ratified by the voters on November 7, 1972, this amendment divided Maryland into 47 districts for the election of the 47 senators and 141 delegates who constitute the 188 members of the General Assembly (Chapter 363, Acts of 1972). This first statewide apportionment for the election of both houses of the General Assembly set standards which remain today. Voters in each legislative election district choose one senator to represent them in the Senate and three delegates to represent them in the House of Delegates. Each district may be divided into three delegate subdistricts or one multi-member delegate subdistrict. Each district must consist of adjoining territory, be compact in form, and of equal population (Const., Art. III, secs. 1-4). In districts that contain more than two counties or parts of more than two counties and where the delegates are elected at large by the voters of the entire district, no county or part of a county is allowed to have more than one resident delegate.

Pursuant to Article III, section 5, of the Constitution, the Governor presented the Legislative Reapportionment Plan of 1982 to the General Assembly on January 13, 1982, and it became law on February 26, 1982 (Joint Resolution no. 1, Acts of 1982). This second statewide apportionment retained 47 legislative districts but redefined their boundaries. The third statewide apportionment of 1992 also retained 47 legislative districts and redefined their boundaries.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY LEGISLATIVE DISTRICTING PLAN OF 1992

The Legislative Districting Plan of 1992 was presented by the Governor to the General Assembly on January 8, 1992, and became law on February 21, 1992 (Joint Resolutions 9 and 10, Acts of 1992; Code State Government Article, secs. 2-201 through 2-205). It is this plan that will apply when voters choose members of the General Assembly in the 1994 primary and general elections.²

The following descriptions of boundaries for legislative election districts refer to election districts, wards, and precincts by geographical boundaries as they existed in 1992. Precinct boundaries are dynamic. Changes occur to reflect population shifts and to ensure convenient polling places for all voters. Local boards of election supervisors can provide current information on precincts encompassed within each district.

The Department of Legislative Reference, as one of the two principal staffing agencies of the General Assembly, serves the legislature and its committees and provides information to the public about the General Assembly.

Originally created in 1906 to serve the Baltimore City Council, the Department also began assisting the General Assembly of Maryland in 1916 (Chapter 565, Acts of 1906; Chapter 474, Acts of 1916). The State's portion of the Department was transferred in 1965 to the Legislative Branch (Chapter 453, Acts of 1965). In 1966, the Department severed any affiliation with the City of Baltimore and established permanent offices in Annapolis (Chapter 571, Acts of 1966).

Historically, the principal functions of the Department have been to research and draft legislation for members of the General Assembly and to serve as a source for legislative bills, enactments, journals, documents, records, and the codifications of State and local laws.

The Department provides professional legal and research staff support to legislative committees, subcommittees, task forces, and commissions; provides ongoing statutory revision services for the General Assembly; and conducts legal and legislative research and offers specialized information services to the General Assembly and its committees. The Department also reviews and analyzes regulations proposed by Executive Branch agencies; provides legislative and general library resource materials and information services to the General Assembly and the public; and provides computerized services for legislative purposes, including the preparation of bills, laws, journals, and other documents, as well as automated searches of the law for information and research.

The Department operates through the Office of the Director and five Divisions: Legislative; Library and Information Services; Research; Computer Services; and Administrative Services.

LEGISLATIVE DIVISION

Michael I. Volk, Director
(410) 841-3848

The Legislative Division provides legal and related staff services to the General Assembly. The Division drafts and reviews nearly all bills and amendments introduced or considered by the General Assembly. The Division is organized under two main units: Committee Staffing and Legal Review; and Legislative Drafting and Statutory Revision.

COMMITTEE STAFFING & LEGAL REVIEW

Michael I. Volk, Director
(410) 841-3848

Committee Staffing. The Legislative Division provides professional legal staff to five of the ten major standing committees of the General Assembly (two Senate committees and three House committees), several joint statutory and special committees, several county delegations in the House of Delegates, and during the interim, several task forces and commissions. These staff members work under the specific direction of committee chairmen and under the general direction of the Division during and between the sessions of the General Assembly. The legislative analysts assigned by the Division provide advisory, legal, research and administrative support in an objective, nonpartisan manner to the committees.

Legal Review. In 1990, the Legislative Division established Legal Review as a separate component within the Division. Legal Review responds to requests for legal opinions and advice pertinent to legislation. This service is provided directly to members of the General Assembly and to Legislative Division staff. Legal Review also analyzes decisions of the Court of Special Appeals and the Court of Appeals and opinions of the Attorney General affecting the State's laws in order to keep members of the General Assembly informed of court decisions that may raise issues for the legislature.

Legal Review also reviews and analyzes regulations proposed by executive branch agencies on behalf of the Joint Committee on Administrative, Executive and Legislative Review, the statutory committee responsible for legislative oversight of the regulatory process. This review helps ensure agency compliance with statutory authority, legislative intent, and public notice requirements.

LEGISLATIVE DRAFTING & STATUTORY REVISION

William G. Somerville, Deputy Director & Revisor of Statutes
(410) 841-3870

Legislative Drafting. As part of its role in the enactment of Maryland's laws, the Legislative Division provides nonpartisan professional staff to research, draft, and prepare legislative bills at the request of members of the State Senate and House of Delegates. Each year, more than 3,500 bills and joint resolutions and over 2,000 amendments are drafted by Division staff.

After bills are introduced by members of the General Assembly, the Division continues to play a critical role in the legislative process by preparing, reviewing, coordinating, and processing individually sponsored and committee initiated amendments to bills. Amendments are formal changes that can alter significantly the content of a bill.

Statutory Revision. The statutory revision function of the Legislative Division originated as the Division of Statutory Revision, created in 1972 within the Department of Legislative Reference (Chapter 182, Acts of 1972). The Division, also known as the Code Revision Division, was incorporated into the Legislative Division in 1990 as an integral component of the drafting responsibilities of the Division. The statutory revision component develops and prepares the comprehensive revision and restatement of the Annotated Code of Maryland, i.e., the statutory body of the laws of Maryland (Code State Government Article, secs. 2-1315 through 2-1319).

The first reorganization and recodification of the Code since 1888 was begun in 1970 by the Commission to Revise the Annotated Code of Maryland. The Commission was charged to study and revise the Annotated Code in order to improve the organization, accessibility, utility, and clarity of law and to eliminate unconstitutional, obsolete, inconsistent or conflicting statutes. Until 1985, the Division of Statutory Revision worked under Commission supervision.

In 1985, the Legislative Policy Committee voted to continue the work of the Commission under a reorganized system of small committees with oversight from the Legislative Policy Committee and continuing review by the General Assembly. Organized to direct and assist in the revision process, this committee system includes the Code Revision Committee and individual article review committees for articles in production. Currently under review or planned are the following articles: Article 27; Ethics Law; and Insurance.

The General Assembly has enacted into law the following twenty-two articles: Agriculture; Business Occupations and Professions; Business Regulation; Commercial Law; Corporations and Associations; Courts and Judicial Proceedings; Education; Environment; Estates and Trusts; Family Law; Financial Institutions; Health—General; Health Occupations; Labor and Employment; Natural Resources; Real Property; State Finance and Procurement; State Government; State Personnel and Pensions; Tax—General; Tax—Property; and Transportation. Including the Insurance Article, approximately ten Articles remain to be completed or prepared and enacted into law in order to conclude the recodification process.

CODE REVISION COMMITTEE

Alan M. Wilner, Chairperson
(410) 887-2678

Appointed by the Legislative Policy Committee, the Code Revision Committee provides advice on the selection of proposed Articles and the composition of Article committees. Formerly the Article Selection Committee, the Committee received its present name in 1990.

The Library and Information Services Division provides reference and research services to committees, members, and staff of the General Assembly, and legislative information to the public.

Library. The Library collection of 66,000 volumes consists of Maryland laws and related legislative and legal materials; laws and publications of other states; federal documents; and general reference materials. The Department serves as an official depository for the publications of Maryland State agencies and for all local codes published by county and municipal governments (Code 1957, Art. 25, sec. 32A; Art. 25A, sec. 7; Art. 25B, secs. 7, 12; State Government Article, sec. 2-1312; Education Article, sec. 23-2A-01). Maryland Documents, a list of State agency publications, is issued monthly.

Library materials circulate to General Assembly members, their staff, and State agencies.

Information Services. Bill status and other legislative information is provided to the public through information desks in the State House and the Legislative Services Building, and through toll-free telephone numbers. Speakers, tours and materials on the legislative process are available for constituents, visitors, and school groups.

The Division coordinates the Department's publication program and is responsible for publication of the Committee Meetings and Hearing Schedule; Daily Synopsis; Maryland Clipper; indexes to bills, laws, and journals; as well as various rosters, flyers, videos, and brochures about the General Assembly and the Department.

RESEARCH DIVISION

Myron H. Miller, Director
(410) 841-3875

The Research Division responds to inquiries or requests from legislators, committees, and their staff on nonlegal issues with information, surveys, research, policy analysis, and problem-solving options.

Research analysts are trained in social sciences disciplines and participate in a nationwide information network of universities, governments, private laboratories, research centers, and professional organizations. Division analysts also provide staff support to special legislative committees, joint task forces, commissions, and the standing committees on specialized issues. Their support complements the legal counsel provided by the Legislative Division.

Although the Research Division primarily responds to questions raised by legislators, research analysts also initiate independent research on topical issues of potential interest to legislators. This research is published in the Legislative Report Series and Research Notes and may be found in the Department's Library.

COMPUTER SERVICES DIVISION

Michael C. Coffin, Director
(410) 841-3787

The Computer Services Division operates data processing equipment for the preparation of bills, the entry and maintenance of data into the bill status system, and the preparation of several departmental publications. These publications include committee hearing schedules, synopses of laws, and legislative indexes. The work of the Division's proofreading staff complements the Division's data processing.

GOVERNOR

During the colonial period, Maryland's Proprietors — the Lords Baltimore — designated who would serve as governor on their behalf. From 1692 when Maryland briefly became a royal colony to 1715, the crown appointed the governor. Lord Baltimore regained control of Maryland in 1715 and continued to choose a governor for the colony until the time of the American Revolution. Under Maryland's first constitution of 1776, the Governor was chosen annually by joint ballot of both houses of the General Assembly (Const. 1776, sec. 25). In 1838, by constitutional amendment, voters began to elect the Governor every three years from one of three rotating gubernatorial districts (Chapter 197, Acts of 1836, ratified 1837). This meant that only voters from a single gubernatorial election district selected the governor at an election. By 1851, the Governor's term of office was lengthened to four years (Const. 1851, Art. 2, sec. 1). The Constitution of 1864 eliminated gubernatorial election districts. Thereafter, since the election of 1868, the Governor has been elected by vote of the State's entire electorate.

The Governor is chief executive officer of the State and commander-in-chief of its military forces. Elected by popular vote for a term of four years, the Governor's term of office begins on the third Wednesday of January following election. No person may serve as Governor for more than two consecutive terms. To be eligible for the office of Governor, a person must be at least thirty years of age and must have been a resident and registered voter of the State for five years immediately preceding election (Const., Art. II, secs. 1, 3, 5, 8, 21, 21A).

To each annual session of the General Assembly, the Governor must submit a budget of government for the next ensuing fiscal year. The Governor also may inform the General Assembly at any time of the condition of the State (Const., Art. II, sec. 19; Art. III, sec. 52(3)).

Every bill passed by the General Assembly, except the annual Budget Bill, must be presented to the Governor before it becomes law. If the Governor approves the bill he may sign it, and if he disapproves he may veto it. Any bill that the Governor vetoes may be passed without his signature by three-fifths vote of the total number of members of each house of the General Assembly, either at the current session or at the session following. If a bill is presented more than six days before the General Assembly adjourns and is not vetoed within six days, or if a bill is presented within six days prior to the adjournment of the General Assembly and is not vetoed within thirty days after its presentation, then the bill becomes law without the Governor's signature. The Governor has the power to veto any part of an appropriations bill, in the same manner as other bills, without vetoing it in its entirety (Const., Art. II, sec. 17; Art. III, sec. 52(6)).

The Governor is commander-in-chief of the military forces of the State—the National Guard—except when such forces are called into the national service. If the National Guard is thus called, the Governor may establish a State Guard.

The Governor appoints all military and civil officers of the State subject to the advice and consent of the Senate, except when the election or appointment of such officers is otherwise provided for. In addition to appointing the heads of major departments, boards, and commissions of the State government, the Governor appoints certain boards and commissions in each county and the City of Baltimore, as provided for by law. The Governor also commissions notaries public and appoints persons to fill vacancies in the offices of Attorney General, Comptroller, and seats in the General Assembly. Any officer appointed by the Governor, except a member of the General Assembly, is removable by him for cause.

The Governor may grant pardons to persons convicted of criminal acts against the State, commute the sentences of prisoners of the State, and remit fines and forfeitures for offenses against the State. The Governor may extradite prisoners or persons wanted by other states upon the presentation of a writ of extradition and may issue a warrant for the arrest of any person so wanted. The Governor also may ask for the return to this State of any prisoner or person of another state wanted for the violation of the laws of Maryland (Const., Art. II, sec. 20).

The Division of State Documents was created within the Office of the Secretary of State in 1974 (Chapter 600, Acts of 1974). Appointed by the Governor, the Administrator is responsible for publication of the Maryland Register and the Code of Maryland Regulations (COMAR). The Administrator also oversees the Maryland Information Retrieval System (MIRS), a computerized information retrieval service for State statutes, regulations, proposed regulations, and Executive Orders (Code State Government Article, secs. 7-201 through 7-222).

The primary duties of the Division are to print and distribute two official State publications: (1) the Code of Maryland Regulations (COMAR), the permanent compilation of the Governor's executive orders, all State agency regulations, and all opinions issued by the State Ethics Commission; and (2) the Maryland Register, a bi-weekly publication that serves as a temporary supplement to COMAR.

The Register prints all proposed, adopted and emergency regulations of the State's administrative agencies; notices of public hearings and meetings; the full text of all opinions of the Attorney General; proposed and adopted rules of court; hearing calendars of the Courts of Appeal; synopses of all legislation proposed, enacted, and vetoed each legislative session of the General Assembly; all Executive Orders; all gubernatorial appointments; notices of bids requested and awards announced on all State contracts valued above $25,000; and any other document the General Assembly requires or the Joint Committee on Administrative, Executive and Legislative Review (AELR) permits to be published. An index to the Register is published quarterly and is cumulative throughout the year. All adopted regulations and Executive Orders that are generally permanent in nature are periodically taken from the pages of the Register and integrated into COMAR by means of published supplements.

With the exception of emergency regulations, administrative regulations are not effective until notice of their adoption is published in the Maryland Register. The text of any document appearing in the Maryland Register and COMAR is the only official, valid and enforceable text of that document. Any document appearing in the Maryland Register and COMAR is accorded judicial notice in all court proceedings.

The Chesapeake Bay Communications Coordinating Office was created by the Governor in November 1988 to promote public education and citizen involvement in the restoration of Chesapeake Bay (Executive Order 01.01.1988.16). To increase cooperation and reduce duplication of programs and materials used to teach people about the Bay, the Office coordinates Bay-related work of State government agencies.

The Office organizes a variety of education programs, including the State's Party on the Bay celebration each August, and raises funds from the private sector in order to sponsor educational, Bay-related events and activities. The annual Chesapeake Bay Bridge Walk held each May is coordinated by the Office, as is an annual volunteer cleanup day, Give a Day for the Bay. The Office developed and now markets the State's license plate campaign—Treasure the Chesapeake. The Office also produces the State's annual report on progress made in the Bay restoration.

Appointed by the Governor, the Director chairs the Communications Subcommittee of the Chesapeake Bay Program.

The Office for Children, Youth, and Families originated as the Office for Children and Youth in 1978 (Chapter 426, Acts of 1978). The Office was reorganized under its current name in 1990 (Chapter 419, Acts of 1990). The Office helps agencies, local governments, and organizations to carry out their responsibilities for children and youth effectively and economically. The Office also helps families and the general public learn about programs and services for children and youth.

The Special Secretary for Children, Youth, and Families oversees the general policy for children, youth, and family services in Maryland. That policy is to promote a stable, safe and healthy environment for children and families. As head of the Office for Children, Youth, and Families, the Special Secretary coordinates the work of government agencies to provide care through prevention, early intervention, and community services with priority given to children and families most at risk.

The Special Secretary evaluates public and private programs, services, and plans for children and their families to identify duplications and gaps in service delivery, program resources, inefficiencies, and unmet needs. For programs and services affecting children and their families, the Special Secretary analyzes departmental plans and budget requests; reviews federal, State, local and private funds used by and available to the State; identifies and collates relevant Governor's budget items; issues impact statements; and makes planning and expenditure recommendations annually to the Governor by September 15th and to appropriate department heads as needed.

The Special Secretary maintains liaison with State and local government agencies to coordinate services and the use of resources. From representative local Children's Councils and other child advocacy groups, including parents, the Special Secretary receives advice on the resources, needs, and priorities of different localities. In addition, the Special Secretary provides public information on children's services in the State and advises the legislature on the needs of children and their families.

The Special Secretary for Children, Youth, and Families is appointed by and serves at the pleasure of the Governor and is directly responsible to the Governor. Within the Office are the Children's Trust Fund Advisory Board; the Governor's Council on Child Abuse and Neglect; the Licensing Policy Board; the State Coordinating Council; the Children and Family Services Reform Initiative; the Governor's Council on Adolescent Pregnancy; and Prevention and Early Intervention for Young Children. The Office also maintains contact with twenty-four local Children's Councils (Code 1957, Art. 49D, secs. 1-29).

The Children's Trust Fund provides grants to public and private community-based organizations and agencies for innovative programs to prevent child abuse and provide treatment. Formed in 1989, the Children's Trust Fund Advisory Board reviews applications for grants from the Fund (Chapter 757, Acts of 1989).

The Governor appoints the Board's nine members to three-year terms (Code 1957, Art. 49D, secs. 6-7).

GOVERNOR'S COUNCIL ON CHILD ABUSE & NEGLECT

The Governor's Council on Child Abuse and Neglect was created by the Governor in 1986 (Executive Order 01.01.1986.07). The Council advises the Governor on the implementation and effectiveness of programs to prevent, detect, and treat child abuse and neglect. The Council is part of the Office for Children, Youth, and Families for budgetary, administrative and staffing purposes only.

LICENSING POLICY BOARD

Susan Kleinberg, Ph.D., Chairperson

Contact: Pam Williams (410) 225-4160

The Licensing Policy Board was formed by the Governor's Subcabinet for Children, Youth and Families in January 1991. The Board was created to develop a coordinated process for licensing and regulating residential child care facilities; identify and assure technical assistance to providers and potential providers; and track development of new residential resources.

In September 1991, the Board promulgated regulations to coordinate the licensing process for residential child care facilities in all agencies. Now, potential providers can learn about Maryland's licensing standards from one source. The Board also conducts technical assistance workshops and offers a manual for potential providers. In addition, the Board is developing core regulations covering common administrative and facility issues.

Board members include providers, consumers, and representatives from the State Department of Education, the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, the Department of Human Resources, and the Department of Juvenile Services.

CHILDREN'S COUNCILS

Local Children's Councils exist in each county and in Baltimore City. Within their jurisdictions, the Children's Councils evaluate public and private programs, services, and plans for children; analyze departmental plans and budget requests affecting children's programs and services; and review the use and availability of federal, State, local and private funds. They identify, document, and communicate needs, resources, and priorities to the local governing body and to the Office for Children, Youth, and Families. The Councils also provide public information on children's programs and services.

Each Council is appointed by the chief executive officer of the county. For Baltimore City, appointments are made by the Mayor. Each Council includes representatives of the local departments of health, education, and social services, and members appointed at large. Members serve three-year terms (Code 1957, Art. 49D, sec. 5).

STATE COORDINATING COUNCIL

Chairperson: Jean S. Clarren, designee of Secretary of Human Resources
Jon Hackbarth, Executive Director
(410) 333-1803

Formed by the Governor in 1982, the State Coordinating Council began as the State Coordinating Council for Residential Placement of Handicapped Children (Executive Order 01.01.1982.09). The Governor reestablished the Council within the Office for Handicapped Individuals in 1987 (Executive Order 01.01.1987.10). The Council was transferred to the Office for Children, Youth, and Families in 1990 (Chapter 419, Acts of 1990). In 1993, the Council received its present name (Chapter 556, Acts of 1993).

The Council has developed procedures for Local Coordinating Councils to assure that those children with disabilities in residential placement receive a complete plan of care. With the Local Coordinating Councils, the State Coordinating Council plans, coordinates, and monitors multiple-agency services for children with disabilities who may need or are in residential placement. It also maintains a multiple-agency information system that assures agency accountability to children with disabilities and enables the State to plan for needed services.

The State Coordinating Council consists of the Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene; the Secretary of Human Resources; the Secretary of Juvenile Services; the State Superintendent of Schools; and the Special Secretary for Children, Youth, and Families; or their designees. The Director of the Office for Individuals with Disabilities serves ex officio as a nonvoting member (Code 1957, Art. 49D, secs. 13-20).

CHILDREN & FAMILY SERVICES REFORM INITIATIVE

Donna Stark, Ph.D., Director
(410) 333-4285

The Children and Family Services Reform Project was established by the Governor in June 1988 (Executive Order 01.01.1988.09). Known as the Children and Family Services Reform Initiative, the Project seeks to create a model children and family services system.

Under oversight of the Governor's Subcabinet for Children, Youth, and Families, the Initiative coordinates interagency planning and budgeting for all State programs concerned with the needs of young children and adolescents who are abused, neglected, abandoned, emotionally disturbed, handicapped, or pregnant. Coordination also extends to programs for young runaways or substance abusers, as well as those who are dependent, homeless, habitually truant, ungovernable, or delinquent. Additionally, the Initiative coordinates programs for youth who are at-risk from these conditions and for their families.

The Initiative reviews State statutes and regulations on children and family services. It makes recommendations on the use of all available government and private resources for essential services for children and families. In selected areas, the Initiative also devises and implements new local service delivery systems. It then assists in extending those systems throughout the State under the direction of the Subcabinet.

PROJECT ADVISORY COUNCIL

Chairperson: Nancy S. Grasmick, Ph.D., Special Secretary for Children, Youth, & Families
(410) 333-4285

Formed by the Governor in 1988, the Project Advisory Council advises the Governor's Subcabinet for Children, Youth, and Families and the Department of Human Resources concerning the Children and Family Services Reform Initiative.

PREVENTION & EARLY INTERVENTION FOR YOUNG CHILDREN

Carol Ann Baglin, Executive Director

One Market Center
300 W. Lexington St., Box 3
Baltimore, MD 21201 (410) 333-8100

Prevention and Early Intervention for Young Children began in 1991 within the Office for Children, Youth, and Families. Under this unit, a comprehensive statewide strategy has been devised for prevention and early intervention services for young children (from birth to age 5) and their families. The strategy involves five initiatives: the State Commission on Infant Mortality Prevention; the Infants and Toddlers Programs; the Head Start Collaboration Network; the Office of Child Care Coordination; and the Family Development Communities Project.

STATE COMMISSION ON INFANT MORTALITY PREVENTION

Samuel C. Schwab, Chairperson, 1994
Carol Ann Baglin, Director

311 W. Saratoga St., Room 260
Baltimore, MD 21201 (410) 333-8100

The State Commission on Infant Mortality Prevention was created in 1991 (Chapter 413, Acts of 1991). The Commission was overseen by the Governor's Council on Adolescent Pregnancy from 1991 to December 1993, when it came under Prevention and Early Intervention for Young Children. The Commission works to reduce infant mortality in Maryland.

For maternal and infant health care, the Commission established a perinatal system by regions in the State. The Commission formulates policies and strategies to increase the availability of skilled health care providers for needy citizens and makes recommendations for a perinatal surveillance and data collection system.

In accordance with the Infant Mortality Prevention Strategic Plan, the Commission advises the Governor on distribution of community incentive grants to prevent infant mortality. These grants come from funds provided in the State budget for this purpose.

The Commission's twenty members are appointed by the Governor. Four serve ex officio. One member is a senator nominated by the Senate President; one is a delegate nominated by the House Speaker; one represents the Maryland Medical Assistance Program (Medicaid); and one represents the State Department of Education. The remaining members serve three-year terms (Code 1957, Art. 49D, secs. 30-36).

INFANTS & TODDLERS PROGRAM

Under the federal Education of the Handicapped Act (P.L. 99-457), Maryland receives federal funds to provide early intervention services statewide for infants and toddlers with developmental disabilities (from birth through age 3) and their families. Services include health and medical services, family training, counseling, and specialized child care.

In 1988, the State Department of Education was designated by the Governor to administer the federal early intervention program in Maryland (Executive Order 01.01.1988.15). The Maryland Infants and Toddlers Program initiated by the State Department of Education was transferred to the Office for Children, Youth, and Families in 1990 (Chapter 419, Acts of 1990).

MARYLAND STATE INTERAGENCY COORDINATING COUNCIL

Michael Bender, Ph.D., Co-Chairperson, 1996
Katharine Kahoe Cooper, Co-Chairperson, 1995
(410) 333-8100

In 1988, the Governor established the Maryland State Interagency Coordinating Council to advise the Maryland Infants and Toddlers Program in accordance with amendments to the federal Education of the Handicapped Act (P.L. 99-457; Executive Order 01.01.1988.15). In 1990, the Council was authorized by statute (Chapter 419, Acts of 1990).

The Council helps develop and implement the early intervention program and assists with interagency agreements and the identification of resources. The Council also serves as an advisory board for the program. To ensure interagency coordination and delivery of early intervention services, the Governor's Subcabinet for Children, Youth, and Families monitors the program.

The Council's fifteen members are appointed by the Governor with Senate advice and consent.

HEAD START COLLABORATION NETWORK

(410) 333-8100

Created in 1993, the Head Start Collaboration Network helps coordinate the services of the Head Start Program with those of other community services to better serve families in Head Start programs. The Network links Head Start services with those of health care providers, education agencies, child care programs, employment projects, and community organizations.

OFFICE OF CHILD CARE COORDINATION

(410) 333-8100

The Office of Child Care Coordination was formed in 1993. The Office coordinates policy, planning, and development for child care programs among State government agencies and with local planners, child care coordinators and advocates, and users of child care. The Office promotes and markets public/private partnerships for technical assistance and support in child care for employees, employers, and families.

FAMILY DEVELOPMENT COMMUNITIES PROJECT

(410) 333-8100

Funded through the Ford Foundation, the Family Development Communities Project started in 1993. The Project works to enable communities to enhance local resources and support systems for families with young children. Communities are encouraged to create a network of resources with which to begin educating young children before they enter school.

GOVERNOR'S COUNCIL ON ADOLESCENT PREGNANCY

Quentin R. Lawson, Chairperson, 1995
Ann Mulligan, Executive Director

300 W. Lexington St.
Baltimore, MD 21201

(410) 333-0270

The Governor's Council on Adolescent Pregnancy was established in 1986 (Chapter 121, Acts of 1986). The Council had been an independent agency located in the Department of Human Resources for budgetary and administrative purposes only. In 1990, the Council was transferred to the Office for Children, Youth, and Families (Chapter 419, Acts of 1990).

The Council works to reduce unplanned adolescent pregnancies in Maryland. To ensure a coordinated and comprehensive approach to social, educational, economic, health and legal problems of adolescent pregnancy and parenthood, the Council develops a statewide plan for reducing adolescent pregnancy and improving services to at-risk pregnant and parenting teenagers. The Council promotes interdepartmental, public and private coordination of policies and programs.

Appointed by the Governor, the Council consists of twenty members. Eighteen members are appointed to three-year terms. In 1977, the Office for Individuals with Disabilities originated within the Office of the Governor as the Office for the Coordination of Services to the Handicapped (Chapter 946, Acts of 1977). The Office was reorganized in 1984 as the Office for Handicapped Individuals (Chapter 295, Acts of 1984). It received its present name in 1991 (Chapter 103, Acts of 1991).

The Office identifies and evaluates programs and services for Maryland citizens with disabilities. It coordinates and supports public and private agencies serving people with disabilities, and provides an information and referral service.

The Office identifies and recommends ways to remove barriers to the delivery of services. It monitors and encourages State government compliance with laws and policies that affect persons with disabilities. At least quarterly, the Office also consults with and provides technical assistance to the Maryland Advisory Council for Individuals with Disabilities. In addition, the Office promotes the designation of local or regional offices to coordinate services to persons with disabilities. Authorization for the Office continues until July 1, 1994 (Code State Government Article, secs. 9-1101 through 9-1110).

Within the Office for Individuals with Disabilities are the Maryland Advisory Council for Individuals with Disabilities, the Maryland State Planning Council on Developmental Disabilities, the Governor's Committee on Employment of People with Disabilities, the Technology Assistance Program, and a staff specialist for the deaf and hard of hearing.

MARYLAND ADVISORY COUNCIL FOR INDIVIDUALS WITH DISABILITIES

Thomas J. Martin, Chairperson, 1995
(410) 333-3098

The Maryland Advisory Council for Individuals with Disabilities advises the Office for Individuals with Disabilities. The Council reviews statewide programs for persons with disabilities and fosters coordination and support for these programs.

The Council consists of twenty-eight members. Appointed by the Governor, twenty-four members represent public and private agencies and handicapped individuals. Four members serve ex officio (Code State Government Article, secs. 9-1106 through 9-1109).

MARYLAND STATE PLANNING COUNCIL ON DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES

Joanna L. Pierson, Chairperson, 1994
Susanne Elrod, Executive Director
(410) 333-3688

By Executive Order, the Governor created the Maryland State Planning Council on Developmental Disabilities in 1971 to carry out provisions of the federal Developmental Disabilities Services and Facilities Construction Act (P.L. 91-517), now the Developmental Disabilities Act (P.L. 98-537). In 1973, the Council was reconstituted to enable the State to qualify for certain federal grants. Formerly under the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, the Council was placed within the former Office for Handicapped Individuals in 1987 (Executive Order 01.01.1987.08). The Council now is part of the Office for Individuals with Disabilities.

The Council serves as an advocate for persons with developmental disabilities. The Council also develops the State plan on developmental disabilities and monitors, reviews, and evaluates its implementation. Annually, the Council awards funding for demonstration projects that enable people with developmental disabilities to become independent, productive citizens in their communities.

The Governor appoints the Council. At least half its members are persons with developmental disabilities or their parents or guardians, or immediate relatives or guardians of persons with mentally impairing developmental disabilities. Of these, at least one-third must be persons with developmental disabilities (U.S. Code, Title 42, sec. 6024).

GOVERNOR'S COMMITTEE ON EMPLOYMENT OF PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES

Paul Rendine, Chairperson, 1994
Marian S. Vessels, Executive Director
(410) 333-2263

The Governor's Committee on Employment of People with Disabilities originated in 1947 as the Governor's Committee to Promote Employment of the Handicapped. It was renamed the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped in 1979. In 1980, the Committee was placed under the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation in the State Department of Education (Executive Order 01.01.1980.12). The Committee became part of the former Office for Handicapped Individuals in 1987 (Executive Order 01.01.1987.09) and received its present name in 1989. The Committee now is within the Office for Individuals with Disabilities.

The Committee works to create a public awareness of the problems that people with disabilities face in finding employment and of the laws that ensure equal opportunity. It cooperates with all groups, public and private, in promoting services for individuals with disabilities. The Committee also initiates and publicizes programs to stimulate hiring of persons with disabilities.

The Committee encourages meaningful employment for qualified mentally, physically and emotionally disabled individuals as defined by the federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended. The Committee also informs people with disabilities of opportunities available for habilitation and rehabilitation so that they may develop marketable job skills.

The Committee sponsors annual conferences, awards programs, and poster and journalism contests to inform the public of employment and rehabilitation programs for Maryland's disabled citizens.

Appointed by the Governor, the Committee consists of thirty-five members who serve three-year terms. The Governor designates the chairperson. Local committees exist in many counties and in Baltimore City.

TECHNOLOGY ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

Mary E. Brady, Director

1-800-TECH-TAP

The Technology Assistance Program (TAP) provides information and technology services to people with disabilities. It is governed by the federal Technology-Related Assistance for Individuals with the Disabilities Act of 1988 (P.L. 100-407). Created in 1990, the Program is funded by a grant from the National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research of the U.S. Department of Education. Maryland was one of the first states to receive such a grant.

To enhance the quality of life for Marylanders with disabilities, the Program helps people to locate, evaluate, and purchase adaptive devices. The Program provides technology-related training and referral services in cooperation with the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. In 1990, the Program helped to form the Clearinghouse for Rehabilitation and Technology Information within the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

The Program has established three model technology demonstration centers with a main site at the Maryland Rehabilitation Center in Baltimore and sites in Cumberland and Salisbury where technology resource specialists serve. Since May 1990, the Program has helped over 10,000 people with disabilities to obtain assistive devices. Awards covered home renovation to accommodate a wheelchair, wheelchairs, telecommunication devices for the hearing impaired, and computer hardware and software.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Diane K. Ebberts, Chairperson

The Advisory Committee, formerly the Management Committee, was appointed by the Governor in December 1989 to oversee the Technology Assistance Program. The majority of its members are consumers, with State and private agencies that provide services to the disabled also represented.

COMPTROLLER OF THE TREASURY

Louis L. Goldstein, Comptroller of the Treasury

Goldstein Treasury Building
80 Calvert St
Annapolis, MD 21404—0466 (410) 974-3801

The office of the Comptroller of the Treasury was established in 1851. The Comptroller is elected by popular vote for a term of four years (Const., Art. VI, sec. 1). The number of terms a Comptroller may serve is not limited. The Comptroller must give a bond and keep the office at the seat of government. The Comptroller qualifies on the third Monday in January following election, but the qualifications to hold office are not stated either in the 1867 Constitution or in the Annotated Code of Maryland.

The Constitution enumerates the Comptroller's duties, beginning with the broad mandate to exercise "general superintendence over the fiscal affairs of the State, preparing plans for the improvement and management of revenue to support the public credit". More specifically, the Comptroller is to "preserve all public accounts, and decide on the forms of keeping and stating accounts"; to "grant, under regulations prescribed by law, all warrants for money to be paid out of the Treasury"; and to "superintend and enforce the prompt collection of all taxes and revenues". Jointly with the State Treasurer the Comptroller supervises the Central Payroll Bureau. The Comptroller (or deputies) countersigns all checks drawn by the State Treasurer upon the deposits of the State. The Comptroller prescribes the formalities for the transfer or other evidence of the State debt and countersigns such papers. The Comptroller administers and collects the following specific taxes: income tax, both personal and corporate; retail sales and use taxes; motor vehicle fuel tax; road tax on motor carriers; State tobacco tax; Maryland estate tax; and excise taxes on beer, wine, and liquor. Also administered by the Comptroller are the Abandoned Property and Dormant Bank Account Laws. Revenues collected by the Maryland Racing Commission as well as motor vehicle revenues are distributed to political subdivisions by the Comptroller's Office. Admissions and amusement tax revenues are collected by the Tax Compliance Division, at rates set by local officials, and distributed to political subdivisions.

The Comptroller prescribes the form of all licenses required by the State licensing laws, which are issued through the Clerks of the Courts of the various counties. Each month the Comptroller collects license revenues, State property transfer taxes, death taxes, and real and personal property taxes from the Clerks of the Courts, Registers of Wills, and County Treasurers of each county. Distribution of certain taxes and revenue is made to the cities, towns, and counties of the State and to other State agencies as prescribed by law (Code 1957, Art. 78B, sec. 19; Code Tax—General Article, secs. 2-201 through 2-203, 2-301, 2-302, 2-606 through 2-609, 2-614, 2-617, 2-901, 2-902, 2-1001 through 2-1004, 2-1506; Code Transportation Article, secs. 8-401 through 8-407).

By law, the Comptroller of the Treasury serves on the Board of Public Works; the Board of Revenue Estimates; the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation; the Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority; the Banking Board; the Board of State Canvassers; the Capital Debt Affordability Committee; the Maryland Food Center Authority; the Hall of Records Commission; the Maryland Higher Education Supplemental Loan Authority; the State Use Industries Advisory Committee; the Maryland State Employees Surety Bond Committee; and the Board of Trustees for Maryland State Retirement and Pension Systems. The Comptroller also chairs the Visitors and Governors of Washington College and serves on the State Employees' Health Insurance Advisory Council, and the Task Force on Chesapeake Bay Ferries.

In 1993, the Comptroller of the Treasury Office underwent a major reorganization. Functions were consolidated under four main bureaus: Financial Control; Revenue; Regulation; and Data Services.

The Comptroller's Comprehensive Annual Financial Report as well as pamphlets and booklets describing taxes collected by the Comptroller and offering advice on opening a new business and furnishing statistical information are available from the Office of Public Affairs (telephone: (410) 974-3885).

The Board of Revenue Estimates was created in 1945 (Chapter 991, Acts of 1945). The Board studies the findings and recommendations of the Bureau of Revenue Estimates. The Board then sends to the Governor, for submission to the General Assembly, an itemized statement of anticipated revenues for the next fiscal year. With the itemized statement, the Board submits its recommendations to the Governor.

The Board of Revenue Estimate is composed of three ex officio members: the Comptroller of the Treasury, the State Treasurer, and the Secretary of Budget and Fiscal Planning. The Director of the Bureau of Revenue Estimates serves as Executive Secretary to the Board (Code State Finance and Procurement Article, secs. 6-101, 6-102, 6-106).

By the end of each January and July, the Director of the Bureau, in conjunction with the Comptroller's Office, prepares and submits to the General Assembly an itemized statement of revenue estimates for the six-month period ending on the next preceding December 31 or June 30, as the case may be. The statement shows: estimated revenue from all sources for the current budget period; collections for the next preceding six-month period; and amount of revenues uncollected or over-collected (Code State Finance and Procurement Article, secs. 6-101 through 6-105).

The Revenue Administration Division was formed in 1993. It represents a reorganization of certain duties formerly assigned to the Income Tax Division and the Sales and Use Tax Division. The Division collects State and local income taxes from individuals, fiduciaries, and employers, as well as the corporation income tax. The Division distributes revenue to Maryland's counties, and incorporated cities and towns.

The Division oversees five sections: Administration; Revenue Accounting; Taxpayer Services; Taxpayer Accounting; and Returns Processing.

Created in 1993, the Compliance Division consolidates certain functions of the former Sales and Use Tax Division and the Income Tax Division. The Division operates a Central Registration Section, allowing individuals to register for sales tax, State income tax withholding, unemployment insurance, and admissions and amusement tax accounts on one form. The central registration form also serves as an initial registration for businesses that may be required to have State alcoholic beverage and tobacco permits or registration with the Motor Fuel Tax Unit.

The Division is responsible for five sections: Collection; Compliance Programs; Business Tax Audits; Investigative Services; and Hearings and Appeals. Also within the Division are units for Systems Support; Fiscal Administration; and Unclaimed Property.

Under the Constitution of 1776, two State Treasurers—the Treasurer of the Eastern Shore, and the Treasurer of the Western Shore—were elected by the House of Delegates. In 1841, the General Assembly consolidated the two offices. The Constitution of 1851 provided that a single Treasurer of the State should be elected by joint ballot of both houses of the General Assembly. Not until 1973 did the Legislature elect the first full-time State Treasurer. The State Treasurer serves a four-year term coinciding with that of the Governor.

The State Treasurer is responsible for the management and protection of State funds and property. In this connection, the Treasurer selects and manages the depository facilities for State funds, issues or authorizes agents to issue payments of State funds, invests excess funds, safekeeps all State securities and investments, and provides insurance protection against sudden and unanticipated damage to State property or liability of State employees.

The State Treasurer is the custodian of all stocks, bonds, promissory notes, certificates, and other negotiable investment instruments of the State, as well as those held in behalf of the Maryland State Retirement and Pension Systems, the Maryland Insurance Commissioner, foreign building and homestead associations, the Bureau of Mines; and all collateral pledged as security over deposits of State funds in Maryland banks.

The State Treasurer plans, prepares, and advertises State of Maryland General Obligation bond issues. With the approval of the Board of Public Works, the Treasurer arranges bond sales; prepares the State's Official Statement; receives bids; and arranges settlement, delivery of bonds, and tracking of the proceeds for these General Obligation bonds. Due to new restrictions by the federal government on income generated through the sale of tax-exempt obligations, the Treasurer most recently has played an increasing role in the administration of the State's capital program. In 1990, the State issued the first Maryland Mini Bonds, which are small denomination capital appreciation bonds. This program is administered entirely by the Treasurer.

Under authority delegated by the Board of Public Works, the State Treasurer is responsible for the procurement of all financial and insurance services of the State. In this regard, the Treasurer competitively procures services concerned with banking, investment, safekeeping, financial advice, debt underwriting, insurance protection, claims adjusting, investigations, and some printing (Const., Art. VI, secs. 1-6; Code State Government Article, secs. 5-101 through 5-107, 12-104).

By law, the Treasurer is a member of the Board of Public Works; the Board of Trustees of the Maryland State Retirement and Pension Systems; the Board of Revenue Estimates; the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation; the Hall of Records Commission; the Board of State Canvassers; the Governor's Salary Commission; the Maryland Health and Higher Educational Facilities Authority; the Maryland State Employees Surety Bond Committee; and the Procurement Advisory Board. The Treasurer also chairs the Capital Debt Affordability Committee, and the Maryland College Savings Bond Advisory Board.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS

Goldstein Treasury Building, Room 213

80 Calvert St.

Annapolis, MD 21401

(410) 974-3443

Maryland's first Board of Public Works, a nine-member body, was created in 1825 and abolished three years later (Chapter 166, Acts of 1825; Chapter 64, Acts of 1828). The Constitution of 1851 provided that four Commissioners of Public Works would be popularly elected to represent four regional districts of the State (Const. 1851, Art. VII, secs. 1-3). The Constitution of 1864 established the three-member Board of Public Works (Const. 1864, Art. VII, secs. 1-3).

The Board of Public Works is composed of the Governor, the Comptroller of the Treasury, and the State Treasurer. The Board exercises such powers and duties as are prescribed in the Constitution or delegated to it from time to time by the General Assembly. The Board approves the expenditures of all sums appropriated through State loans authorized by the General Assembly, as well as the expenditures of all general and other funds appropriated for capital improvements except those appropriated for State roads, bridges, and highways. The Board approves every new lease or renewal for land, buildings, or office space before such contracts are executed by any department, board, commission, State officer, or institution of the State. It also may designate the location of any State agency, after review by the Secretary of Budget and Fiscal Planning.

The Board may borrow upon the credit of the State, at any time between the sessions of the General Assembly, sums not to exceed $50,000 to meet temporary deficits in the Treasury. In addition, the Board may borrow upon the credit of the State total amounts not exceeding $1,000,000 in anticipation of the collection of taxes or other revenues, including the proceeds from the sale of bonds. All such loans bear interest at a rate determined by the Board, and must mature and be repaid at or before the end of the fiscal year in which the money is borrowed (Const., Art. III, sec. 34).

Upon recommendation of the Comptroller, the Board may adopt regulations covering matters of business administration in the various departments, institutions, and agencies of the State, including the fixing of uniform rates of mileage allowance and the terms and renewals of all bonds furnished by State officials and employees. The sale, lease, or transfer of any real property belonging to any State agency or institution must be approved and the conveyance signed by the Board and the highest official of the agency or institution. Where no agency or institution claims the property, the Board executes the conveyance. The Board of Public Works has custody of the General Emergency Fund, which is used to supplement the budgets of the agencies and institutions of the State. The Board also must issue a license to anyone who seeks to dredge or fill in State wetlands.

The Board of Public Works is required to adopt and promulgate rules, regulations, and procedures for the administration of the State Public School Construction Program and to approve the allocations which are to be paid to each of the counties and Baltimore City (Code 1957, Articles 15A, 23, 27, 31, 41, 43, 73B, 78A, 94A; Education Article; Estates and Trusts Article; Environment Article; Natural Resources Article; State Finance and Procurement Article; State Government Article; Transportation Article).

The Constitution requires the Board to meet in Annapolis on the first Wednesday of January, April, July, and October, and more often when necessary (Const., Art. XII, secs. 1-3). Usually, meetings are held weekly.

MARYLAND COLLEGE SAVINGS BOND ADVISORY BOARD

Chairperson: Lucille Maurer, State Treasurer
(410) 974-3443

The Maryland College Savings Bond Advisory Board was created in 1991 (Chapter 462, Acts of 1991). The Board advises the Board of Public Works on the issuance of college savings bonds.

The Board consists of four members. Two are appointed to three-year terms by the Governor. The State Treasurer, who chairs the Board, and the Secretary of Higher Education serve ex officio (Code Education Article, secs. 20-101, 20-102).

OFFICE OF SECRETARY

Sandra K. Reynold, Secretary

Goldstein Treasury Building, Room 213
80 Calvert St.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 974-3443

The Secretary of the Board of Public Works administers certain functions in connection with matters brought before the Board. For Board meetings, the office prepares one of several agendas considered by the Board and schedules the appearance of persons wishing to testify. The office notifies all affected parties of actions taken by the Board and prepares, distributes, and maintains the minutes of each meeting. A library of tape recordings and transcripts of each meeting also is maintained. The Board's operating budget, which contains grant programs to private agencies, institutions, colleges, and universities, is prepared and administered by this office.

PROCUREMENT ADVISORY COUNCIL

Chairperson: Sandra K. Reynold, Secretary,
Board of Public Works, & Procurement Advisor

Goldstein Treasury Building, Room 213
80 Calvert St.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 974-2375

The Procurement Advisory Council advises the Board of Public Works on problems with the procurement process and recommends improvements to that process. In accordance with recommendations of the Governor's Ad Hoc Committee to Study Article 21—Procurement, and as authorized by COMAR 21.02.01.09, the Board of Public Works originally established the Council on October 13, 1983. The Council was reconstituted in 1986 to include the State Treasurer; the Chancellor of the University of Maryland System; the Secretaries of Budget and Fiscal Planning, General Services, and Transportation; and a public member. The Secretary to the Board of Public Works serves as chairperson (Code State Finance and Procurement Article, sec. 12-105).

Appointed by the Board of Public Works, the Procurement Advisor develops and implements procurement regulations, analyzes procurement problems and issues, staffs the Procurement Advisory Council, and advises the Board on procurement matters.

In 1964, the Governor created the Advisory Council to the Board of Public Works on Higher Education Facilities Acts. The Council assists and makes recommendations to the Board of Public Works on matters pertaining to grant programs under the federal Higher Education Act of 1965. The Council reviews applications and recommends priorities for federal grants among the eligible institutions. It disseminates information and maintains liaison with Maryland colleges, the Board of Public Works, and the U.S. Office of Education.

The Governor designated the Board of Public Works to administer grant programs under the federal Higher Education Act of 1965 (P.L. 89-329, as amended). Title VII-A of the Act provides federal grants for institutions of higher education to finance construction of classrooms, laboratories, and libraries. When direct federal funding is not available, Title VII-C of the same Act provides federal grants to subsidize interest payments on bonds and mortgages used to finance such construction.

WETLANDS ADMINISTRATION

Harold Cassell, Wetlands Administrator

Goldstein Treasury Building, Room 209
80 Calvert St.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 974-2664

Anyone wishing to dredge or fill in State wetlands must first secure a license from the Board of Public Works (Chapter 241, Acts of 1970). The Wetlands Administration receives applications for licenses and conducts required public hearings. After holding a hearing and considering all information relevant to an application, the Wetlands Administrator prepares a written report to the Board of Public Works, recommending whether or not a license should be issued and if so, under what terms and conditions. Any licenses approved by the Board are issued by the Wetlands Administration.

Appointed by the Board of Public Works, the Wetlands Administrator coordinates the program with other State, local and federal agencies, and with environmental groups and the general public (Code Natural Resources Article, sec. 9-202).

The Interagency Committee on School Construction was established in 1971 to supervise public school construction in Maryland (Code Education Article, sec. 5-301). The State Superintendent of Schools chairs the Committee.

By December 7, each school system in the State annually submits to the Interagency Committee its capital improvement program for the following fiscal year, plus an updated continuing five-year plan. In consultation with local school board staff, the Committee either approves, defers, or modifies a school system's proposal. The Committee then submits a consolidated statewide capital improvement program with recommendations to the Board of Public Works, which acts at a special public meeting each January. Funding for approved allocations is made by the General Assembly.

Appropriations for the expense of administrative operations are included in the annual budgets of the Board of Public Works, the State Department of Education, the Department of General Services, and the Office of Planning. The three participating departments furnish staff to the Committee. The Executive Director is appointed by and works under the direction of the Committee.

ATTORNEY GENERAL

J. Joseph Curran, Jr., Attorney General

200 St. Paul Place
Baltimore, MD 21202 (410) 576-6311

The office of Attorney General was established by the Constitution of 1776 (sec. 48). In 1817, the office was abolished by Constitutional amendment (Chapter 247, Acts of 1816, ratified 1817). The General Assembly in 1818 recreated the office by statute (Chapter 146, Acts of 1817). By 1851, the Attorney General's duties were fulfilled by a State's Attorney in each county and in Baltimore City (Const. 1851, Art. V, sec. 3). The office of Attorney General was reestablished by the Constitution of 1864 (Art. V, sec. 1).

The Attorney General is elected by the voters for a term of four years (Const., Art. V, sec. 1). There is no limit to the number of consecutive terms which an Attorney General may serve. The Attorney General must be a citizen of the State and a qualified voter who has resided and practiced law in Maryland for at least ten years prior to election. The date on which the Attorney General takes office is not specified by law but customarily occurs on December 20 following the election. The Attorney General heads the Office of the Attorney General, formerly known as the State Law Department, which was established in 1916 (Chapter 560, Acts of 1916).

The Attorney General serves as legal counsel to the Governor, the General Assembly, the Judiciary, and to all departments, boards, and commissions of the State, except the Human Relations and Public Service Commissions (whose counsel is appointed by the Governor), and the State Ethics Commission (which appoints its own counsel). The Attorney General and assistant attorneys general represent the State in all matters in which the interests of the State are involved. This includes litigation in the Court of Appeals, the Court of Special Appeals, the Circuit Courts, the District Court of Maryland, as well as the Supreme Court of the United States, the United States Circuit Courts, and the United States District Courts. The Attorney General's Office represents the Clerks of Court, the Registers of Wills, the Sheriffs, and the State's Attorneys of the counties and Baltimore City. The Office does not represent the charter or noncharter counties, the County Boards of Education, the Boards of Supervisors of Elections (except in Baltimore City), or such other boards or officials of the counties that employ their own counsel. The Attorney General may render an opinion on any legal subject or matter upon the request of the Governor, the General Assembly (or either house thereof), or any department or agency of the State.

The administrative rules and regulations promulgated by any State officer or agency must be submitted to the Attorney General for review before they may become effective. The Office is responsible for enforcement of the State Securities Act, and for the Division of Consumer Protection and the Antitrust Division. It also directs the Medicaid Fraud Control Unit which investigates and prosecutes provider fraud.

The Attorney General serves on the Governor's Advisory Board for Justice Administration; the Commission on Correctional Standards; the Police Training Commission; the Correctional Training Commission; the Board of State Canvassers; the Criminal Justice Information Advisory Board; the Maryland State Employees Surety Bond Committee; and the State Prosecutor Selection and Disabilities Commission. The Attorney General also is a member of the Governor's Drug and Alcohol Abuse Commission.

ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

The Department of Agriculture traces its origin to the Maryland Agricultural College, chartered in 1856. After the federal Morrill Land Grant Act of 1862 offered each state proceeds from sales of federal lands to fund a college teaching agriculture and mechanical arts, the College became Maryland's land-grant institution in 1864. While certain agricultural duties were assigned briefly to the Superintendent of Labor and Agriculture in 1867, they later became the responsibility of the College (Constitution of 1867, Art. 10). As the State agricultural agency, the College regulated fertilizers (1886), and live stock sanitation (1888), and inspected nurseries, trees, feeds, tobacco, seeds, honeybees, and fruit. The College acquired an agricultural experiment station under the federal Hatch Act of 1887. Professors of the College and Experiment Station served as State Entomologist, State Pathologist, and State Horticulturalist to identify and eradicate insect pests and diseases (Chapter 289, Acts of 1898). Farmers' institutes were held during winter months until replaced by the Agricultural Extension Service, created by federal and State laws in 1914.

In 1908, the Board of Trustees of the Maryland Agricultural College became ex officio the State Board of Agriculture (Chapter 161, Acts of 1908). When the College merged with the University of Maryland in 1920, the University's Board of Regents assumed the responsibilities of the State Board of Agriculture. Although duties of the former trustees of the Agricultural College were solely concerned with agriculture, the Board of Regents became responsible for an entire university of diverse interests. To respond to the special needs of agriculture, the State created the Department of Agriculture in 1972 (Chapter 342, Acts of 1972). All regulatory and advisory functions were reorganized and transferred to the new Department, while agricultural research functions and the Extension Service were retained by the University.

Since agriculture is vital to Maryland's economy, the Department's main purpose is to help farmers produce high-quality commodities. To this end, the Department eradicates disease in livestock and poultry, controls insect pests and weeds which threaten field crops, inspects seeds and fertilizers to ensure maximum yields, and disseminates market reports and statistics to help farmers plan farm production. The Department also protects the environment by regulating the use of pesticides, implementing sound soil conservation methods, and preserving valuable agricultural land. To protect consumers, the Department inspects and grades agricultural commodities, oversees the practice of veterinary medicine, and inspects the weighing and packaging of a wide range of products. In addition, the Department promotes Maryland agriculture, seeks out new markets, and implements new initiatives such as aquaculture.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

Lewis R. Riley, Secretary of Agriculture

50 Harry S Truman Parkway
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-5880

The Secretary of Agriculture directs the Department. The Secretary is the chief executive officer and is appointed by the Governor with Senate advice and consent. Responsible for day-to-day operations, the Deputy Secretary is appointed by the Secretary with the Governor's approval.

The Secretary serves on the Governor's Executive Council; the Governor's International Cabinet; the Governor's Subcabinet for Energy Management; the Governor's Council on the Chesapeake Bay; the Governor's Commission on Growth in the Chesapeake Region; and the Governor's Pesticide Council. The Secretary also serves on the Maryland Food Center Authority; the Interdepartmental Advisory Committee for Minority Affairs; the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation; the Maryland Winery and Grape Growers' Advisory Board; the State Soil Conservation Committee; the Scenic and Wild Rivers Review Board; the State Use Industries Advisory Committee; and the Board of Regents, University of Maryland System.

The Office of the Secretary includes the Office of the Assistant Attorney General, internal audit, intergovernmental and public information functions, Chesapeake Bay Agricultural Programs, Marketing, and Aquaculture Development and Seafood Marketing (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 2-101 through 2-108).

Under the Secretary of Agriculture, the Department is organized into four main offices: Administrative Services; Food Safety and Consumer Services; Plant Industries and Pest Management; and Resource Conservation. The Department also is served by the Board of Review and the Maryland Agricultural Commission. The Secretary of Agriculture appoints the State Chemist, the State Veterinarian, and the Chief of Weights and Measures.

CHESAPEAKE BAY AGRICULTURAL PROGRAMS

Thomas W. Simpson, State Coordinator
(410) 841-5865

The Chesapeake Bay Agreement of 1987 committed the Bay states to reducing nutrient loadings of phosphorous and nitrogen into the Bay by 40 percent by the year 2000. In Maryland, agricultural and natural resources agencies, working in tandem with farmers, have developed a plan to curb nutrient runoff from farmland. The plan sets forth goals and actions needed to meet the commitments of the Bay Agreement.

Agriculture also is significant in the tributary focus of the Bay cleanup. The Department and its agricultural partners work with farmers across the State on nutrient reduction strategies for ten key tributary basins within the Chesapeake watershed.

BOARD OF REVIEW

Roger L. Richardson, Chairperson, 1996
(410) 841-5882

The Board of Review hears and determines appeals from any decision of the Secretary of Agriculture or agency of the Department subject to judicial review under the Administrative Procedure Act (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 2-401 through 2-405).

MARYLAND AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION

A. Orrell Saulsbury III, Chairperson, 1996
Laurie Green, Executive Director
(410) 841-5894

The Maryland Agricultural Commission was formed in 1961 as the Agricultural Advisory Board (Chapter 470, Acts of 1961). The Board was renamed the Maryland Agricultural Commission in 1968 (Chapter 552, Acts of 1968). The Commission's chief function is to advance Maryland agriculture and advise the Secretary of Agriculture on agricultural matters. The Commission proposes agricultural improvements, promotes State agricultural industries and products, and reviews legislation for its impact on agriculture.

The Commission consists of twenty members. Nineteen are appointed by the Governor for three-year terms. They include one consumer, and representatives of the dairy, poultry, livestock, tobacco, nursery, horticulture, field crops, turf, horse breeding, food processing and vegetable industries; the veterinary profession; the Maryland State Grange; the Maryland Farm Bureau; and services related to agriculture. The principal administrative officer for agricultural affairs at the University of Maryland System serves ex officio. (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 2-201 through 2-205).

DEPUTY SECRETARY

Henry A. Virts, D.V.M., Acting Deputy Secretary

50 Harry S Truman Parkway
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-5881

The Deputy Secretary oversees Marketing, and Aquaculture Development and Seafood Marketing, as well as the Maryland Agricultural Fair Board, the Tobacco Authority, and the Maryland Winery and Grape Growers' Advisory Board.

MARYLAND AGRICULTURAL FAIR BOARD

Philip Brendel, Chairperson, 1994
Katrina Bradshaw, Executive Secretary
(410) 841-5770

Forerunners of the Maryland Agricultural Fair Board include societies for the promotion of agriculture which flourished in Maryland, beginning in 1807 with the creation of boards of agriculture in twelve Maryland counties (Chapter 169, Acts of 1807). These boards were authorized to award premiums or medals for the promotion of agriculture. Other county societies and fair boards were created and, from time to time, the General Assembly appropriated money to them for agricultural fairs.

The Maryland Agricultural Fair Board was established as the State Fair Board in 1937 (Chapter 463, Acts of 1937). It received its present name in 1980 (Chapter 85, Acts of 1980). The Board encourages and fosters agriculture through the promotion and assistance of bona fide agricultural fairs and exhibits. It extends financial assistance to qualifying organizations for premium awards to exhibitors of agricultural displays. Annually, the Board issues Maryland Fair & Show Schedule, available upon request.

The Board consists of nine members appointed by the Governor to five-year terms (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 10-301 through 10-303).

TOBACCO AUTHORITY

Earl F. Hance, Chairperson, 1996

Raymond E. Hutchins, Executive Secretary
(410) 841-5770

Created in 1947, the Tobacco Authority investigates and studies phases of tobacco marketing or production in the State (Chapter 61, Acts of Special Session of 1947). The Authority provides information about the tobacco price structure and recommends legislation to provide more efficient handling of tobacco. Along with buyers and commission agencies, the Authority has a voice in fixing marketing periods, and it assures the accuracy of weights and measures used by tobacco commission selling agencies. The Authority also licenses commission agencies and purchasers and collects a fee from the owners of tobacco sold at a commission agency. To develop markets for Maryland tobacco, a representative of the Tobacco Authority visits manufacturers in foreign countries, as well as in the United States.

The Authority is composed of eight members appointed by the Governor for three-year terms. Authorization for the Authority continues until July 1, 2001 (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 7-201 through 7-209, 7-401 through 7-418).

MARYLAND WINERY & GRAPE GROWERS' ADVISORY BOARD

Vacancy, Chairperson

Contact: Desiree Mundell (410) 841-5770

The Maryland Winery and Grape Growers' Advisory Board was organized in 1987 (Chapter 507, Acts of 1987). The Board advises the Secretary of Agriculture on the allocation of funds to promote the production of Maryland grapes and wines.

The Board consists of nine members. Eight are appointed to three-year terms by the Governor upon recommendation of the Secretary of Agriculture. The ninth member is the Secretary of Agriculture who serves ex officio (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 10-1001 through 10-1007).

MARKETING

Errol Small, Chief

50 Harry S Truman Parkway
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-5770

The Marketing Services Section was reorganized as Marketing in 1992. Marketing helps everyone in the economy—from producer to consumer—through the market system. Programs include projects to improve quality and enhance presentation of agricultural commodities to the consumer; international marketing; market news and statistics services in conjunction with the U.S. Department of Agriculture; and a consumer marketing information program (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 10-101 through 10-204; 10-501 through 10-504; 10-601 through 10-606; 10-701 through 10-708; 10-801 through 10-807; 10-901 through 10-909).

The Section compiles the following publications:

Choose & Cut Christmas Tree Directory
Grain and Livestock (weekly)
Maryland Fresh Fruits and Vegetables Users Guide
Maryland Hay and Straw Directory
Maryland Retail Farmers' Market Directory
Maryland Tobacco Report (radio tape—in season)
Pick-Your-Own Fruit and Vegetable Directory
Wholesale Directory—Maryland Christmas Tree Growers

AQUACULTURE DEVELOPMENT & SEAFOOD MARKETING

Bradley H. Powers, Aquaculture Coordinator

50 Harry S Truman Parkway
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-5724

The National Aquaculture Act of 1980 set forth the federal policy of encouraging development of an aquaculture industry. In 1988, the Department of Agriculture was designated to promote development of aquaculture and coordinate State efforts in this field (Chapter 534, Acts of 1988).

Aquaculture, in Maryland, has been defined as an agricultural activity—the controlled cultivation and harvest of aquatic plants and animals. Potentially viable aquaculture crops in the State include striped bass and hybrids, oysters, and soft-shell crabs.

The Office of Aquaculture Programs was established by the Department in 1988 to coordinate the aquaculture programs of the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Natural Resources, and the University of Maryland System. By reorganization in 1992, the Office was renamed Aquaculture Development and Seafood Marketing.

AQUACULTURE ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Ernest F. Tresselt, Chairperson, 1994
(410) 841-5724

The Aquaculture Advisory Committee was created in 1988 (Chapter 534, Acts of 1988). In consultation with the Senate Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee and the House of Delegates Environmental Matters Committee, the Committee proposes legislation that promotes a major aquaculture industry for Maryland's tidal waters. In 1990, Committee recommendations helped create the Maryland Seafood and Aquaculture Loan Fund for expanding aquaculture or modernizing the seafood processing industry (Chapter 511, Acts of 1990).

The Committee consists of twenty-one members. Twelve are appointed to three-year terms by the Governor. Other members include a State senator designated by the Senate President; a delegate designated by the House Speaker; one representative each of the Departments of Agriculture, and Natural Resources, designated respectively by the Secretaries of those departments; a representative of the Tidewater Administration, designated by the Secretary of Natural Resources; and a representative of the University of Maryland College of Agriculture, designated by the Chancellor of the University of Maryland System. The Secretaries of Economic and Employment Development, the Environment, and Health and Mental Hygiene each designate a nonvoting member to represent their respective departments (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 10-1301, 10-1302).

SEAFOOD MARKETING

F. William Sicling III, Chief
(410) 841-5820

Seafood Marketing began in 1976 as an office within the Division of Economic Development under the Department of Economic and Community Development. In 1987, the Office of Seafood Marketing was transferred to the Department of Agriculture as Seafood Marketing Services. It was renamed Seafood Marketing Section in 1988, and simply Seafood Marketing in 1992.

Seafood Marketing promotes increased distribution and consumption of Maryland seafood. It also seeks efficient methods to reduce cost and improve the quality and marketability of seafood. Seafood Marketing publishes the Maryland Seafood Directory which lists processors, wholesalers, distributors, and seafood market suppliers for a full range of seafood and aquaculture products.

SEAFOOD MARKETING ADVISORY COMMISSION

William R. Woodfield, Jr., Chairperson, 1997
(410) 841-5770

In 1987, the Seafood Marketing Advisory Commission was created within the Department of Agriculture (Chapter 308, Acts of 1987). The Commission assists Seafood Marketing.

The Commission has thirteen members. The Governor appoints eleven members with Senate advice and consent and with the advice of the Secretary of Agriculture. The Secretary of Agriculture or designee, and the Secretary of Natural Resources or designee are nonvoting, ex officio members. Members serve four-year terms (Code Agriculture Article, sec. 10-1101).

OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES

Douglas H. Wilson, Director

50 Harry S Truman Parkway
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-5881

Under the Office of the Secretary, the Office of Administrative Services oversees the Department's fiscal, personnel, data processing and central services, as well as the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation.

MARYLAND AGRICULTURAL LAND PRESERVATION FOUNDATION

Dan C. Shortall, Jr., Chairperson, 1996
Paul W. Scheidt, Executive Director

50 Harry S Truman Parkway
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-5860

The Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation was created in 1977 (Chapter 784, Acts of 1977). The Foundation implements the Agricultural Land Preservation Program. The Program's intent is to preserve productive agricultural land and woodland in Maryland, provide for the continued production of food and fiber, curb the extent of urban sprawl, and protect agricultural land and woodland as open space. The Program depends on the cooperation of county governments, which appoint local agricultural preservation advisory boards. Participation in the Program is voluntary on the part of landowners.

By agreement with the Foundation, landowners may initiate the creation of an Agricultural Preservation District in which subdivision and development are restricted for at least five years. The creation of such a district protects normal agricultural activities and enables landowners to make application to sell a development rights easement. Based upon the availability of funds allocated by the counties, the Foundation may acquire easements in accord with a competitive formula defined by law and subject to local recommendation and appraisal. Easements thus acquired are perpetual but may be repurchased after twenty-five years if certain procedures and requirements are met. By gift, devise, bequest, or grant, the Foundation also may receive easements in gross or other rights to restrict the use of agricultural land and woodland.

Maryland has preserved more farmland than any other state. By 1993, Maryland had saved 256,512 acres in agricultural preservation districts and acquired permanent development rights easements on 102,709 acres.

The Foundation is governed and administered by a twelve-member Board of Trustees. Nine at-large members are appointed by the Governor. At least five of these must be farmer representatives from different areas of the State, and one must be a nonfarm representative from the Office of Planning. Three members serve ex officio. The chairperson of the Board of Trustees is designated by the Governor from the at-large trustees. Upon recommendation of the Board of Trustees at large, the Secretary appoints the Executive Director (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 2-501 through 2-515).

OFFICE OF FOOD SAFETY & CONSUMER SERVICES

Archibald B. Park, D.V.M., Assistant Secretary for Food Safety & Consumer Services

50 Harry S Truman Parkway
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-5782

The Office of Food Safety and Consumer Services began in 1973 as the Division of Animal Industries within the Department of Agriculture. By 1978, the Division was renamed the Office of Animal Health and, by 1980, the Office of Animal Health and Consumer Services. The Office was reorganized under its present name in 1992.

The Assistant Secretary for Food Safety and Consumer Services directs four sections: Agricultural Statistics Service; Animal Health; Egg Inspection, Grading and Grain; and Weights and Measures.

AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS SERVICE

M. Bruce West, State Statistician
(410) 841-5740

The Agricultural Statistics Service originated as the Statistical Reporting Service in the mid-19th century and received its present name in 1986. The Service collects, summarizes, and publishes data relating to the production and marketing of agricultural products, agriculture prices and income, and other statistics pertinent to agriculture and agribusiness. State statistics generally are available for acreage, yield, and production of major field crops, vegetables, fruits, livestock, and poultry; and monthly and seasonal or annual average prices, farm expenditures, and labor. For some commodities the Service also compiles county statistics.

The Service issues the following publications:

Maryland Agri-Facts (bi-monthly)
Weekly Delmarva Broiler Report
Weekly Crop and Weather Report

ANIMAL HEALTH SECTION

Roger E. Olson, D.V.M., Acting State Veterinarian
(410) 841-5810

Duties of the Animal Health Section originated in 1884 when the position of veterinary inspector first was created to suppress disease in livestock and prevent epidemics (Chapter 157, Acts of 1884). Today, the Section works to control and eradicate livestock and poultry diseases that have a significant economic impact on producers or pose a threat to human health due to their transmissibility from animals to people (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 3-101 through 3-503).

Within the Section are the State Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners and the State Board of Inspection of Horse Riding Stables.

STATE BOARD OF VETERINARY MEDICAL EXAMINERS

A. Cleveland Brown, V.M.D., President, 1994
Beverly A. Raymond, Inspector
(410) 841-5862

The State Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners was formed in 1894 (Chapter 273, Acts of 1894). The Board examines candidates for licenses to practice veterinary medicine in the State and judges their qualifications. It registers veterinarians annually, inspects veterinary hospitals, and may conduct hearings and pass upon complaints of illegal or unethical practices or sanitary requirements. Court proceedings may be instituted by the Board against persons engaged in illegal practices.

The Board is composed of seven members. They are appointed to five-year terms by the Governor upon recommendation of the Secretary of Agriculture and with Senate advice and consent. Five members are licensed and registered veterinarians who have engaged in active practice for five years. Of the five members, two must have practices devoted predominantly to large animals. Two members of the Board must not be veterinarians. Authorization for the Board continues until July 1, 2001 (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 2-301 through 2-313).

VETERINARY TECHNICIAN COMMITTEE

Irving E. Herling, D.V.M., Chairperson
(410) 841-5862

In 1984, the Veterinary Technician Committee was organized as part of the State Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners (Chapter 640, Acts of 1984). Subject to Board approval, the Committee registers and regulates veterinary technicians. It determines the qualifications for applicants, recommends the content and form of examinations, and establishes continuing education requirements for veterinary technicians. The Committee also defines duties and responsibilities of registered veterinary technicians.

The Committee consists of seven members appointed by the State Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners, subject to the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture.

STATE BOARD OF INSPECTION OF

Virginia B. Thackeray, Chairperson, 1996
Robin Miller, Inspector
(410) 841-5861

Created in 1968, the State Board of Inspection of Horse Riding Stables was transferred from the Department of Licensing and Regulation to the Department of Agriculture in 1980 (Chapter 474, Acts of 1968; Chapter 618, Acts of 1980). The Board licenses all horse riding stables where one or more horses or ponies are let for hire to be ridden or driven. It also licenses sales barns, establishments that stable five or more horses for pay, and establishments where annually five or more horses are sold.

With the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture, the Board may appoint a qualified inspector and designate officers of county humane societies, societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals, and licensed veterinarians to act as its agents and make inspections.

The Board consists of five members appointed to four-year terms by the Governor with the advice of the Secretary of Agriculture. One member is a licensed veterinarian, two are officers of county humane societies, one is an owner of a licensed stable, and one is a public member. Authorization for the Board continues until July 1, 2001 (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 2-701 through 2-719).

EGG INSPECTION, GRADING, & GRAIN

Deanna Baldwin, Supervisor
(410) 841-5769

In 1992, the Grading Services and Egg Inspection Section merged with the Grain Laws Section to form Egg Inspection, Grading, and Grain. The Section inspects and grades fruits, vegetables, grain, soybeans, and poultry at their production sites.

Graders follow U.S. Department of Agriculture grading regulations and affix federal grading stamps to products that meet quality standards (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 10-501 through 10-909).

The Section is responsible for the quality of eggs produced, distributed, and sold in Maryland. The Salmonella Enteritidis Program, enforced by the Section, requires that all eggs sold in Maryland must come from flocks of chickens which have been registered and tested. Inspections made by inspectors from the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene are reviewed by the Section. The Section developed the first program in the United States to trace eggs from flock to consumer, a program now copied by other states.

The Section enforces the restricted egg sections of the federal Egg Law. Restricted eggs are those not suitable for consumption due to cracks, blood spots, leaks, or other problems. All restricted eggs removed from consumer packs of eggs must be documented as to disposition. The Section removes from sale any eggs that do not meet federal and State standards (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 4-201 through 4-312).

The Section also licenses grain dealers. All bona fide grain dealers in the State, as defined by law, are required to register and secure an annual license (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 13-201 through 13-215).

WEIGHTS & MEASURES SECTION

Louis E. Straub, Chief
(410) 841-5790

The first Maryland law to regulate measures was enacted in 1641 (Chapter 2, Acts of 1641). At that time, the county sheriff was entrusted with the responsibility. The Weights and Measures Section continues to maintain and safeguard the State's primary standards as well as secondary standards and equipment for the enforcement of Maryland's Weights and Measures Law. The Section's Metrology Laboratory provides a wide variety of highly sophisticated measurements and calibrations in mass, volume, length, and thermometry.

The Section supervises the use and production of weighing and measuring devices, weights and measures, and packaged commodities offered for sale, sold, or in use in the State. This supervision extends to the methodology used to obtain accurate measurement and provides a means for value comparisons for consumers.

The Section licenses and tests personnel who determine butterfat content for dairies and milk cooperatives and personnel who calibrate farm milk tanks. It administers and enforces State laws for ensuring accuracy, equity, and the prevention of fraud in the sale and measurement of quantities, commodities, goods, or services (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 11-101 through 11-509).

OFFICE OF PLANT INDUSTRIES & PEST MANAGEMENT

Charles W. Puffinberger, Ph.D., Assistant Secretary for Plant Industries & Pest Management

Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-5870

The Office of Plant Industries and Pest Management originated in 1972 as the Division of Plant Industries. It became the Division of Plant Industries and Pest Management in 1980, and the Office of Plant Industries and Pest Management in 1984. The Office was reorganized in 1987 as the Office of Plant Industries and Resource Conservation. In 1990, the Office was reformed under its current name.

The Assistant Secretary for Plant Industries and Pest Management supervises programs concerned with plants, plant pests, pest management, and pesticides. The Assistant Secretary also coordinates these programs with local, State and federal officials. In addition, the Assistant Secretary manages cooperative agreements with local, county, State and federal agencies.

Under the Office are seven sections: Forest Pest Management; Mosquito Control; Pesticide Regulation; Plant Protection; State Chemist; Turf and Seed; and Weed Control.

FOREST PEST MANAGEMENT SECTION

Robert H. Tichenor, Jr., Chief
(410) 841-5922

Known as the Gypsy Moth Control Section until 1987, the Forest Pest Management Section protects forests by working to eradicate or control insect (particularly gypsy moth) infestations and disease.

The gypsy moth is the most destructive forest pest of the eastern United States. It harms trees in wooded residential areas, parks, and recreation areas. Consequently, the moth is the subject of a State and a national quarantine program. This pest has been present in Maryland since 1971. Despite an active suppression program, the gypsy moth continues threatening unprotected trees. The cooperative local, State and federal program to manage the moth is coordinated by the Annapolis office. Branch offices are located in Annapolis, Bel Air, Cheltenham, Cumberland, Denton, and Frederick.

MOSQUITO CONTROL SECTION

Cy Lesser, Chief
(410) 841-5870

The Mosquito Control Section provides statewide mosquito control services through a cooperatively funded program. Branch offices are located in College Park, Salisbury, and Leonardtown. Environmentally compatible temporary methods of insecticide application (adulticiding and larvaciding) and permanent methods (water management) are used to control mosquitoes. In addition to implementing control measures, the Section monitors the environmental impact of the program, develops effective control methods, and conducts epidemiological investigations of mosquito-borne diseases (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 5-401 through 5-405).

PESTICIDE REGULATION SECTION

Mary Ellen Setting, Chief
(410) 841-5710

Administration of the Pesticide Applicators Law began in 1973 under the Division of Entomology. By 1975, the work continued under the Pest Management Section. A separate Pesticide Applicators Law Section was formed in 1980 and became the Pesticide Regulation Section in 1987.

The Section regulates the use of pesticides in Maryland. It licenses businesses engaged in commercial application of pesticides; trains and certifies commercial and private pesticide applicators; and enforces the Pesticide Applicators Law and Regulations. The Section also provides technical advice on the use of pesticides.

The Chief is the State's authority on matters relating to pesticide use and application (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 5-201 through 5-211).

PLANT PROTECTION SECTION

William F. Gimpel, Jr., Ph.D., Chief
(410) 841-5920

The Plant Protection Section administers programs relating to nursery inspection, plant protection and quarantine, integrated pest management, and nuisance bird control. The Section also oversees programs for certified plant production, inspection and registration of honey bee colonies, and implementation of the Interstate Pest Control Compact.

The Section serves as the State's authority on plant pests and agricultural quarantines, and provides liaison for the Department with other State and federal regulatory agencies (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 5-301 through 5-313, 5-501 through 5-507, 5-701 through 5-716, 5-801 through 5-805).

STATE CHEMIST SECTION

Warren R. Bontoyan, State Chemist
(410) 841-2721

The office of State Agricultural Chemist was created in 1847 to help farmers rejuvenate worn-out tobacco land (Chapter 249, Acts of 1847). The Chemist analyzed soil throughout the State as well as marl and other mineral or vegetable deposits which might be applied as fertilizers, and lectured and publicized his findings. During the guano boom of the 1840s and 1850s, a Guano Inspector also analyzed all guano imported through Baltimore to ensure that farmers got that for which they paid. Modern equivalents of such duties are carried out by the State Chemist Section.

Formerly under the Office of Animal Health and Consumer Services, the State Chemist Section in 1987 was transferred to the Office of Plant Industries and Resource Conservation, which became the Office of Plant Industries and Pest Management in 1990. The State Chemist Section samples and chemically tests and analyzes commercial fertilizers, feeds, pesticides, soil conditioners, and liming materials sold in the State. The Section registers and examines the labels of these products as well. Its purpose is to determine if the products conform to standards established under Maryland laws governing quality, contents, and labeling. Measures are taken to protect the consumer and the dealer from unscrupulous or careless manufacturers.

The Section cooperates with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration in the inspection of feed manufacturing facilities that produce medicated feeds. To implement the federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA), the Section also works with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Additionally, Section chemists analyze meat and toxicology samples for the Office of Animal Health and Consumer Services; test fruits, vegetables, commercial feeds, and soils for chemical residues; and make other determinations as required by the Department (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 5-101 through 5-114, 6-101 through 6-117, 6-201 through 6-220, 6-301 through 6-310).

TURF & SEED SECTION

Malcolm L. Sarna, Chief
(410) 841-5960

As early as 1888, the General Assembly enacted legislation to protect farmers from unscrupulous seed salesmen making fraudulent claims. Today, the Turf and Seed Section works to assure the availability of sufficient quantities of certified turf and seed. It directs and conducts certification programs by which turf and seed are produced to meet standards of purity, variety, germination, and other quality factors. From the evidence of field inspections or laboratory analysis, the Section rejects seed or sod not meeting certification standards.

The Section also regulates the labeling of seed and sod at the time of marketing to help consumers determine what to purchase. A State testing laboratory is operated for both service and regulatory testing to assure compliance with label claims. The regulatory phase involves inspection, testing, reporting results, and corrective actions for each turf and seed lot found not to comply with provisions of the Turf Grass Law or the Seed Law (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 9-101 through 9-110, 9-201 through 9-213).

WEED CONTROL SECTION

Jesse J. Crook, Supervisor
(410) 841-5871

The Weed Control Section administers the Maryland Noxious Weed Law. This law requires landowners or those who possess and manage land infested with Johnsongrass, shattercane, or thistles to eradicate or control these noxious weeds by practices prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture. The noxious weed control program helps individuals manage noxious weeds through their own efforts and through a cooperative agreement between the State and participating counties. The Department encourages individuals to file a Noxious Weed Control Agreement, outlining methods and procedures for controlling noxious weeds on their land. Regulatory action may be taken against those who fail to control noxious weeds. The Weed Control Section also investigates complaints of multiflora rose-infested land used for agricultural production.

The Secretary of Agriculture has authority to declare other weeds noxious and place them under a control program. The Section Supervisor serves as the State's authority on weed control matters (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 9-401 through 9-405, 9-701 through 9-705).

OFFICE OF RESOURCE CONSERVATION

Rosemary Roswell, Assistant Secretary for Resource Conservation

50 Harry S Truman Parkway
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-5865

In November 1989, the Soil Conservation Administration was reorganized by the Department to form the Office of Resource Conservation. The Office works to control soil erosion and agricultural nonpoint source water pollution through agricultural soil conservation and water quality programs. The Office coordinates its efforts with other Department programs and with county, State and federal agencies. This includes managing inter-agency cooperative agreements. The Office consists of three sections: Program Planning and Development; Resource Management Services; and Resource Protection Incentives.

PROGRAM PLANNING & DEVELOPMENT

Louise Lawrence, Supervisor
(410) 841-5863

Program Planning and Development supports the work of the State Soil Conservation Committee and the Office of Resource Conservation by planning, developing, and coordinating policy, programs, and public information. The soil and water conservation work of the Office is coordinated with soil conservation districts, and agencies and organizations with related programs.

Under the Agricultural Water Management Program, Program Planning and Development helps public drainage associations maintain agricultural drainage projects. Interagency reviews of public drainage association plans for construction, reconstruction, operation and maintenance are conducted. Financial aid is made available to these associations through drainage maintenance cost-share agreements. Program Planning and Development also coordinates and evaluates the Nutrient Management Program, which helps individual farmers plan nutrient management.

STATE SOIL CONSERVATION COMMITTEE

Robert M. Davis, Chairperson,
Wicomico County, 1996

Louise Lawrence, Executive Secretary
(410) 841-5863

Established in 1937, the State Soil Conservation Committee works to retard soil erosion and non-point source pollution, conserve soil, and protect water quality (Chapter 436, Acts of 1937). Through twenty-four soil conservation districts covering the entire State (except Baltimore City), the Committee coordinates district work to apply scientifically sound and practical conservation measures ("best management practices") to Maryland lands. For each district, the Committee appoints four of the five persons who serve on a local board of soil conservation supervisors.

The State Committee helps districts secure aid from State and federal agencies for soil and water conservation, and certain phases of related land use programs. Areas of concern include nonpoint source pollution, watershed protection and flood prevention, siltation of streams and reservoirs, shore erosion control, and highway erosion control. They also involve forest and woodland conservation and development, the protection and propagation of wildlife, development of public land areas, and urban sediment and erosion control.

The Committee has eleven members. Six serve ex officio. Five are soil conservation district supervisors appointed to four-year terms by the Secretary of Agriculture from recommendations made by the districts represented (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 8-101 through 8-501).

NUTRIENT MANAGEMENT ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Louise Lawrence, Chairperson
(410) 841-5863

The Nutrient Management Advisory Committee was created in 1992 (Chapter 137, Acts of 1992). Nutrient management concerns soil fertilization and determining the amount, placement, timing, and application of animal waste, commercial fertilizer, sludge, or other plant nutrients to prevent pollution and maintain productivity. The Committee advises the Department on the certification and licensing of nutrient management consultants (Code Agriculture Article, secs. 8-801 through 8-806).

RESOURCE MANAGEMENT SERVICES

Royden N. Powell III, Chief
(410) 841-5896

Resource Management Services originated as the Resource Conservation Operations Section in 1989 and was reorganized under its present name in 1992. Resource Management Services administers State resources that support soil and water conservation programs on agricultural land and provides guidance and assistance to twenty-four soil conservation districts. It gives financial support to soil conservation districts for conservation programs. Resource Management Services also provides technical assistance to farmers and landowners on best management practices to control nutrient soil erosion and agricultural nonpoint source pollution.

RESOURCE PROTECTION INCENTIVES

F. Gould Charshée, Supervisor
(410) 841-5864

Resource Protection Incentives began as the Conservation Grants Section in 1989 and received its current name in 1992. This office conducts the Maryland Agricultural Water Quality Cost-Share Program (MACS) and the State Conservation Reserve Program (CRP).

Established in 1983, the Maryland Agricultural Water Quality Cost-Share Program reduces water pollution caused by nutrient and sediment erosion, animal wastes, or agricultural chemicals. The Program provides cost-share grants to individuals for installing best management practices on agricultural land.

The State Conservation Reserve Program provides annual payments to landowners or operators for certain acreage taken out of agricultural production and planted in vegetative cover for a ten-year period. The Program began in 1988 as an incentive for enrolling in a similar federal program administered by the U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

DEFUNCT DEPARTMENTAL AGENCIES

CONSERVATION GRANTS SECTION

Under the Office of Resource Conservation, reorganized in 1992 as Resource Protection Incentives.

GRADING SERVICES & EGG INSPECTION SECTION

Under the Office of Food Safety and Consumer Services, the Section was merged with the Grain Laws Section in 1992 to form Egg Inspection, Grading, and Grain.

GRAIN LAWS SECTION

Under the Office of Food Safety and Consumer Services, the Grain Laws Section was merged in 1992 with the Grading Services and Egg Inspection Section to form Egg Inspection, Grading, and Grain.

The Task Force studied factors that affect dairy farmers, including urban sprawl, land use and zoning regulations, environmental restrictions, federal price supports, the dairy industry in neighboring states, nutritional education, and business and herd management practices.

Task Force members represented dairy farmers, dairy cooperatives, other farm-related organizations, and the University of Maryland System.

The Task Force's final report of April 1993 included draft legislation to bolster the State's dairy industry by creation of a Maryland Milk Commission.

ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

The Department of Budget and Fiscal Planning was established in 1969 (Chapter 78, Acts of 1969). Its origins, however, date back to 1916, when, by constitutional amendment, Maryland became the first state to adopt the executive budget system (Chapter 159, Acts of 1916, ratified Nov. 7, 1916). Under this system, primary responsibility for the budget of State government is assigned to the Governor. During the nineteenth century, government agencies, private institutions, and citizens all submitted requests for appropriations directly to the General Assembly, a piecemeal approach which made fiscal planning difficult. No government agency coordinated the review of government revenues and expenditures to assure a balanced State budget. In 1900, the Board of State Aid and Charities was formed to examine certain requests for appropriations and make recommendations to the General Assembly. By 1902, the office of State Auditor was authorized to review expenditures of several State agencies. Yet, not until the executive budget system of 1916 was accountability for the whole State budget assigned to one office.

Under the executive budget system, the Governor is required to analyze the needs of State agencies and balance expenditures against anticipated revenues. To assist the Governor in preparing the budget and to consolidate State purchasing and budgetary functions, the Department of Budget and Procurement was formed in 1939, absorbing the Central Purchasing Bureau created in 1920 (Chapter 184, Acts of 1920; Chapter 64, Acts of 1939). The Department of Budget and Procurement was reorganized as the Department of Budget and Fiscal Planning in 1969 (Chapter 78, Acts of 1969). The Purchasing Bureau, formerly under the Department of Budget and Fiscal Planning, was transferred to the Department of General Services in 1970 (Chapter 97, Acts of 1970).

The major responsibilities of the Department of Budget and Fiscal Planning concern the budget of State government. They include budget development, supervision of budget execution, revenue estimating, and coordination of State information processing. The Department ensures that current fiscal needs are met, strives for efficiency in State government, and through evaluation and study of economic conditions, makes plans to meet future needs.

The General Administration Program of the Board of Public Works was assigned to the Department of Budget and Fiscal Planning by Executive Order in September 1981. ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

Maryland's commitment to develop economic and employment opportunities began in 1884 with the creation of the Bureau of Statistics and Information of the Industries of the State (Chapter 211, Acts of 1884). To guide development, government needed to know the agricultural, mineral and industrial output of the State, what commerce was moving through Maryland, and whether transportation networks functioned. In the late nineteenth century, with farm labor scarce and the labor reform movement gaining momentum, the Bureau also collected information on labor problems and abuses and reported annually to the General Assembly.

In 1892, the General Assembly directed the Bureau to collect statistics on labor, particularly wages and strikes; any information about agriculture calculated to attract immigration; and data on mineral products, manufacturing, transportation, shipping, and commerce (Chapter 29, Acts of 1892). The Bureau also was to receive reports from all officers and institutions of the State, publish the information in book form, and annually revise and republish. In 1902, operation of a free State employment agency was added to Bureau responsibilities (Chapter 365, Acts of 1902).

At the end of the nineteenth century as Maryland professed a shortage of labor, the State aggressively sought a new work force. In 1896, the Bureau of Immigration was formed to attract European immigrants (Chapter 295, Acts of 1896). The State Superintendent of Immigration was authorized to go to other states and Canada, and to visit Europe each year and "remain at least four months in the prosecution of his work visiting the different countries." The Bureau secretary was to be conversant in German, Dutch, and French (Chapter 282, Acts of 1898). The office in Baltimore City was to keep well supplied "for ready reference" with maps, pamphlets and other statistics on geography, agriculture, shipping, marketing, and the social, educational and other conditions of each county, as well as the quantities and character of land for sale and its price. Though the Bureau of Immigration was abolished in 1916, by the 1920s the Southern Maryland Immigration Commission continued to seek immigrants for work in Calvert, Charles, Prince George's and St. Mary's counties (Chapter 496, Acts of 1922).

The Bureau of Industrial Statistics was reorganized in 1916 as the State Board of Labor and Statistics. In addition to information gathering and employment agency duties, the Board was empowered to mediate labor disputes and enforce laws concerning hours of work and employment of women and minors.

A special legislative session in December 1936 enacted Maryland's unemployment compensation law. In compliance with federal law, it provided for free public re-employment offices. The Unemployment Compensation Board administered the laws with federal funds until 1947, when the Department of Employment Security was created with a Division of Employment Service and a Division of Unemployment Compensation.

Meanwhile, the State Board of Labor and Statistics was reconstituted as the Department of Labor and Industry in 1945, with its information gathering and employment agency functions intact. Its focus, however, gradually shifted towards regulating labor conditions, including issuance of work certificates to minors.

In 1948, another agency was formed to collect information about the State. Authorized by the Board of Public Works, the Department of Information began as a division of the Hall of Records Commission. In 1949, it became an independent agency (Chapter 665, Acts of 1949). The Department compiled data not only about industry and agriculture, but also natural resources, recreation, government, and history. To encourage a burgeoning tourist and outdoor recreation trade, the Department promoted Maryland and its products with films, photographs, pamphlets, and press releases.

Department of Economic Development. The Department of Information was superseded in 1959 by the Department of Economic Development (Chapter 185, Acts of 1959). Its mandate, to advance the economic welfare of Maryland citizens by developing the State's natural resources, industrial opportunities, and tourism potential, was carried out by three divisions: Business and Industrial Development; Research; and Tourist Development and Publicity. Another forerunner of the current Department, the Development Credit Corporation of Maryland, was created in 1959 to stimulate business and industry by making loans to small businesses when conventional financing was unavailable.

Department of Employment and Social Services. The move to improve administration of State government by grouping agencies with related functions under cabinet-level executive departments produced in 1970 the Department of Employment and Social Services and the Department of Economic and Community Development. In 1975, the Department of Employment and Social Services became the Department of Human Resources. Later, the Employment Security Administration (direct descendant of the Unemployment Compensation Board of 1936) was abolished and its responsibilities transferred from the Department of Human Resources to a new Department of Employment and Training (Chapter 64, Acts of 1983). The new Department also absorbed the Apprenticeship and Training Council from the Department of Licensing and Regulation.

Department of Economic and Employment Development. The Department of Economic and Employment Development was created in 1987 (Chapter 311, Acts of 1987). It contains agencies and programs formerly administered by its immediate predecessors, the Department of Economic and Community Development and the Department of Employment and Training.

To generate jobs in Maryland, the Department of Economic and Employment Development attracts new businesses, encourages the expansion and retention of existing facilities, and provides financial assistance and training. The Department publicizes Maryland's attributes, and markets local products at home and abroad to stimulate economic development, international trade, and tourism. For persons seeking employment, job match services, training, and unemployment insurance are provided. The Department also invests in the arts and promotes sports events.

Departmental objectives are pursued by six divisions: Business Resources; Business Development; Maryland International Division; Financing Programs; Employment and Training; and Tourism and Promotion. The Division of Administration provides support to the operational divisions.

For firms with export potential, the Office provides an outreach program of in-depth counseling and market information tailored to the particular needs of each firm.

With the cooperation of local and federal governments, trade organizations, and industry associations, the Office organizes Maryland representation at international trade fairs and promotional events to support Maryland's presence in the international marketplace. FINANCING PROGRAMS

Arthur S. Drea, Jr., Assistant Secretary for Financing Programs

217 East Redwood St.
Baltimore, MD 21202 (410) 333-6932

The Assistant Secretary for Financing Programs is responsible for the Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority; Maryland Small Business Development Financing Authority; Day Care Financing Programs; and Community Financing Group.

MARYLAND INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT FINANCING AUTHORITY

Joseph Haskins, Jr., Chairperson, 1994
Thomas H. Mullaney, Vice-Chairperson, 1997
John G. Fitzpatrick, Executive Director & Secretary
(410) 333-4263

The Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority (MIDFA) was created in 1965 (Chapter 714, Acts of 1965). The Authority provides financial assistance to enterprises seeking to locate or expand operations in Maryland.

MIDFA operates four loan financing programs. Under its tax-exempt Traditional Bond Programs, nonprofit organizations (501(c)(3)) can finance land acquisition and the purchase of all types of buildings and equipment. The Bond Insurance Fund is used as reserves for financial assistance provided under the Bond Programs.

Under its Conventional Loan Program, the Authority insures many types of conventional loans made by financial institutions. The Authorized Purpose Insurance Fund is used as reserves for loans and other obligations insured under the Conventional Loan Program.

MIDFA also may issue bonds under and in accordance with the Maryland Economic Development Revenue Bond Act.

Through the Traditional Program and its Bond Insurance Fund, the Authority may insure all or any part of the payments of principal and interest under tax-exempt economic development revenue bonds issued by Maryland counties, municipalities, industrial development authorities, and other Maryland public bodies to finance a specific facility for a manufacturing company. There is a $5 million ceiling on the insurance for each transaction. Certain revenue bonds are exempt from federal and Maryland income tax (but not from real estate or personal property taxes). Therefore, interest rates on these bonds are generally lower than interest rates on conventional loans.

The Bond Programs benefit companies by providing loans for a higher percentage of the costs of the facility, at a lower interest rate, and for a longer term than conventional financing.

Under the Conventional Loan Program or the Export Financing Program, the Authority may insure a loan or other obligation; insure the payment of premiums or fees necessary to obtain insurance, guarantees, or other credit support from a third party; or pay such premiums or fees. Insurance provided by the Authority may not exceed the lesser of either 80 percent (or 90 percent in the case of export financing) of the sum of the principal amount of the loan or other obligations plus accrued interest thereon, or $1 million per transaction.

To participate in MIDFA's programs, a company must generally qualify in each of three basic categories: legal eligibility, economic impact, and credit-worthiness (Code Financial Institutions Article, secs. 13-101 through 13-141; Federal Internal Revenue Code, sec. 146).

MIDFA's policy and decision-making body is a nine-member Authority. Seven members are appointed to five-year terms by the Secretary of Economic and Employment Development with the approval of the Governor. The Secretary of Economic and Employment Development or designee, and either the State Treasurer or Comptroller of the Treasury, as designated by the Governor, or their designees serve ex officio. The Authority appoints an Executive Director who serves as Secretary.

MARYLAND ENTERPRISE INCENTIVE DEPOSIT FUND

The Maryland Enterprise Incentive Deposit Fund was created in 1989 (Chapter 822, Acts of 1989). The Fund assists eligible small businesses in fixed asset financing. This financing assistance is provided through the placement of a certificate of deposit with a participating lender who agrees to make a five-year term loan to the business at a loan interest rate three percent less than the rate normally charged. Concurrently, the Fund agrees to accept an interest rate on the certificate which is three percent less than the market rate on certificates of similar maturity. This assistance may not exceed $500,000.

An eligible business is a for-profit business, employing 500 people or less, located in a county with a population of less than 200,000 and an unemployment rate at least 130% of the rate for the State during the most recent four consecutive quarters. The Fund is administered by the Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority.

MARYLAND SEAFOOD & AQUACULTURE LOAN FUND

Established in 1990, the Maryland Seafood and Aquaculture Loan Fund fosters expansion, modernization, and innovation in the seafood processing and aquaculture industries (Chapter 511, Acts of 1990).

The Fund can provide a loan of up to half the cost of a project with the maximum loan being $250,000. The interest rate on loans is fixed at a rate below the prime rate of interest at the time the loan is approved. Loans may be used for equipment, real estate acquisition, and construction of aquaculture parks, but not for working capital. The maximum loan term is 20 years. The Fund is administered by the Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority.

MARYLAND ENERGY FINANCING ADMINISTRATION

Luther B. Miller, Jr., Director
(410) 333-4782

Created in 1981 in response to federal funding initiatives for energy conservation and alternative source development, the Maryland Energy Financing Administration became affiliated with the Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority in 1988 (Chapter 141, Acts of 1988).

The Administration provides financial assistance to Maryland businesses for energy conservation or generation projects by issuing tax-exempt or taxable-rate revenue bonds or notes which provide below-market interest rates. If necessary, the Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority may insure all or part of such obligations.

TRADE FINANCE PROGRAM

Marie V. Torres, Director
(410) 333-8189

To encourage Maryland businesses to expand their efforts to export Maryland products and services, the Trade Finance Program was established under the Maryland Industrial Development Financing Authority. The Program is designed to provide pre-export working capital and/or financing of shipments abroad. Actual financing is provided by lending institutions, with the Authority serving as an insurer of the obligation.

The Trade Finance Program also works with the Export-Import Bank of the United States (Eximbank) to help Maryland businesses obtain financing assistance from Eximbank by packaging Eximbank's Working Capital Guarantee Program applications and obtaining foreign credit risk protection through the Foreign Credit Insurance Association's Umbrella Policy.

MARYLAND SMALL BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT FINANCING AUTHORITY

Gerald L. Feigen, Acting Chairperson, 1996
Stanley W. Tucker, Executive Director
(410) 333-4270

The Maryland Small Business Development Financing Authority (MSBDEFA) was created in 1978 (Chapter 879, Acts of 1978). To provide financial assistance to socially and economically disadvantaged businesses within the State, the Authority administers four programs: Government Contract Financing; Long-Term Guarantee; Equity Participation Investment; and Surety Bonding.

Government Contract Financing Program. For eligible firms with government or public utility contracts, the Authority may guarantee a loan from a financial institution or provide a direct loan for working capital and equipment. These guarantees or loans may be provided only as necessary to fulfill contracts on projects financed by federal, State or local government, or by a utility regulated by the Public Service Commission.

Long-Term Guarantee Program. For all eligible firms, the Authority may guarantee and/or pay an interest rate subsidy on a long-term loan made by a financial institution for working capital, acquisition and related installation of machinery and equipment, or necessary improvements to real property owned in fee simple by the applicant.

Equity Participation Investment Program. For all eligible firms, the Authority may invest up to 45 percent or $100,000 (whichever is less) as equity or debt needed to start a franchise operation. The Authority requires the initial investment to be recovered within seven years. The Authority also may invest up to 25 percent or $500,000 (whichever is less) as equity or debt needed to acquire an existing profitable business. The Authority requires the initial investment to be recovered within seven years. The Authority also may invest up to $500,000 as equity or debt needed by technology-based businesses.

Surety Bonding Programs. All small businesses are eligible. The Guaranty Assistance Program helps the small contractor secure bonding by guaranteeing up to 90 percent of the losses that a surety company incurs in the event of a breach of contract with a total exposure not to exceed $900,000. All small businesses are eligible for the Direct Bonding Program, which helps small contractors secure bonding by issuing bid, performance and payment bonds directly. Bonds issued under this program cannot exceed $250,000 each.

Programs of the Maryland Small Business Development Financing Authority are unique. A major criterion for approval of Authority guarantees and loans is the economic impact resulting from the use of available funds. This impact is measured according to the projected number of jobs retained and created, and the projected amount of tax revenue generated from the use of these funds.

The Authority's seven members are appointed to five-year terms by the Governor. The Secretary of Economic and Employment Development and either the State Treasurer or Comptroller, as designated by the Governor, serve ex officio (Code Financial Institutions Article, secs. 13-201 through 13-234).

DAY CARE FINANCING PROGRAMS

Joan Case, Director

(410) 333-4308

Formed in 1988, Day Care Financing Programs administers two funds to promote economic development, increase employment, and expand quality day care in Maryland. To aid employers and developers in the day care industry, the two financing funds provide financial assistance for small business owners.

The Day Care Facilities Loan Guarantee Fund was created in 1984 to help small businesses providing day care. The Fund finances up to 80 percent of loans by a lender. It is available for day care centers for infants, toddlers, and preschool age children, as well as elderly and medically handicapped adults. Loan proceeds can be used for the purchase of land, equipment, and supplies; renovation; building construction; and working capital (Code 1957, Art. 83A, secs. 6-20I through 6-213).

The Child Care Facilities Direct Loan Fund was formed in 1988 (Chapter 248, Acts of 1988). The Fund can be used for the construction, renovation, or acquisition of real property. It may not be used to finance the purchase of equipment and supplies, or working capital, or to refinance existing liens. A minimum amount of $15,000 can be borrowed from the Fund (Code 1957, Art. 83A, secs. 6-2A-01 through 6-2A-13).

COMMUNITY FINANCING GROUP

Roger E. Drechsler, Acting Director

(410) 333-4304

The Community Financing Group consists of the Maryland Industrial & Commercial Redevelopment Fund, the Maryland Industrial Land Act Program, and the Community Development Block Grant Program.

The Maryland Industrial and Commercial Redevelopment Fund (MICRF) began operations in 1980. To provide supplemental financing that supports local commercial or industrial redevelopment efforts, the Fund administers State loans, grants, and loan guarantees to local governments.

Fund money is used to promote private investment in industrial and commercial redevelopment projects that retain jobs, create new jobs, and increase tax revenues. MICRF funds may be expended directly by a local jurisdiction, or passed through to a third party committed to carrying out the project (Code 1957, Art. 83A, secs. 5-501 through 5-507).

The Maryland Industrial Land Act (MILA) Program began in 1972 (Chapter 360, Acts of 1972). The intent of the Program is to ensure appropriate sites for industry throughout the State. The Program may acquire and preserve such sites for the State in partnership with the local government (Code 1957, Art. 83A, secs. 5-401 through 5-414).

Annually, Maryland receives federal funds for the Community Development Block Grant Program administered by the Department of Housing and Community Development. A certain percentage of those funds is set aside to provide loans and grants to municipalities to assist in economic growth programs with an industrial or commercial focus. That set-aside amount is administered through Financing Programs in the Department of Economic and Employment Development.

DIVISION OF EMPLOYMENT & TRAINING

Charles Middlebrooks, Assistant Secretary

1100 North Eutaw St.

Baltimore, MD 21201

(410) 333-5070

TTY for deaf: (410) 333-5518

The Division of Employment and Training originated in 1937 as the Department of Employment Security (Chapter 314, Acts of 1937). The Department was restructured in 1970 as the Department of Employment and Social Services (Chapter 96, Acts of 1970). It became the Department of Human Resources in 1975 (Chapter 382, Acts of 1975). The Department's Employment Security Administration functioned until 1983 when the Department of Employment and Training was created as a principal executive department (Chapter 64, Acts of 1983). In 1987, the Department of Employment and Training was abolished and its functions were assigned to the Division of Employment and Training within the Department of Economic and Employment Development (Chapter 311, Acts of 1987). The Division coordinates the State's public and private resources for employment and job training (Code 1957, Art. 83A, secs. 3-101 through 3-408).

Within the Division are four offices: Employment Training; Employment Services; Unemployment Insurance; and Data Processing. The Division also administers local offices in each county.

STATE ADVISORY COUNCIL

(410) 333-5307

The State Advisory Council, known as the Unemployment Insurance Advisory Council, helps the Secretary of Economic and Employment Development formulate policies and resolve problems concerning administration of the Unemployment Insurance Law. The Secretary appoints the Council, which consists of public members, and an equal number of employer and employee representatives (Code 1957, Art. 95A, sec. 12).

BOARD OF APPEALS

Thomas W. Keech, Chairperson, 1993

Paul Zimmerman, Appeals Counsel

(410) 333-5030

The Board of Appeals, known as the Unemployment Insurance Board of Appeals, hears appeals on claims for unemployment insurance benefits. It also hears appeals that arise under the tax provisions of the Unemployment Insurance Law and other matters that require appellate adjudication, such as appeals associated with the Migrant and Seasonal Farm Worker Program.

Under the Board's jurisdiction is the Appeals Division. The Division conducts hearings on all claimants' or employers' appeals from unemployment insurance claims determinations in the Department's local offices. Claimants may appeal determinations disqualifying them for benefits, and employers may appeal determinations allowing benefits. An appeals referee hears all such appeals. Any aggrieved party may appeal to the Board. Final appellate recourse is to the courts of Maryland.

The Board's three members are appointed for six-year terms by the Secretary of Economic and Employment Development with the approval of the Governor (Code 1957, Art. 95A, secs. 7, 11).

MARYLAND OCCUPATIONAL INFORMATION COORDINATING COUNCIL

Jasmin Duckett, Director

Robert C. Schleiger, Ph.D., Chairperson

(410) 333-5478

VISIONS Hotline: 1-800-645-1992

Started in 1988, the Maryland Occupational Information Coordinating Council (MOICC) operates in accordance with the federal Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Education Act of 1990 (Title IV, Part C, secs. 422(a), 451(a)), and the Job Training Partnership Act of 1982 (secs. 125, 464). The Council improves coordination and communication among developers and users of occupational information to ensure that every Maryland citizen has the necessary occupational information for making career decisions. An interagency committee, the Council is linked to a network of committees in other states and to the National Occupational Information Coordinating Committee established in 1976 by federal law (the original Carl D. Perkins Vocational Education Act).

The Council disseminates VISIONS and VISIONS PLUS, Maryland's Career Information Delivery System. VISIONS, for middle and junior high school students, is a software program for classroom use that links education to the world of work. VISIONS PLUS is a comprehensive career planning and information system for high school students and adults. Currently, the Council has established 209 sites statewide for accessing Maryland's Career Information Delivery System.

OFFICE OF EMPLOYMENT TRAINING

Gary Moore, Executive Director

(410) 333-7200

The Office of Employment Training originated in 1976 as the State Manpower Planning Office within the Department of Human Resources. The Office was reorganized in 1979 as the Training and Employment Office of the Department's Community Programs Administration. In 1983, the Office became the Job Training and Placement Administration under the Department of Employment and Training. In 1987, the Division was renamed the Office of Employment Training under the Division of Employment and Training. The Office administers programs authorized by the federal Job Training Partnership Act. Under the federal Act, the State administers employment and training programs operated within Maryland for economically disadvantaged adults and youth, and dislocated workers. Programs encompass vocational training, counseling, and on-the-job training, as well as summer programs for youth. They also include those operated by local service delivery areas/private industry councils (SDA/PIC).

In accordance with federal law, the Governor designated twelve local service delivery areas, which consist of a county or group of counties. Each area has a private industry council that decides what particular employment and training services are needed in its area. Appointed by local government, the private industry councils consist of representatives of community colleges, local government, private industry, and State agencies.

The Office of Employment Training also supports the Department of Human Resources' management of the Job Opportunities and Basic Skills Program. Created by the federal Family Support Act, the Program offers employment training, education, employment support services, and job placement to recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children. The Office works with local private industry councils that operate the Program in conjunction with other local agencies of social services, education, and economic development.

OFFICE OF EMPLOYMENT SERVICES

Paulette Hall, Executive Director

(410) 333-5353

Functions of the Office of Employment Services date to 1902, when the Chief of the Bureau of Industrial Statistics was instructed to organize and operate a free State employment agency (Chapter 365, Acts of 1902). That responsibility in 1916 was transferred to the State Board of Labor and Statistics with the additional duty of investigating causes of unemployment and possible solutions (Chapter 406, Acts of 1916). Since 1936, the State's employment service also has administered the unemployment insurance law.

Created in 1937, the Department of Employment Security included the Employment Service Division. The Division continued to function under the Department of Employment and Social Services, created in 1970; and under the Employment Security Administration of the Department of Human Resources, formed in 1975. When the Department of Employment and Training was established in 1983, the Division became the Maryland Job Service under the Department's Job Training and Placement Division. In 1987, the Maryland Job Service became part of the Division of Employment and Training within the Department of Economic and Employment Development.

The Office of Employment Services, also known as the Maryland Job Service, provides a statewide public labor exchange to match employers with job seekers. The Office also carries out programs for Alien Registration, National Job Bank, Targeted Jobs Tax Credit, Statewide Vocational Counseling and Testing, Disabled Veterans Outreach, Local Veterans Employment Representative, Unemployment Insurance Work Test, and Migrant and Seasonal Farm Workers.

JOB SERVICE EMPLOYER COMMITTEES

STATEWIDE STEERING COMMITTEE

Richard Aarons, Chairperson

Christopher R. Norris, Vice-Chairperson

(410) 333-5353

Job Service Employer Committees were formed in the early 1970s. They include a statewide steering committee and 20 local committees that audit and advise local Job Service offices.

OFFICE OF UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Thomas S. Wendel, Executive Director

(410) 333-5306

In December 1936, the General Assembly was called into special session to pass Maryland's Unemployment Compensation Law. The Office of Unemployment Insurance originated as the Unemployment Compensation Board created by that special session. The Board was superseded by the Department of Employment Security in 1937 (Chapter 314, Acts of 1937). The Department's Unemployment Insurance Division administered the unemployment insurance law until 1970. In that year, the Department was reorganized as the Department of Employment and Social Services (Chapter 96, Acts of 1970). The new Department's Employment Security Administration carried on administrative duties and in 1975 was renamed the Unemployment Insurance Division of the Department of Human Resources (Chapter 382, Acts of 1975). In 1983, the Division was transferred to the Department of Employment and Training and renamed the Unemployment Insurance Administration. It became part of the Department of Economic and Employment Development in 1987 (Chapter 311, Acts of 1987).

Pursuant to the Maryland Unemployment Insurance Law, the Office of Unemployment Insurance supervises the Unemployment Insurance Program carried out by local offices (Code 1957, Art. 95A). The Office collects contributions from employers covered by the Law, collects quarterly wage information on covered employees, determines weekly benefits and eligibility in accordance with this wage information, and issues benefit checks to eligible claimants. It reviews benefit payments to determine if any were improperly made, recovers improper payments, and pays benefits to individuals who formerly worked in Maryland but now reside in other states. As provided by reciprocal interstate agreement, the Office also collects Maryland residents' claims against employers in other states.

Using an experience rating system, the Unemployment Insurance Law allows a reduced contribution rate for employers who maintain steady employment. All funds collected under the Law are deposited with the U.S. Treasury for the credit of the Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund of Maryland and may be used only to pay benefits.

BENEFITS & SPECIAL PROGRAMS SECTION

Allan H. Berman, Director
(410) 333-5309

The Benefits and Special Programs Section determines claimants' eligibility for unemployment insurance benefits. The Section administers the taking and processing of claims, adjudication of ineligible claims, and fraud detection and prosecution. The Section also oversees interstate combined wage and federal unemployment benefit programs.

CONTRIBUTIONS SECTION

Dennis C. Morton, Chief
(410) 333-5317

The Contributions Section establishes employer tax accounts and assigns rates, charges benefits, and collects taxes on each account. The Section also collects all delinquent accounts and maintains the Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund.

LOWER APPEALS SECTION

Gary Weidel, Administrator
(410) 333-5040

The Lower Appeals Section determines claimants' eligibility for unemployment insurance benefits. Following administrative review, the Section hears cases that have been appealed by claimants and employers.

R. Dean Kenderdine, Assistant Secretary

217 East Redwood St.
Baltimore, MD 21202 (410) 333-6611

The Division of Tourism and Promotion began in 1948 as the Department of Information, a division of the Hall of Records Commission. The Department became an independent agency in 1949. In 1959, it was reorganized as the Tourist Development and Publicity Division within the Department of Economic Development. When the Department of Economic and Community Development was formed, the Division was renamed the Tourism Division in 1970, the Division of Tourist Development by 1973, and the Tourist Development Office by 1981. Through these programs, the Division promotes Maryland's quality of life through advertising, and sponsoring publications and events. The Division also supports the arts and the production of films in Maryland.

The Office of Tourism Development promotes Maryland as a travel destination to stimulate the economy by the expenditures of domestic and international tourists. Through the Maryland State Arts Council, 127 arts organizations receive operating grants which support performances and exhibitions and the work of artists throughout the State. The Maryland Film Commission works to provide locations and facilities throughout the State for feature films, television programs, and commercials.

OFFICE OF TOURISM DEVELOPMENT

George E. Williams, Director

217 East Redwood St.
Baltimore, MD 21202 (410) 333-6611

Tourism is a major industry in Maryland. During 1990, tourism brought the State more than $7.3 billion in expenditures, created approximately 73,900 jobs, and generated nearly $315 million in State and local tax revenue. Showcasing Maryland's unique recreational, historical, and cultural attractions is the responsibility of the Office of Tourism Development.

The Office publicizes major events and notifies travel agents, tour operators, writers, and the Maryland travel industry about new attractions, services, and facilities.

Tourism publications inform the traveling public of Maryland's tourist attractions, accommodations, historic sites, State parks, camping facilities, and recreational opportunities. Updated annually, these publications include Maryland Travel and Outdoor Guide, Maryland Calendar of Events, and an official Maryland State highway map. They are available free upon request.

In addition to conveying information by mail and phone, the Office runs a visitors' center and guide service at the Maryland State House in Annapolis, and nine highway information centers. The Office's matching funds and cooperative marketing programs strengthen and support county and regional travel promotion councils as well.

The Office also works with travel and outdoor writers to provide tours of Maryland, research and information, and photographs and transparencies.

MARYLAND TOURISM DEVELOPMENT BOARD

George E. Williams, Executive Director
(410) 333-6611

The Board protects, preserves, promotes, and restores the natural, historical, scenic and cultural resources of Maryland; encourages the development of new tourism resources, products, businesses, and attractions in the State; and helps tourists travel through Maryland by ensuring the provision of signs, information aids, and other services. The Board reviews taxes, fees, licenses, regulations, and regulatory procedures that affect tourism and evaluates their impact on the ability of the tourism industry to create jobs and generate income. The Maryland Tourism Development Board Fund may be used by the Board to plan, advertise, promote, assist, and develop tourism and travel industries in the State.

Fifteen members constitute the Board. Eleven are appointed by the Governor with the advice of the Secretary of Economic and Employment Development and Senate advice and consent. ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

Before Maryland developed a system of public education in the nineteenth century, formal education was limited to the wealthy who educated their children abroad or in local academies and considered education the duty of parents, not government. The British concept of "free schools," privately endowed institutions providing a classical education to upper class children and subsidizing a few charity pupils, was influential. Nonetheless, legislative appropriations to private academies incensed farmers and poor folks who resented paying for the education of rich men's sons and thought any taxation to support schools was more of the same. Local opinion favored local control, and local politics resulted in the appointment of poor teachers, mismanaged funds, and voter apathy. The fervor of Jacksonian democracy led to strong public educational systems elsewhere but had little effect in Maryland. Concern for education was often expressed; consensus was rarely reached; and only when public outcry became quite insistent did the legislature act.

Colonial Education. In the colonial period, Maryland attempted to establish free schools. The General Assembly, in 1695, assessed a tax on the export of furs to raise funds for these schools. In 1696, certain gentlemen, having subscribed quite liberally themselves, were appointed as a board of trustees and visitors to establish first a free school in Annapolis, then one on the Eastern Shore, and ultimately a free school in each of the existing twelve counties, as funds allowed (Chapter 17, Acts of 1696). Yet, only one school was founded—King William's School (later St. John's College) in Annapolis. In 1717, another financing act taxed importation of Irish Catholic servants and Negro slaves to support public education (Chapter 10, Acts of 1717). Enough funds had accrued from the various taxes by 1723 for a distribution to be made to the twelve counties. Boards of trustees were appointed in each county and instructed to purchase one hundred acres of land in a central location with a dwelling house and other conveniences for a schoolmaster, who was to be paid twenty pounds per year (Chapter 19, Acts of 1723). A 1728 law specified that the schoolmaster was to teach as many poor children as the local board determined, indicating that the "free schools" were not tuition-free (Chapter 8, Acts of 1728). Apparently, schools established under the 1723 act soon were floundering due to lack of funds and qualified teachers, despite additional revenue from fines, forfeitures, and the estates of intestate persons. In several instances, county schools were absorbed by the flourishing private academies or consolidated with schools of adjoining counties.

Development of a Public School System. The idea that the new republic needed educated citizens had some impact in Maryland. In 1798, a prominent educator exhorted the General Assembly to establish a State board of education and a uniform system of public schools. In 1812, the State began to raise money for a Free School Fund by taxing the renewal of bank charters (Chapter 79, Acts of 1812). Legislation followed in 1816 providing for nine Commissioners of the School Fund in each county to distribute the Free School Fund (Chapter 256, Acts of 1816). Realizing that Fund monies would not be sufficient, five counties requested the first property tax assessment to pay for the education of poor children (Chapter 244, Acts of 1816). Caroline County voters were given the option of deciding whether their public school would be supported by voluntary contributions or property taxes (Chapter 250, Acts of 1816).

Some public schools were founded; a pattern of local diversity also was established with no statewide uniformity or accountability. The legislature kept passing local laws relating to public education for each county, and sometimes for the districts within a county. Legislative appropriations were continued to favored private academies, while the Free School Fund dribbled monies to the county boards which could divert funds to academies, invest the funds, or actually expend them on local schools.

A uniform system of primary school education for Maryland was attempted in 1825 (Chapter 162, Acts of 1825). Subject to referendum, the law was ratified only by a few counties and then amended repeatedly by local legislation until little uniformity remained. The act called for a Superintendent of Public Instruction to prepare a statewide plan for education and oversee its execution. The levy court in each county was to appoint nine commissioners of primary schools who would divide the county into school districts, call a meeting of the taxpayers of each district, and receive the county's share of the Free School Fund, accruing under the act of 1812. Taxpayers in each school district were to elect a clerk and three trustees, select a site for a schoolhouse, and vote on a rate of tax to support the district school. The trustees were in charge of building, repairing, and furnishing their district school, as well as hiring the teacher and submitting an annual report. Appointed by the levy court, school inspectors not only were to visit each school in the county, but also to certify teachers. This requirement may have reflected dissatisfaction with unqualified teachers; however, since no education was required to be a school inspector, the standards for teacher certification potentially could be very disparate.

Baltimore City was excepted from the provisions of the 1825 act if it established its own system of public education by 1830. This precedent caused problems later, as the vigorous resistance of Baltimore City to each successive attempt at a statewide system certainly caused several efforts to fail. Baltimore City opened its first public school in 1829, charged tuition of one dollar per term, and had an impressive percentage of its children, girls and boys, enrolled in schools.

In 1837, the General Assembly again considered public education. The interest on Maryland's share of surplus federal revenue (roughly one million dollars invested at 5%) was set aside to support free schools (Chapter 285, Acts of 1837). Half was to be distributed according to the proportion of white population; the other half was to be divided into twenty-one equal parts and a part allotted to each county and Baltimore City. In anticipation of these funds, the House Committee on Education had looked into the expediency of establishing a uniform system of public education and the propriety of using the State's share of surplus federal revenue for education. The Committee's report in 1836 favored a general system of public instruction supported by a combination of State funds and district taxation, such as that set up by the 1825 law, which since its passage had "slumbered on the statute book" (Maryland Public Documents, 1836, O). The report then cited Anne Arundel County as an example of the successful implementation of the act, even though it had been amended to meet local needs. Also, the Committee had been unable to obtain any statistical information about the Anne Arundel County schools and went by hearsay. The Committee could not agree on whether to continue support to academies and colleges or use those funds to establish a university. The majority thought that a university would benefit only the wealthy.

Despite the Committee's belief that the 1825 act made the best provision for schools in Maryland, the legislature in 1842 directed the Secretary of State, the Treasurer of the Western Shore, and the State Librarian to draft new legislation in the form of a code for the government of common schools and for the promotion of general education. They studied the organization of schools in New England and New York and concluded that Maryland's great deficiency was the lack of an administrative head. (Under the 1825 act, Maryland's Governor had appointed a Superintendent of Public Instruction, but after 1827 no one seems to have served in that capacity.) Northern states required annual reports from each school district which were then compiled for legislative review. In Maryland, the Committee in 1836 could not get statistics from just one county; for the 1843 report, statistics were requested from all twenty-one counties. Only fourteen responded, and the information submitted was incomplete. The proposed Code for the Support of Common Schools presented to the legislature in 1843 retained much of the local structure found in the act of 1825. It followed New York and Pennsylvania practice by designating the Secretary of State as Superintendent of Common Schools and also required local districts to raise revenues before State funds were released to them. The proposed code required of Baltimore City only an annual report and stopped appropriations to all private institutions and academies, except St. John's College and Charlotte Hall Academy. The code proposed in 1843 was never enacted.

Debate over public education continued at the Constitutional Convention of 1850-1851. Where legislation repeatedly failed, constitutional provision might succeed. The Convention's committee on educational matters recommended a permanent and adequate school fund, a uniform system of public school education, an elected superintendent of education, and a normal (or model) school to train teachers. Old grievances over distribution of the Free School Fund caused the proposal to be postponed. The more populous counties and Baltimore City believed a State system would continue to deprive them of their fair share of educational funds and smaller counties did not want to change a distribution which benefitted them. The proposal was not revived.

Maryland's first provision for uniform statewide education was adopted by the Constitutional Convention of 1864. Votes of Union soldiers helped ratify the Constitution of 1864 and, because an oath was required at the polls, many Maryland voters with Southern sympathies were disenfranchised. Only in effect for about two years, the Constitution of 1864 propelled public education forward, mandating a uniform system of free public education, a State Superintendent of Public Instruction, a State Board of Education, county school commissioners, an annual State tax to support free public education, and a permanent State school fund. The legislature was prohibited from passing local laws concerning education. The State Superintendent was appointed by the Governor and immediately was to submit a plan for the organization of free public education. If the legislature bogged down in old controversies and failed to enact a bill within the new constitutional framework, the plan of the Superintendent would become law. The State tax of ten cents on every hundred dollars of property was to be distributed to the counties and Baltimore City in proportion to their population between ages five and twenty years.

In 1865, the first State Superintendent of Public Instruction proposed the establishment of free primary schools, grammar schools, one high school per county, a normal school, and a university, as well as separate schools for Negroes, the blind, deaf, handicapped, and the imprisoned. Attendance would be compulsory. The General Assembly adopted portions of his plan. In 1865, Maryland shifted from local control of schools to a highly centralized system whereby the State Board with the State Superintendent selected textbooks, set the curriculum, certified teachers, approved school building designs, and distributed State funds. Appropriations to academies were continued just until county high schools could be established. Taxes assessed against Negroes were set aside for schools for Negroes under the jurisdiction of the State Board of Education, although few, if any, were started. In 1865, Maryland began a formal system of segregated schooling that would last for ninety years.

Opposition to State control came from the formerly disenfranchised voters of 1864 and from Baltimore City. They perceived the change as too sweeping, the cost too great. In 1868, the legislature returned control of educational matters to the counties (Chapter 407, Acts of 1868). Issues concerning local schools were to be referred to the voters, who elected both the Board of County School Commissioners and the Board of School House District Trustees. The State continued to fund the schools, however, through the ten-cent tax on every hundred dollars of property. The Principal of the State Normal School could receive reports from county boards and Baltimore City and make recommendations to the Governor and General Assembly, but had no authority. The reactionary law of 1868 was amended in 1870. A Board of State School Commissioners was created, appointed by the Governor. Under the new law, circuit court judges appointed boards of county school commissioners, who, in turn, selected district school commissioners (Chapter 311, Acts of 1870). Free public schools were mandated for Negro children in 1872, under the control of the existing county and district boards (Chapter 377, Acts of 1872). The office of Superintendent of Public Instruction was revived in 1900 with limited duties of collecting and diffusing information (Chapter 428, Acts of 1900). School attendance was made compulsory in 1902 for children between the ages of eight and twelve; children over age twelve were not required to attend school if they were gainfully employed and could read and write (Chapter 269, Acts of 1902).

State Department of Education. An educational survey was undertaken in 1914 at the legislature's behest after release of disturbing illiteracy figures for Maryland. Basically an indictment, the survey report had a major impact on shaping education in Maryland. The surveyors found inadequate buildings, frequent truancy, and badly trained teachers, supervised by political appointees poorly educated themselves. Funds were ample but distributed without regard for accountability. The Superintendent's office had almost no staff and no authority to implement changes. The survey demonstrated the need for efficient administration and supervision of schools and public school funds. In response, the General Assembly created the State Department of Education, headed by the State Board of Education, and administered by the State Superintendent of Schools, backed by professionally qualified staff (Chapter 506, Acts of 1916). Appointed by the Governor with no regard for political affiliation, county boards of education in turn appointed the county superintendent of schools and district school boards. Professional standards were set for State and county administrators, and standards for teachers were written into law. Policy was formulated at the State level and administered by professionals. Ages for compulsory school attendance were extended, minimum salaries for white teachers increased, and the school year lengthened in Negro schools.

In 1918, Maryland accepted provisions of the federal Smith-Hughes Act which added vocational education to the curriculum. State law was amended subsequently to establish a State Equalization Fund to aid poorer counties in 1922; create the State Teachers Retirement Fund in 1927; initiate education for all handicapped children through State and federal funding in 1929; and build schools for baby boomers with the School Construction Loan Fund of 1949. Desegregation of Maryland schools began in 1955.

The basic foundations were laid in 1916 for the current State Department of Education, which became a cabinet-level department in 1976 (Chapter 539, Acts of 1976). The general care and supervision of public education are vested in the Department, consisting of the State Superintendent of Schools, appointed by the State Board of Education, and the professional staff employed by the Board to assist the Superintendent.

The State Board of Education sets policy for the public school system and enacts the bylaws and regulations that govern it (Code Education Article, secs. 2-201 through 2-205). The Board also considers and mediates disputes arising from the twenty-four local independent school districts in Maryland. The Board, often through the office of the State Superintendent of Schools, consults and advises county boards of education, county superintendents of schools and their staffs, principals, and teachers. Appointed by the Governor, the State Board of Education is composed of ten members. Nine are appointed to five-year terms, and a nonvoting student member serves a one-year term.

With the advice and counsel of the State Superintendent of Schools and the staff of the State Department of Education, the Board prescribes basic policy and guidelines for instruction in public schools. The Board, with the State Superintendent's advice and counsel, also sets the standards for certification of teachers and other professional personnel employed in Maryland schools and establishes high school graduation requirements. If local school districts do not comply with State standards, the Board and the State Superintendent are empowered to recommend the withholding of State funds from those districts.

The Office of Maryland School Performance was reorganized in 1993 as the School Performance, Product, and Service Development Office.

The Office develops and implements plans to improve and accredit schools. The Office has developed a comprehensive accountability system for schools, school systems, and the State. Under this system, accountability is based on students' Maryland Functional Test Scores, yearly attendance, dropout rate, and promotion rate.

In November 1990, the Office issued its first report, Maryland School Performance Program Report, 1991—State and School Systems. The report provides a baseline picture of each school system and includes measures of performance that are expected to be reached by 1995.

PUBLIC LIBRARY & STATE NETWORK SERVICES BRANCH

Rivkah Sass, Chief

ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

In 1987, the Department of the Environment was created to protect and preserve the State's environmental resources. Prior to 1987, enforcement of laws and regulations pertaining to air and water quality, solid and toxic waste, sedimentation and stormwater runoff, and environmental health was delegated to units in the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, and the Department of Natural Resources.

The first State agency to have any of the responsibilities now overseen by the Department of the Environment was the Department of Health, created in 1874 and the precursor of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. Under the Department of Health, the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering was formed in 1912. The Bureau protected water purity, oversaw sewerage and water supply projects, and in time became concerned with industrial waste and air pollution. The Bureau was reformed as the Bureau of Environmental Hygiene in 1951 with divisions for sanitary engineering, industrial health, and air pollution (Chapter 75, Acts of 1951). When the Department of Health was reorganized in 1966, Environmental Health Services was created with a Bureau of Resources Protection overseeing water supply, sewage disposal, air quality, and solid waste disposal, while the Bureau of Consumer Protection was responsible for drug control, radiological health, and general sanitation.

Earlier, concern over Maryland's water resources had prompted formation of the Maryland Water Front Commission in 1929, and the Water Resources Commission of Maryland in 1933 (Chapter 522, Acts of 1929; Chapter 526, Acts of 1933). Both commissions in 1941 were absorbed into the Department of Geology, Mines, and Water Resources, which shared responsibilities for water supply with the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering (Chapter 508, Acts of 1941). In 1947, the Water Pollution Control Commission began to analyze and prevent pollution of streams and waters. These duties, in 1964, were assigned to the Department of Water Resources, as were water resource responsibilities, including oversight of well drillers, from the Department of Geology, Mines, and Water Resources (Chapter 73, Acts of 1964). The Department of Water Resources, like its predecessor the Water Pollution Control Commission, came under the jurisdiction of the Board of Natural Resources. In 1969, the departments under that board were consolidated to form the Department of Natural Resources.

Between 1960 and 1980 environmental groups, commissions, and councils alerted the public to the perils of environmental pollution and uncontrolled growth. In response, the General Assembly created the Radiation Control Advisory Board in 1960, the Air Pollution Control Council in 1963, the Air Quality Control Advisory Council and the Board of Certification of Water Works in 1967, the Water Sciences Advisory Board and the Board of Well Drillers in 1968, and the Board of Sanitarian Registration in 1969. Creation of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in 1970 made more federal programs and funds available, and new State agencies with environmental responsibilities were formed: the Maryland Environmental Service and Maryland Council on the Environment in 1970, the Noise Pollution Control Advisory Council in 1973, the Hazardous Substances Advisory Council in 1976, and the Council on Toxic Substances in 1979. To safeguard the environment, the General Assembly divided enforcement powers and planning capabilities mainly between units of the Department of Natural Resources and the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. Environmental programs were consolidated into one executive department when the Department of the Environment was created in 1987.

The Department of the Environment protects and restores Maryland's environment and safeguards the environmental health of Maryland citizens. These responsibilities encompass enforcement and regulation, long-term planning and research, and technical assistance to industry and communities in their efforts to handle pollution, waste disposal, and emergency spills of waste or oil.

The Department's four key programs are Air and Radiation Management; Waste Management; Water Management; and Chesapeake Bay and Watershed Management. Since these all affect the health of the Chesapeake Bay, the Department of the Environment has a crucial role in all initiatives to restore the Bay.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

David A. C. Carroll, Secretary of the Environment

2500 Broening Highway
Baltimore, MD 21224 (410) 631-3084

Appointed by the Governor with Senate advice and consent, the Secretary of the Environment heads the Department. The Secretary of the Environment appoints the Deputy Secretary with the Governor's approval.

In addition to administrative responsibilities, the Secretary of the Environment (or the Secretary's designee) is authorized to subpoena any person or evidence, administer oaths, and take depositions and other testimony. The Secretary also is responsible for investigating the influence of locality, employment, habit, and other conditions on health and for researching the causes of diseases and mortality, to the extent that they may relate to environmental factors. To obtain information about cancers caused by carcinogens and toxic substances and the incidence of these diseases, the Secretary may institute studies.

The Secretary serves on the Governor's Executive Council; the Governor's Subcabinet for Energy Management; the Governor's Council on the Chesapeake Bay; the Governor's Pesticide Council; the Chesapeake Bay Trust; the Interdepartmental Advisory Committee for Minority Affairs; the State Soil Conservation Committee; the Scenic and Wild Rivers Review Board; the Herring Run Public Watershed Association Commission; and the Implementation Committee of the Chesapeake Executive Council. The Secretary also chairs the Asbestos Oversight Committee and serves on the Appalachian States Low-Level Radioactive Waste Commission, and the Northeast Ozone Transport Commission.

COORDINATING OFFICES

Ronald Nelson, Deputy Secretary
(410) 631-3086

The Deputy Secretary coordinates the development and implementation of policies, procedures, and regulations to ensure that programs and services within the Department serve environmental needs.

OFFICE OF COMMUNITY ASSISTANCE

Timmerman T. Daugherty, Director
(410) 631-3172

The Office of Community Assistance was formed in 1991. The Office coordinates community outreach for the Department. As an ombudsman, the Office is the liaison between the Department and citizens, industry, local government officials, other State agencies, international contacts, non-profit organizations, regional advisory councils, media organizations, environmental advocacy organizations, local communities, and civic organizations. The Office develops constituent participation policies and informs the public of new programs, permits, and regulations. Under Maryland's Public Information Act, the Office responds to requests for departmental records and directs media relations.

OFFICE OF STRATEGIC PLANNING & POLICY COORDINATION

(410) 631-3114

Created in 1991, the Office of Strategic Planning and Policy Coordination coordinates strategic planning and manages Department programs for capital improvement. The Office coordinates and manages initiatives to prevent pollution and sets goals and policies for growth management. The Office coordinates its efforts with the Board of Public Works. The Office also develops and implements comparative risk and strategic planning initiatives.

OFFICE OF EMERGENCY & ENFORCEMENT COORDINATION

John Chlada, Director
(410) 631-4155

The Office of Emergency and Enforcement Coordination was established in 1992. In response to environmental and other emergencies, the Office coordinates planning and action by local, State and federal governments in cooperation with the private sector.

ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH COORDINATION

Shirin deSilva, M.D., Acting Director
(410) 631-3851

Environmental Health Coordination originated as the Division of Environmental Disease within the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. In 1987, the Division was made part of the Department of the Environment and renamed the Center for Environmental Health. In 1989, the Center was reformed to become the Environmental Health Program and, in 1992, Environmental Health Coordination.

Environmental Health Coordination advises the Department on the health effects of environmental conditions and on science-related environmental issues. The Office studies health and the environment, and coordinates risk assessment and, with local health agencies, the Department's environmental health program.

The Office oversees the Advisory Council on Lead Poisoning and two programs: Lead Coordination; and Environmental Health Assessment and Surveillance.

The Advisory Council on Lead Poisoning was established in 1986 (Chapter 404, Acts of 1986). The Council reviews rules and regulations relating to lead poisoning prevention and develops educational programs to eliminate lead poisoning.

The Council's twenty-one members are appointed to three-year terms by the Governor. The Senate President and the House Speaker, or their designees, serve ex officio as nonvoting members (Code Environment Article, secs. 6-601 through 6-608).

MARYLAND WATER QUALITY FINANCING ADMINISTRATION

Maria Markham Thompson, Director

(410) 631-3774

The Maryland Water Quality Financing Administration was created in 1988 within the Department of the Environment (Chapter 535, Acts of 1988). The Administration maintains and administers the Maryland Water Quality Revolving Loan Fund.

Local governments may secure financial assistance from the Fund for wastewater treatment facilities in accordance with Title VI of the federal Clean Water Act of 1987 (P.L. 100-4). The Fund finances loans to local governments for construction projects to abate and control water pollution and thereby improve water quality. Loans from the Fund may be used to buy or refinance debt obligations of local governments. They also may help guarantee or purchase insurance for bonds, notes, or other evidences of obligation issued by a local government (Code Environment Article, secs. 9-1601 through 9-1622).

FINANCE & ADMINISTRATION

Leslie A. Campbell, Director

Patricia E. Crosby, Deputy Director

2500 Broening Highway

Baltimore, MD 21224

AIR & RADIATION MANAGEMENT ADMINISTRATION

Merrylin Zaw-Mon, Director

Susan S. G. Wierman, Deputy Director

2500 Broening Highway

Baltimore, MD 21224

(410) 631-3255

State concerns with air quality and the effects of radiation were evident by 1951 when the Division of Industrial Health and Air Pollution was formed under the Bureau of Environmental Hygiene, Department of Health. The work of monitoring and regulating was restructured in 1966 when the Division of Air Quality Control was established within the Bureau of Resources Protection, and the Division of Radiological Health functioned under the Bureau of Consumer Protection. These divisions continued under the Environmental Health Administration in 1969, when the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene was formed. By 1977, under the Environmental Health Administration, Community Health Programs regulated the control of dangerous emissions through ionizing and non-ionizing radiation sources, while Air Quality Programs developed air resource management plans. Air Quality Programs were reorganized as the Air Management Administration by 1983 and, with the Division of Radiation Control of Community Health Programs, transferred to the Department of the Environment in 1987 (Chapter 306, Acts of 1987). In 1992, the Administration was reorganized as the Air and Radiation Management Administration to include the Radiological Health Program.

The Administration develops and implements programs for cleaner air. To this end, the Administration monitors ambient pollutant levels of air across the State and devises plans to achieve and maintain air quality standards. To control air emissions, the Administration makes and enforces regulations and issues permits that set emission standards for construction or operation of equipment that emits to the atmosphere. The Administration sets standards for the Motor Vehicle Emissions Inspection Program, and, with the Department of Transportation, manages the Program. The Administration also licenses asbestos removal contractors and investigates and resolves complaints of noise pollution.

The Administration works through seven programs: Air Quality Policy, Planning, and Regulation Development; Air Monitoring and Information Systems; Air Toxics and New Source Permits; Enforcement; Community Environmental Services; Mobile Sources Control; and Radiological Health. The Air Quality Control Advisory Council, the Environmental Noise Advisory Council, and the Radiation Control Advisory Board support the Administration's work.

AIR QUALITY CONTROL ADVISORY COUNCIL

Gordon M. Rapier, Chairperson, 1996

Staff: Caryn Coyle (410) 631-3260

The Air Quality Control Advisory Council originated as the Air Pollution Control Council in 1963 (Chapter 806, Acts of 1963). It received its present name in 1967 (Chapter 143, Acts of 1967). Formerly under the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, the Council was placed within the Department of the Environment in 1987 (Chapter 306, Acts of 1987). The Council advises the Department on rules and regulations to control air pollution.

The Council consists of not more than fifteen members appointed by the Secretary of the Environment. Three members represent the general public. Additional members include a physician; a professional engineer nominated by the Baltimore section, American Society of Chemical Engineers; a chemical engineer nominated by the Maryland section, American Institute of Chemical Engineers; and two persons employed in a manufacturing or public utility business in Maryland nominated by the Maryland Chamber of Commerce. One member belongs to and is recommended by the Baltimore Metropolitan Council. One member is nominated by the Maryland Association of Counties. Four members are selected, one each from nominees of the Chancellor, University of Maryland System; President, The Johns Hopkins University; President, Maryland State-District of Columbia AFL-CIO; and Chairperson, Board of Directors, Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments. Terms of members are five years, except for the Baltimore Metropolitan Council representative whose term coincides with membership on that council (Code Environment Article, secs. 2-201 through 2-206).

ENVIRONMENTAL NOISE ADVISORY COUNCIL

Vacancy, Chairperson

Staff: Michael J. Caughlin (410) 631-3215

The Environmental Noise Advisory Council began in 1973 as the Noise Pollution Control Advisory Council (Chapter 709, Acts of 1973). It was renamed the Environmental Noise Advisory Council in 1974 (Chapter 287, Acts of 1974). Formerly under the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, the Council became part of the Department of the Environment in 1987 (Chapter 306, Acts of 1987). The Council advises the Department on environmental noise standards and sound level limits.

The Council's five members are appointed by the Secretary of the Environment for five-year terms. One member is nominated by the Acoustical Society of America. One member must be a physician specializing in hearing, nominated by the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of the State of Maryland. The third member is nominated by the Chancellor of the University of Maryland System. Two members represent the general public; they may be nominated by the Maryland State Chamber of Commerce, the Maryland Transportation Federation, the Maryland Environmental Trust, or other environmental groups (Code Environment Article, secs. 3-201 through 3-205).

AIR QUALITY POLICY, PLANNING, & REGULATION DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

George Aburn, Administrator

(410) 631-3245

The Air Quality Policy, Planning, and Regulation Development Program was created in September 1988. The Program tracks State and federal laws and regulations pertaining to air quality. To control air pollutant emissions, the Program develops plans and regulations that help the State meet National Ambient Air Quality Standards.

AIR MONITORING & INFORMATION SYSTEMS PROGRAM

Edward L. Carter, Administrator

(410) 631-3280

Created in September 1988, the Air Monitoring and Information Systems Program operates a state-wide air sampling and monitoring network and collection stations for acid deposition. Regularly, the Program prepares air quality data reports and manages air data bases for other programs. The Program also conducts special sampling studies for toxics and other purposes.

AIR TOXICS & NEW SOURCE PERMITS PROGRAM

Ronald E. Lipinski, Acting Administrator

(410) 631-3225

The Air Toxics and New Source Permits Program was established in September 1988. The Program reviews applications and issues permits for businesses to construct new industrial processes or modify existing ones that might become sources of air pollution. The Program also ensures compliance with emission standards for toxic air pollutants from new and existing sources. Permits also are issued to allow businesses to sell or burn waste oil with specified equipment.

ENFORCEMENT PROGRAM

B. Frank Courtright, Acting Administrator
(410) 631-3220

Organized in September 1988, the Enforcement Program conducts inspections and enforces air pollution laws and regulations affecting industries that are major and technically demanding stationery sources of air pollution. The Program also administers the Operating Permit Program of the Air and Radiation Management Administration.

COMMUNITY ENVIRONMENTAL SERVICES PROGRAM

Frank D. Whitehead, Administrator
(410) 631-3200

The Community Environmental Services Program has been responsible for State asbestos and noise programs since September 1988. The Program enforces air quality standards as they relate to areas such as asphalt plants, quarries, special medical waste incinerators, and training for incinerator operators. The Program responds to all citizen complaints regarding air pollution and coordinates emergency responses of the Air and Radiation Management Administration.

Through a departmental reorganization in 1993, divisions of the Industrial Operations Program were transferred from the Toxics, Environmental Science and Health Administration to the Community Environmental Services Program. The Program now is responsible for four divisions: Asbestos Licensing and Enforcement; Field Services and Noise Control; Industrial Hygiene; and Asbestos Accreditation and School Assistance.

INDUSTRIAL HYGIENE DIVISION

James W. Lewis, Administrator
(410) 631-3843

The Industrial Hygiene Division began in 1989 as the Industrial Operations Program under the Toxics, Environmental Science and Health Administration of the Department of the Environment. The Program was reorganized into a division under the Air and Radiation Management Administration in 1992 and was renamed the Industrial Hygiene Division in 1993.

For State agencies and facilities, local schools, and county health departments, the Division provides technical consultation on exposure to toxic substances and support for industrial hygiene. The Division identifies environmental hazards in State facilities; advises how to manage and control these hazards; and oversees implementation of the programs of the Asbestos Oversight Committee, which is responsible for the management and removal of asbestos in all State facilities. The Division also trains and medically monitors all State employees who routinely work with asbestos; and helps Maryland schools comply with federal laws regulating the control of asbestos in public and private schools.

MOBILE SOURCES CONTROL PROGRAM

Vacancy, Administrator
(410) 631-3270

The Mobile Sources Control Program was formed in September 1988 to deal with mobile sources of air pollution. The Program sets standards for motor vehicle emissions and helps administer the Motor Vehicle Emissions Inspection Program (VEIP).

RADIOLOGICAL HEALTH PROGRAM

Roland G. Fletcher, Administrator
(410) 631-3300

The Radiological Health Program originated in 1959 as a radiation protection section within the Department of Health. By 1967, the section had evolved into the Division of Radiological Health. When Maryland became a party to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission Agreement in 1971, the Division was reorganized as the Division of Radiation Control within the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. In 1987, the Division became part of the Department of the Environment and was renamed the Center for Radiological Health. In 1989, the Center was reorganized as the Radiological Health Program under the Toxics, Environmental Science and Health Administration. Restructured in 1992, the Program was placed under the Air and Radiation Management Administration.

In accordance with the Maryland Radiation Act, the Program regulates all radiation sources in the State. This responsibility includes licensing, registration, and enforcement of regulations that cover both ionizing and nonionizing radiation sources, by-product material, and limited quantities of special nuclear material. The Program also establishes requirements for persons engaged in the business of testing for radon (Code Environment Article, secs. 8-101 through 8-601).

RADIATION CONTROL ADVISORY BOARD

Robert Hiscock, Chairperson, 1993

Staff: Roland G. Fletcher (410) 631-3300

The Radiation Control Advisory Board originated in 1960 (Chapter 88, Acts of 1960). Formerly under the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, the Board was transferred to the Department of the Environment in 1987 (Chapter 306, Acts of 1987). The Board advises and consults with the Secretary of the Environment on matters relating to radiation.

The Board's twelve members are appointed by the Secretary of the Environment for four-year terms. Two members represent the community at large (Code Environment Article, secs. 8-201 through 8-205).

WASTE MANAGEMENT ADMINISTRATION

Richard W. Collins, Director
Vacancy, Deputy Director

2500 Broening Highway
Baltimore, MD 21224 (410) 631-3304

Functions of the Waste Management Administration originated in 1912 with the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering in the Department of Health. In 1951, the Bureau became the Division of Sanitary Engineering under the Department's Bureau of Environmental Hygiene. Certain functions of the Division in 1966 were assigned to the Division of Solid Waste Disposal under the Bureau of Resources Protection. As the Division of Solid Wastes, the Division was placed under the Environmental Health Administration, when the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene was formed in 1969. The Division was renamed the Division of Solid Waste Control by 1973 and assigned to Community Health Programs by 1977. Also under the Environmental Health Administration by 1977 was the Toxic Substances Control Program. Elements of these programs were combined by 1980 as the Waste Management and Enforcement Program of the Environmental Health Administration. The Program was reorganized as the Waste Management Administration by 1982, became part of the Department of the Environment in 1987, and was renamed the Hazardous and Solid Waste Management Administration in 1988 (Chapter 306, Acts of 1987). It received its current name in 1992.

The Administration provides for the safe collection and disposal of solid wastes. It regulates and inspects industrial facilities that treat wastewater and controls the transport, storage, and disposal of hazardous substances.

Industrial wastes may not be discharged nor designated hazardous substances disposed of without an Administration permit. The Administration conducts inspections to assure compliance with the conditions of permits, certifications, and licenses that have been issued and investigates reported water and pollution violations. It also administers the Resource Conservation and Recovery Planning Act. The Office of Recycling within the Solid Waste Program leads State recycling initiatives.

Under the Administration are five programs: Planning and Resource Management; Solid Waste; Hazardous Waste; Environmental Response and Restoration; and Oil Control.

CONTROLLED HAZARDOUS SUBSTANCE ADVISORY COUNCIL

Jeffrey L. Tryens, Acting Chairperson, 1994

Staff: Harold L. Dye, Jr. (410) 631-3343

The Controlled Hazardous Substance Advisory Council was created in 1976 (Chapter 618, Acts of 1976). Formerly under the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, the Council was placed within the Department of the Environment in 1987 (Chapter 306, Acts of 1987).

The Council advises the Department and assists in identifying any hazardous substance as a controlled hazardous substance. The Council also helps develop rules and regulations relating to the management and disposal of controlled hazardous substances and low-level nuclear waste.

Appointed by the Governor, the Council consists of thirteen members who serve six-year terms. Ten members are appointed with the advice of the Secretary of the Environment, and three public members are selected with Senate advice and consent. Serving on the Council are the pesticides coordinator for the Cooperative Extension Service, the State Fire Marshal or designee, and a person in the resource recovery business. Members also include one representative each from the Department of Agriculture; Division of Labor and Industry in the Department of Licensing and Regulation; Department of Natural Resources; an industry that generates hazardous substances; the hazardous substance disposal and management industry; an industry that generates low-level nuclear waste; and the low-level nuclear waste management industry (Code Environment Article, secs. 7-211 through 7-215).

CONTROLLED HAZARDOUS SUBSTANCES TASK FORCE

Chairperson: Alvin L. Bowles, designee of Secretary of the Environment

(410) 631-3441

In 1992, the General Assembly asked the Secretary of the Environment to convene a Controlled Hazardous Substances Task Force (Chapter 197, Acts of 1992). With the Department of the Environment, the Task Force is devising a strategy to reduce, treat, reuse, manage, and dispose of controlled hazardous substances in Maryland.

The Task Force has seventeen members. They include twelve members appointed by the Secretary of the Environment; a senator appointed by the Senate President; and a delegate appointed by the House Speaker. Serving ex officio are the Secretary of the Environment, who chairs the Task Force; the Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene; and the Secretary of Economic and Employment Development. Authorization for the Task Force continues until September 30, 1995 (Code Environment Article, sec. 7-205).

PLANNING & RESOURCE MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

Alvin L. Bowles, Administrator
(410) 631-3441

The Planning and Resource Management Program was formed from the Operational Management Program in 1992. The Program oversees and coordinates data and budget management, federal programs, community and industry relations, public hearings, local liaison, and special projects for the Waste Management Administration. The Program is organized into two divisions: Administrative Services; and Planning and Policy.

SOLID WASTE PROGRAM

Barry Schmidt, Administrator
(410) 631-3318

The Solid Waste Program issues construction and operation permits for all facilities that accept solid waste. These include sanitary landfills, processing facilities, transfer stations, incinerators, and resource recovery plants. The Program also issues permits for sewage sludge use and disposal.

All county plans for solid waste management and recycling are reviewed by the Program. Under the Program are three divisions: Recycling; Solid Waste Compliance; and Sewage Sludge Compliance.

OFFICE OF RECYCLING (RECYCLING DIVISION)

Lori Scozzafava, Chief
(410) 631-3315

The Office of Recycling, also known as the Recycling Division, was created in 1988 (Chapter 536, Acts of 1988). The Office supports and technically assists county governments as they develop recycling plans to reduce the volume of county waste. The Office reviews the plans and coordinates State efforts to facilitate their implementation (Code Environment Article, secs. 9-1701 through 9-1707).

In cooperation with the Department of General Services, the Office devised a State Agency Recycling Plan to reduce by at least 20 percent the solid waste generated by State government.

NEWSPRINT RECYCLING BOARD

Vacancy, Chairperson
(410) 631-3315

Established in 1990, the Newsprint Recycling Board considers applications by newspaper publishers for exemptions from the statutory percentage requirements for recycled newsprint (Chapter 301, Acts of 1990). The percentages are staggered, but by 1998, forty per cent of the total newsprint used by a publisher must be recycled newsprint.

Board members are appointed to three-year terms by the Governor. They represent newspaper publishers, the Northeast Waste Disposal Authority, the Maryland Environmental Service, local government, the newspaper recycling industry, other industry, and environmental groups.

HAZARDOUS WASTE PROGRAM

Harold L. (Butch) Dye, Jr., Administrator
(410) 631-3343

The Hazardous Waste Program originated in 1977 as the Toxic Substances Control Program under the Environmental Health Administration of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. Duties of the Program were assigned to the Waste Management and Enforcement Program by 1980, to the Waste Management Administration of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene by 1982, and were transferred to the Department of the Environment in 1987.

The Hazardous Waste Program issues permits and certifies all who generate, treat, store, dispose of, or transport hazardous waste in the State. The Program certifies haulers of hazardous waste and drivers of vehicles that transport hazardous waste. Upon final promulgation of low-level radioactive waste regulations in 1993, the Program became responsible statewide for managing low-level nuclear waste generation, storage, and removal for disposal.

HAZARDOUS WASTE FACILITIES SITING BOARD

Vacancy, Chairperson

The Hazardous Waste Facilities Siting Board was created in 1980 (Chapter 528, Acts of 1980). It was placed under the Department of Natural Resources in 1983 (Chapter 388, Acts of 1983). In 1993, the Board was transferred to the Department of the Environment (Chapter 149, Acts of 1993).

The Board provides a means of establishing properly designed and regulated facilities for hazardous waste in Maryland. It offers an alternative to local approval of hazardous waste facilities. If, after careful study of environmental and community impact, the Board issues a Certificate of Public Necessity for a facility, local zoning and regulation no longer apply.

The Board does not seek out sites. It reviews applications for certificates submitted by public or private developers. If they can gain local approval, developers are not required to seek a certificate from the Board. All facilities, however, must obtain a facility permit from the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, as well as other required State or federal permits.

In addition to site suitability and impact of the facility, the Board must consider statewide needs and problems associated with hazardous waste management. The Board therefore adopts and reviews regulations defining the treatment and disposal needs of the State. These regulations present the Board's findings on what facilities are needed and what conditions might be imposed in a certificate. The regulations inform the public and guide certificate applicants. The Board encourages citizens to participate in the review process and publishes notices of site applications, public informational meetings and hearings, and adjudicatory hearings.

The Board consists of eight members appointed to four-year terms by the Governor. One is a geologist; one is from the scientific community; and two are public members, one of whom has a demonstrated record of involvement in environmental matters. The Maryland Association of Counties, Maryland Municipal League, and Maryland Chamber of Commerce each nominate a member. The Board represents the various geographical regions of the State. No two members may be from the same county. The Governor designates the chairperson (Code Environment Article, secs. 7-401 through 7-413).

TRACKING & TOXICS INVENTORY DIVISION

Emily Troyer, Chief

(410) 631-3344

The Tracking and Toxics Inventory Division began as the Toxics Information and Operations Center. The Center was reorganized as the Toxics Registries and Analysis Program in 1989, the Toxic Registries Division in 1992, and the Tracking and Toxics Inventory Division in 1993. Under the federal Superfund Amendment and Reauthorization Act, the Division receives and stores information about the use of toxics by industry. The Division serves as a central repository for this data which Maryland counties use to develop emergency response plans.

The ecological effects of toxics, primarily on the aquatic environment, are assessed by the Division. These assessments are used by the Department and local agencies. In addition, the Division assists the Maryland State Police and the Department of Transportation on commercial vehicle safety and the transport of hazardous materials.

ENVIRONMENTAL RESPONSE & RESTORATION PROGRAM

Robert A. DeMarco, Administrator

(410) 333-3437

The Environmental Response and Restoration Program began in January 1989 as the Emergency Response Program. The Emergency Response Program merged in 1992 with four other units: the Comprehensive Environmental Response Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA) Program from the Waste Management Administration; and the Hazardous Materials Transport Division, Lead-in-Soil Project, and the Lead Poisoning Prevention Project of the Toxics, Environmental Science and Health Administration. From this merger, the Environmental Response and Restoration Program was formed in 1992.

The Program responds on a 24-hour basis to the discharge of hazardous material or oil on land or water (Code Environment Article, sec. 4-406). Federally certified personnel inspect intrastate and interstate transporters of hazardous materials and wastes. The Program also investigates, assesses, and removes environmental and public health threats at hazardous waste disposal sites. In addition, the Program oversees cleanup of State and federal Superfund sites, and enforces Maryland's lead paint regulations and abatement in residential and child care structures.

The Program is assisted by the Advisory Council on Lead Poisoning and has four divisions: Site Assessment; Federal and State Superfund; Emergency Response; and Lead Compliance.

OIL CONTROL PROGRAM

Horacio Tablada, Administrator

(410) 631-3386

The Oil Control Program started in November 1988 as the Industrial Discharge Program and was reorganized under its present name in 1992. The Oil Control Program administers all oil-related regulatory programs within the State.

The Program regulates all aboveground and underground oil storage facilities, oil-contaminated soil facilities, and oil transportation. It trains tank removal personnel and oversees the maintenance, operation, and removal of underground storage tanks.

Program functions are carried out by two divisions: Permits and Technical Support; and Compliance and Remediation.

Dane S. Bauer, Deputy Director

2500 Broening Highway
Baltimore, MD 21224

(410) 631-3567

The Water Management Administration's responsibility to oversee public water supplies first was assigned in 1912 to the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering under the Department of Health. In 1951, the Bureau was reorganized as the Division of Sanitary Engineering under the Bureau of Environmental Hygiene, Department of Health. In 1966, the Division of Water Supply and Sewage Disposal was formed under the Bureau of Resources Protection, Department of Health. When the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene was created in 1969, the Division became the Division of Water and Sewerage under the Environmental Health Administration. By 1977, the Division's work continued as the Water Sewerage Control Program and, by 1982, was reorganized as the Water Management Administration. From the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, the Administration was transferred to the Department of the Environment in 1987 (Chapter 306, Acts of 1987).

The Administration works through nine programs: Program Development and Finance; Individual Wells and Septics; Capital Projects; Engineering and Construction Permit; Standards and Shellfish Sanitation; Nonpoint Source Permits; Inspection and Compliance; Wastewater Discharge Permit; and Water Supply.

PROGRAM DEVELOPMENT & FINANCE OFFICE

Marie C. Halka, Aministrator
(410) 631-3560

The Program Development and Finance Office was established in Fiscal Year 1989 to provide administrative services to the Water Management Administration. The Office develops the operating and capital budget of the Administration and is responsible for fiscal planning and management and personnel. The Office manages federal grants and monitors related program performance; coordinates regulatory and legislative proposals; conducts hearings on proposed regulations; and trains and technically assists water and wastewater utility operators. Through its Environmental Boards, Training, and Technical Assistance Division, the Office oversees the State Board of Environmental Sanitarians; the State Board of Waterworks and Waste Systems Operators; and the State Board of Well Drillers.

STATE BOARD OF ENVIRONMENTAL SANTARIANS

Patricia A. Schwaninger, Chairperson, 1994
Douglas H. John, Administrator

2500 Broening Highway
Baltimore, MD 21224 (410) 631-3594

The State Board of Environmental Sanitarians was created in 1969 as the Board of Sanitarian Registration (Chapter 434, Acts of 1969). In 1984, the Board was renamed as the State Board of Environmental Sanitarian Registration (Chapter 560, Acts of 1984). Formerly under the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, the Board became part of the Department of the Environment in 1987 (Chapter 306, Acts of 1987). In 1989, the Board received its present name (Chapter 151, Acts of 1989). The Board was placed under the Water Management Administration in 1992.

Registered environmental sanitarians conduct inspections and investigations to promote and maintain environmental health and secure compliance with public health laws and regulations. Their work concerns the effects of the environment on public health. They inspect and investigate the manufacture, preparation, handling, distribution, or sale of food and milk; water supply and treatment; wastewater treatment and disposal; solid waste management and disposal; vector control; insect and rodent control; air quality; noise control; product safety; recreational sanitation; and institutional and residential sanitation. The Board licenses applicants who qualify as registered environmental sanitarians. The Board also issues certificates of eligibility to applicants awaiting examination.

The Board consists of nine members appointed to five-year terms by the Governor upon recommendation of the Secretary of the Environment and with Senate advice and consent. Seven members are registered environmental sanitarians, and two members are consumers not trained as registered environmental sanitarians and without financial interest in a related field. Authorization for the Board continues until July 1, 2003 (Code Environment Article, secs. 11-101 through 11-502).

STATE BOARD OF WATERWORKS & WASTE SYSTEMS OPERATORS

Douglas H. John, Chairperson, 1996
James Allen Stewart, Secretary

2500 Broening Highway
Baltimore, MD 21224 (410) 631-3594

The State Board of Waterworks and Waste Systems Operators was formed in 1967 (Chapter 430, Acts of 1967). The Board was transferred from the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene to the Department of the Environment in 1987 (Chapter 306, Acts of 1987). In 1992, the Board became part of the Water Management Administration.

The Board certifies superintendents and operators of waterworks and waste systems to protect the public health and prevent pollution. The Board evaluates applications, prepares and authorizes examinations, and issues certificates to qualified persons.

The Board has eleven members. Eight are appointed by the Governor to represent one or more of the following constituencies: municipal government, county government, sanitary or metropolitan commissions, the Department of Natural Resources, waterworks supervision, wastewater or industrial wastewater works supervision, and agriculture. Three are appointed by the Secretary of the Environment. They include one engineer representative from the Department of the Environment and two public members. Members serve four-year terms, except for the Department of the Environment representative who serves at the pleasure of the Secretary. Authorization for the Board continues until July 1, 2003 (Code Environment Article, secs. 12-101 through 12-602).

All licensed individuals must meet statutory requirements for insurance and bonding.

When the Board receives complaints against well drillers, it holds hearings and may revoke or suspend licenses for violation of Board rules and regulations. Any rule or regulation concerning the drilling of wells proposed by the Department of the Environment must be referred to the Board for comment.

The Board consists of seven members who serve two-year terms. They are appointed by the Governor with the advice of the Secretary of the Environment and Senate advice and consent. One member each represents the Eastern Shore, Central Maryland and Baltimore City, Southern Maryland, and Western Maryland. Regional members must be licensed master well drillers, actively engaged in the well drilling business in the State at the time of appointment. Of the remaining three members, one represents the public at large and chairs the Board; one represents the Department of Natural Resources; and one the Department of the Environment. Authorization for the Board continues until July 1, 2001 (Code Environment Article, secs. 13-101 through 13-602).

INDIVIDUAL SEPTICS & WELLS PROGRAM

Jane Gottfredson, Administrator

(410) 631-3779

The Individual Septics and Wells Program was formed in 1990 to protect groundwater and public health. The Program implements State regulations concerning wells, septic systems, and subdivisions. Technical assistance, training programs, and grants to local governments, communities, and property owners help install innovative disposal systems in areas where septic systems will not function.

CAPITAL PROJECTS PROGRAM

Angelo Bianca, Administrator

(410) 631-3574

The Capital Projects Program originated in 1990 as the Capital Projects Administration and received its present name in 1992. The Program is responsible for project development of all capital programs within the Water Management Administration. The Program also maintains a tracking system for Department capital projects, reviews and approves county water and sewer plans, and administers grant and loan payments and engineering contracts of projects funded by the Program.

George Keller, Administrator

(410) 631-3599

The Engineering and Construction Permit Program began as the Engineering and Construction Services Program in 1990. The Program was reorganized under its current name in 1992. The Program provides and manages capital funding (grants and loans) for community wastewater treatment, both alone and in conjunction with the Water Quality Financing Administration. The Program issues permits to facilitate construction of water and sewer facilities by private and public entities. Additionally, the Program reviews engineering plans and specifications for all community water and sewerage facilities and manages and monitors sewerage construction.

WATER QUALITY PROGRAM

Mary Jo Garreis, Administrator

(410) 631-3906

The Water Quality Program originated in 1985 as the Division of Standards and Certification. In 1990, it was renamed the Water Quality Program; in 1991, the Water Quality Operation Program; and, in 1992, the Standards and Shellfish Sanitation Program. The Program regained its former name, the Water Quality Program, in 1992.

The Program protects public health by certifying the quality of water for the safe harvest of raw oysters and clams. The Program also establishes water quality standards for State waters; monitors shellfish and fish tissues for contaminants; and studies water quality. To evaluate and reduce whole effluent toxicity, the Program oversees tests at municipal and industrial facilities and develops and promulgates regulations to protect surface and ground water quality.

NONPOINT SOURCE PERMITS PROGRAM

Molly Cannon, Administrator

(410) 631-3543

The Nonpoint Source Permits Program began in 1988 as the Policy and Evaluation Program and received its present name in 1992. The Program oversees local programs for sediment control and stormwater management. It also issues municipal National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permits to discharge stormwater from construction sites.

The Program reviews sediment control and stormwater management plans for State and federal construction projects. To assure the maintenance of water quality standards, the Program also reviews federal permits issued under the federal Clean Water Act (sec. 404) for the discharge of dredge and fill materials into U.S. waters or wetlands. The Program also develops policy, regulations, and training programs to control nonpoint sources of pollution. A nonpoint source is one that is not a specific point of discharge, such as a pipe. Nonpoint sources include pollutants washed off streets or farmlands.

INSPECTION & COMPLIANCE PROGRAM

Jack Bowen, Administrator
(410) 631-3555

The Inspection and Compliance Program originated in 1988 as the Compliance Program and was reorganized under its present name in 1992. The Program enforces approved plans to control sediment and manage stormwater at all State and federal construction projects. The Program also enforces approved sediment control plans on all private construction projects unless enforcement has been delegated to local government.

WASTEWATER DISCHARGE PERMIT PROGRAM

Jeffrey Rein, Administrator
(410) 631-3752

The Wastewater Discharge Permit Program originated as the Community Sewerage Program in 1980. It received its present name in 1992. The Program protects public health and the environment by developing and enforcing effluent limits for municipal sewage treatment systems. The Program inspects treatment facilities and reviews sample results and plant operational records to evaluate treatment. The Program oversees regulation of industries that discharge sewage into sanitary sewers leading to sewage treatment plants. Federal and State requirements for pretreatment of industrial sewage are overseen by the Program and local jurisdictions.

PUBLIC DRINKING WATER PROGRAM

William F. Parrish, Jr., Administrator
(410) 631-3702

Created in 1988 as the Water Supply Program, the Public Drinking Water Program received its present name July 1, 1993. It manages and coordinates the State's Water Supply Financial Assistance Program. The Program sets and enforces drinking water standards through inspection of water treatment plants and distribution systems; and conducts surveys to determine to what extent drinking water systems contain contaminants, such as nitrate, lead, and volatile organic chemicals.

CHESAPEAKE BAY & WATERSHED MANAGEMENT ADMINISTRATION

Michael S. Haire, Director
Peter S. Tinsley, Deputy Director
(410) 631-3680

The Chesapeake Bay and Watershed Management Administration was organized in 1992. The Administration protects the Chesapeake Bay and Maryland watersheds and supports their restoration by identifying environmental problems, evaluating solutions, and developing comprehensive, cost-effective environmental management policies and strategies.

Under the Administration are Grants Management and Fiscal Administration, and four programs: Nonpoint Source Assessment and Policy; Chesapeake Bay and Special Projects; Environmental Assessment; and Water Quality Monitoring.

GRANTS MANAGEMENT & FISCAL ADMINISTRATION

Donna Perticone, Administrator
(410) 631-3656

NONPOINT SOURCE ASSESSMENT & POLICY PROGRAM

Robert Summers, Administrator
(410) 631-3902

The Nonpoint Source Assessment and Policy Program identifies sources of nonpoint pollution throughout the State as a key element of Maryland's restoration of Chesapeake Bay. The Program also evaluates efforts at and defines options for comprehensive, cost-effective control of nonpoint source pollution.

CHESAPEAKE BAY & SPECIAL PROJECTS PROGRAM

Robert Magnien, Administrator
(410) 631-3681

In 1987, the Chesapeake Bay and Special Projects Program was created. Through research and technical analysis, the Program evaluates water quality statewide, particularly trends that affect Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries. The Program also coordinates the Department's Chesapeake Bay Program with the Governor's Office, other State agencies, neighboring states, and the federal government.

ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT PROGRAM

Narendra Panday, Administrator
(410) 631-3572

The Environmental Assessment Program manages Maryland's scientific database for water quality of the Chesapeake Bay, its tributaries, rivers, streams, lakes, and other waters within the State. The Program develops and applies mathematical and other predictive models as the basis for the Department's water regulations and policy. In addition, the Program assesses water quality associated with channel dredging in Baltimore Harbor and Chesapeake Bay.

WATER QUALITY MONITORING PROGRAM

Morris L. Hennessey, Administrator
(410) 974-3238

The Water Quality Monitoring Program was restructured in 1990 under the Water Management Administration. In 1992, it became part of the Chesapeake Bay and Watershed Management Administration. The Program provides field support, on-site observations, water quality assessments, and data for the Chesapeake Bay and Watershed Management Administration, the Water Management Administration, and other Department programs.

ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

The Department of General Services provides the professional and technical services for the design and construction of State public improvements, except for those of the Department of Transportation, the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services, and the University of Maryland System. The Department manages, operates, and maintains State government facilities; assesses all State-owned facilities; and manages their renewal funds. By its expertise in lease negotiation, contracts, bidding, and real estate transactions, the Department supports the acquisition and disposal of any State interest in real property. For State-owned or leased facilities, the Department engages in master planning and, for materials, supplies, and equipment used by State agencies, manages centralized procurement. For State agencies, the Department provides and manages printing, publication, duplicating, photocopying, graphic design, typography, and graphic art; centralized inventory standards and control; and records management. The Department also plans and coordinates the development, procurement, and operation of telecommunication equipment, systems, and services by State agencies, except the University of Maryland System and the Maryland Public Broadcasting Commission. In addition, the Department manages the Maryland State Agency for Surplus Property.

The oldest function now within the Department of General Services is the care of buildings owned by the State. Prior to the burgeoning growth of State government in this century, Maryland had few State buildings, most of them encompassed within State Circle in Annapolis. Other space, in scattered locations, usually was leased as needed. In 1845, the State Librarian was delegated some responsibilities for hiring persons to look after public buildings in Annapolis (Resolution no. 36, Acts of 1845). As early as 1849, a person referred to as superintendent of the public buildings was authorized to plant trees and repair gates and gutters (Resolution no. 81, Acts of 1849). The 1860 budget provided a salary for a Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds, but the position was not established by statute until 1888, although legislation in 1862 made the Governor responsible for appointing a competent person for upkeep of buildings and grounds, two watchman, and a Keeper of the Steam House and Furnace (Chapter 341, Acts of 1860; Chapter 15, Acts of 1862; Chapter 175, Acts of 1888). The 1888 law specified the duties of the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds; virtually the same text was used in the 1970 law that created the Department of General Services (Chapter 97, Acts of 1970). In 1920, a commission was appointed to look into leasing or building a State office building in Baltimore (Chapter 149, Acts of 1920), which later would require a buildings and grounds unit as well.

Also in 1920, the Central Purchasing Bureau, another component of the modern Department, was formed (Chapter 184, Acts of 1920). The Bureau became part of the Department of Budget and Procurement in 1939 (Chapter 64, Acts of 1939), then briefly moved to the Department of Budget and Fiscal Planning in 1969 before it was incorporated into the Department of General Services in 1970. Through centralized purchasing, the Bureau since 1920 has provided supplies efficiently and economically to all State agencies.

The General Assembly in 1947 established the Department of Public Improvements to advise the Board of Public Works and other State agencies on engineering questions and other matters pertaining to construction, renovation, maintenance, and repair of buildings, structures, and public works. This department developed the State Building Code. Its functions now belong to the Department of General Services.

When the executive branch of government was reorganized in 1970, the Department of General Services was created (Chapter 97, Acts of 1970). At that time, duties of the former Department of Public Improvements and State purchasing functions from the Department of Budget and Fiscal Planning were transferred to the Department of General Services along with oversight of several previously independent agencies. The War Memorial Commission, Washington Cemetery Board of Trustees, Board of Architectural Review, Office of the Superintendent of Annapolis Public Buildings and Grounds, Office of the Superintendent of Baltimore Public Buildings and Grounds, Hall of Records Commission, Commission on Artistic Property, and the Purchasing Bureau constituted original components of the Department. Since that time, however, the Washington Cemetery Board of Trustees, the Hall of Records Commission, and the Commission on Artistic Property have been statutorily removed from the Department.

When the printing purchasing functions of the Purchasing Bureau were combined with the Office Services Section, the Printing and Publication Division was created in 1974.

The Division assists State agencies with graphic reproduction, including printing, publishing, duplicating, photocopying, graphic design, typography and graphic art production. The Division helps State agencies set performance standards and goals for in-State duplicating and copying installations and prepares State specifications and standards for printing, publication, equipment, and supplies. timore and Annapolis Duplicating Centers. These centers offer predominately same day service and short-run, short-schedule service not economically available from commercial sources.

The Division's courier system delivers interoffice mail and duplicating orders for State government in Baltimore and Annapolis. U.S. mail is picked up by Division personnel, metered with appropriate postage, and given to a contract firm for presorting.

The Division's Central Graphics Section provides layout and design services, including type selection, lettering, line drawings, arrangement of composite copy for photography, cover design, and preparation of camera-ready copy on a reimbursable basis.

The Agency makes available federal surplus property to nonprofit health or educational institutions and public agencies in Maryland. Applications for eligibility to participate in the program are available on request. In addition, the Agency also takes possession of surplus property no longer needed by State agencies and makes it available to the general public and to public and private agencies and organizations that are federally tax exempt and meet federal criteria. Such property may be viewed at the Agency's warehouse in Jessup.

Originally organized in 1947, the Agency was established by Executive Order in 1955. The Agency was formerly under the University of Maryland. It became part of the Department of General Services in 1987 (Executive Order 01.01.1987.19).

RECORDS MANAGEMENT DIVISION

William E. Taylor, Records Administrator

P.O. Box 275
State Records Management Center
7275 Waterloo Road (Rtes. 175 & U.S. 1)
Jessup, MD 20794 (410) 799-1930

Authorized in 1953, the Records Management Division originally was administered by the Hall of Records Commission (Chapter 436, Acts of 1953). The Division was placed directly under the Department of General Services in 1984 (Chapter 286, Acts of 1984).

The Division manages the records of all departments and agencies of Maryland State government and helps prepare retention and disposal schedules for those records. By law, State agencies are required to have their records placed on retention and disposal schedules. No public records can be destroyed without scheduling and the prior approval of the State Archives.

At the Central Records Center in Jessup, the Division stores inactive State records, which must be retained for specified periods of time to meet State legal and administrative needs.

The Division coordinates the Forms Management Program and the forms management plans of each department or agency to assure the use of only those forms which are necessary for effective or efficient operation.

To all State agencies, the Division also offers cost-reimbursable microfilm services, including both source-document and computer-output microfilming (Code State Government Article, secs. 10-631 through 10-634).

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

John C. White, Assistant Secretary for Telecommunications

301 West Preston St.
Baltimore, MD 21201 (410) 225-4650

Telecommunications originated as the Telecommunications Division. The Division became the Office of Telecommunications Management in 1986, when the General Assembly expanded the responsibilities of telecommunications management within the Department of General Services to provide guidelines and central direction to all State agencies in the procurement, use, and maintenance of communication systems. The Office was reorganized as the Assistant Secretariat for Telecommunications in 1990.

This office coordinates voice, video, radio, data, and other electronic communication services, including MARCOM, an integrated digital State communications network (Code State Finance Procurement Article, sec. 4-902).

The Assistant Secretary for Telecommunications is responsible for five offices: Network and Technical Services; Administrative and Financial Services; Voice and Customer Services; Radio Services; and Telecommunications Access of Maryland.

Telecommunications Access of Maryland (TAM) originated in 1988 as the Telecommunications for Disabled Individuals Program within the Department of Human Resources. In 1991, the Program was renamed and transferred to the Department of General Services (Chapter 598, Acts of 1991).

In December 1991, Telecommunications Access began a relay service to convey dual-party telephone messages for individuals with disabilities. The Maryland Relay Service enables a deaf person to communicate via a telecommunications device with an intermediary party who then verbally relays the message to a third party. The Service makes telephone use possible for State residents who are deaf or have impaired hearing, speech, vision, or mobility. Administered by Telecommunications Access of Maryland, the Service operates 24 hours per day, seven days per week.

GOVERNOR'S ADVISORY BOARD FOR TELECOMMUNICATIONS RELAY

Ronald E. Nomeland, Ph.D., Acting Chairperson,

voice & TDD: (410) 225-4204

The Governor's Advisory Board for Telecommunications Relay originated in 1987 as the Telecommunications for Disabled Individuals Board within the Department of Human Resources (Chapter 525, Acts of 1987). In consultation with the Board, the Department of General Services created, implemented, and now maintains the Maryland Relay Service.

The Board consists of twelve members appointed by the Governor, who also designates the chairperson. Members serve three-year terms (Code 1957, Art. 41, secs. 6-501 through 6-507).

ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

Although the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene was created in 1969, its antecedent agencies originated in the nineteenth century. Certain functions now overseen by the Department, however, were performed even earlier: the first recorded autopsy (possibly the first in America) occurred in Maryland in 1637; regulation of surgeons' fees began in 1640; registration of births, deaths, and marriages was required in 1650; and the first official quarantine was instituted in 1694.

The multiple functions of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene began separately and developed at different rates, according to the State's recognition of a need to safeguard public health, the perceived urgency of that need, the potential for scientific solutions, and later, federal mandates for funding. Baltimore City usually led the way, due to the caliber of the City's medical professionals and the acuteness of urban health problems. Also, the growth of Baltimore City was paralleled by the accumulation of immense fortunes, and philanthropists often intervened to meet the urgent needs of sick, poor and insane citizens before the State assumed these responsibilities.

Health in colonial Maryland was precarious, but if a settler survived exposure to various malarial fevers, the settler was likely to be healthier than his European counterpart due to better diet, less crowding, and a cleaner environment. Epidemic diseases flourished in the squalidness of some European cities where they had become endemic and, with the growth of Atlantic seaports, Americans began to suffer too. Citizens of seaports, Philadelphia and Charleston especially, were ravaged by recurring epidemics of smallpox and yellow fever in the eighteenth century, while diphtheria decimated the children of New England. Maryland was not free from the dreaded diseases, as evidenced by the legislative record showing the General Assembly either did not meet (1747) or convened in Baltimore (1757) due to the report of smallpox in Annapolis. As Baltimore grew in prominence as a port, so too did the threat of epidemics increase. Little was known about the source or treatment of the diseases, but clearly smallpox and yellow fever arrived by ship.

The Role of Baltimore City. Epidemics played a role in the establishment of public health agencies in Maryland. The first health office in the State was created in Baltimore to cope with yellow fever epidemics beginning in 1792 (Chapter 56, Acts of 1793), and in 1797, after Baltimore was incorporated as a city, the State's first local health department came into being. Baltimore physicians had ample opportunity to study yellow fever, since more than a century would elapse before the mosquito was identified as the carrying culprit. Baltimore doctors, however, were among the first to vaccinate for smallpox, and by 1802 had set up their own Institute to vaccinate the poor free of charge, a duty later assumed by the City Health Department. The General Assembly authorized a lottery in 1809 to support the Vaccine Institute, but did not create the State Vaccine Agency, the first statewide health agency, until 1864 (Chapter 269, Acts of 1864).

The Baltimore City Health Department performed many tasks before 1850: inspecting and quarantining ships, transporting paupers to the almshouse, burying paupers, cleaning streets, removing snow and ice, and vaccinating the public against smallpox. The Department kept mortality tables showing age and cause of death; ran a hospital for contagious diseases to which sufferers could be forcibly removed; abated nuisances, such as stagnant ponds; and maintained public fountains and sewers. In 1875, it began registering births and deaths, functions the State, despite repeated efforts, did not perform adequately until 1898.

Department of Health. The first impetus for State involvement in the health of Maryland citizens came from a group of physicians, mostly from Baltimore, who were chartered in 1798 by the General Assembly as the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland (Chapter 105, Acts of 1798). Their initial concern was to diffuse medical knowledge and protect Marylanders from ignorant medical practitioners and quacks, who abounded in the absence of an adequate supply of trained doctors. The law authorized the Faculty to license doctors. The Faculty was instrumental in founding the first medical school in the State in 1807 and, even after the Faculty lost its licensing power, it often petitioned the legislature for improvements in health care facilities and regulation.

Maryland created a State board of health in 1874, the sixth state to do so (Chapter 200, Acts of 1874). Overcoming rumors of the purported unhealthiness of certain areas of the State was seen as a necessary boon for immigration, and accurate data was required for that purpose. At first, the State Board of Health was primarily an advisory body with no regulatory authority. In 1876, the Board reported that it had: surveyed physicians throughout the State regarding health concerns, investigated nuisances in mining towns, analyzed public drinking water in Baltimore City, and examined conditions in county jails and almshouses. The Board additionally had lectured to citizens on public hygiene, collected information on the prevalence of malarial diseases, investigated a smallpox epidemic in Cumberland, and evaluated the deleterious effects of Jones Falls and the Basin on health in Baltimore City. The Board lamented the lack of any local health structure, which made it difficult to acquire information about public health. Also, although towns might call in the Board when health problems arose, the Board had no authority to mitigate nuisances. The Board's report showed that the only two significant public health laws on the books were failing dismally. The first had created the State Vaccine Agency, and required smallpox vaccination prior to enrollment in school (Chapter 269, Acts of 1864). Doctors were supposed to vaccinate infants and other patients in their practice, and the law provided for vaccination of those unable to pay, but the smallpox epidemic in Cumberland made it clear that vaccination was not widespread in 1876. The second was the long-advocated law for registration of births, deaths, and marriages, which were to be reported to the Secretary of the Senate by the clerks of court (Chapter 130, Acts of 1865). Vital statistics were a major concern of the new State Board of Health in 1876 since few statistics had been forthcoming under the 1865 law.

In 1880, the State Board was reorganized, empowered to establish local boards and deal with emergencies. The Secretary of the Board acquired the additional title of Superintendent of Vital Statistics. Beginning in 1894, Baltimore City physicians from the Johns Hopkins Hospital led a public health movement calling for sanitary conditions in food processing from "stable to table." They worked for laws to pasteurize milk, assure pure food, and prevent the ancient scourge of tuberculosis. The State Board of Health benefited from this public interest, and in 1910 was reformed as the State Department of Health, overseeing five bureaus with clearly defined duties: Bureau of Communicable Diseases; Bureau of Bacteriology; Bureau of Chemistry; Bureau of Sanitary Engineering; and Bureau of Vital Statistics (Chapter 560, Acts of 1910).

In 1939, the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty urged the State Planning Commission to look into the availability of health care for the poor. The specter of socialized medicine loomed, and physicians were interested in developing an alternative plan. The General Assembly enacted a law in 1945 to provide health services to the indigent and medically indigent of the counties and later extended the plan to Baltimore City. The 1945 law also authorized the Department of Health to operate State-owned hospitals for persons with chronic diseases (Chapter 91, Acts of 1945).

Department of Mental Health. Maryland had assumed some responsibility for the fate of its insane by 1797 when the Maryland Hospital in Baltimore City was established as "a hospital for the relief of indigent sick persons, and for the reception and care of lunatics" (Chapter 102, Acts of 1797). Care and custody of the mentally ill suffered from the prevailing belief that insanity was not curable. Families kept their insane members at home; those who were violent could be locked up in the local jail or almshouse. The legislature perpetually was besieged with petitions for relief, and many private acts authorized a county to levy a minimal amount to support an insane or feeble-minded individual at home. Early in the nineteenth century, the so-called "moral" method for the care of the insane came into vogue, and physicians claimed that early treatment by that method made insanity more curable than most diseases. The Maryland Hospital seems to have used the method. In 1817 the county levy courts were authorized to commit their insane to the Maryland Hospital upon payment by the county of $100 per year (Chapter 78, Acts of 1817). Since it was cheaper to keep the mentally ill chained in the county almshouse with no care at all, probably the most difficult cases, those least susceptible to a cure, were sent to the Maryland Hospital. It became primarily a hospital for the insane in 1838 though it lacked sufficient space.

Dorothea Dix, outspoken advocate for the mentally ill, pointed out in her 1852 address to the Maryland legislature that the 1850 census showed 946 insane and idiot inhabitants of the State. Of these, 133 were in the Maryland Hospital, 74 in Mount Hope Hospital, 123 in the Baltimore Almshouse, and 8 in the Maryland Penitentiary, leaving 598 either in private homes, county jails, or almshouses. Only those in the Maryland or Mount Hope Hospitals were undergoing curative treatment. The General Assembly did appropriate funds that year for a new hospital for the insane with capacity for 200 to 250 patients (Chapter 302, Acts of 1852), but by 1872 it was still under construction. Even when patients from the old Maryland Hospital were moved into the new hospital, the State needed additional accommodations and in 1894 began the Second Hospital for the Insane of the State of Maryland (Chapter 231, Acts of 1894).

For most of the nineteenth century, feeble-minded, idiotic and alcoholic citizens often shared the fate of the insane, locked in local jails or almshouses. The Board of Directors for the Maryland Inebriate Asylum reported in 1864 that they were still without a building but some inebriated persons were being treated in a lunatic asylum (Maryland Documents A, 1865). In 1883, the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty petitioned the legislature on behalf of the feeble-minded and, in 1888, the Asylum and Training School for the Feeble-Minded was authorized (Chapter 183, Acts of 1888).

At the turn of the century, the private sector was ahead of the State in providing space for the mentally ill, and county jails and almshouses served as a last resort. To safeguard legal rights and protect against abuses, the legislature created the Lunacy Commission in 1886 (Chapter 487, Acts of 1886). The Commission was mandated to visit and inspect all places, public or private, where insane persons were kept. Duties of the Commission were transferred to a Board of Mental Hygiene in 1922, and the State's five mental institutions were placed under the Department of Welfare (Chapter 29, Acts of 1922). Wartime austerity cut back spending on State institutions, and public concern after the war about treatment of the mentally ill led to creation of the Department of Mental Hygiene in 1949 (Chapter 685, Acts of 1949). The Department was charged to administer the State's mental institutions, coordinate State psychiatric research, and oversee education and training of personnel working in mental institutions.

State Board of Health and Mental Hygiene. Mental health and public health functions became officially entwined in 1961 under the new State Board of Health and Mental Hygiene which assumed responsibility for: the health interests of Marylanders; State facilities for care of the chronically ill, mentally ill, mentally retarded, and tuberculous persons; and the medical care program for the indigent and medically indigent. The two departments, Health and Mental Hygiene, continued to administer programs and facilities as directed by the new Board (Chapter 841, Acts of 1961).

Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. Through executive reorganization in 1969, the Board and the two departments were superseded by the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, which encompassed not only the programs and facilities inherited from its two predecessors, but also all the medical professional licensing boards, the Comprehensive Health Planning Agency, the Commission on Physical Fitness, the Advisory Board on Hospital Licensing, the Advisory Council on Hospital Construction, the Radiation Control Advisory Board, the Air Pollution Control Council, the Air Quality Control Council, and the Juvenile Services Administration (Chapter 77, Acts of 1969). Boards and councils relating to radiation and air quality, as well as environmental health programs, were transferred to the Department of the Environment in 1987; the Juvenile Services Administration became an independent agency in 1987 and an executive department in 1988.

The Department of Health and Mental Hygiene has evolved into a complex agency which continues to protect the physical, mental and social health of Marylanders. Through a comprehensive and accessible system of health services, the Department promotes health and prevents disease and disability.

Many health care programs are, by their nature, public functions and cannot be performed effectively by the private sector. Prime among these is the responsibility for dealing with epidemiological hazards to health, such as communicable diseases, and the organization of community efforts to prevent or control their impact.

Local health departments are the focal point in the delivery of services. Overseen by the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, twenty-four local health departments report to the Deputy Secretary for Public Health Services and have access to all Department officials as well.

The Department also provides or purchases direct care services. These primarily include residential and outpatient care for the mentally ill; the mentally retarded; the chronically ill, including those with tuberculosis; the impaired elderly; and persons with addictive conditions. Several health services for the community as well as comprehensive health care services for the indigent and medically indigent are provided directly by the Department.

ADMINISTRATION

Howard R. Sampson, Director

201 West Preston St.
Baltimore, MD 21201

(410) 225-6925

The Alcohol and Drug Abuse Administration originated as two separate agencies: one concerned with addiction to alcohol and the other with addiction to narcotics. The Drug Abuse Authority, formed in 1969, was succeeded in 1971 by the Drug Abuse Administration (Chapter 404, Acts of 1969; Chapter 29, Acts of 1971). The Division of Alcoholism Control of the former Mental Health Administration became the Alcoholism Control Administration in 1976 (Chapter 746, Acts of 1976). By departmental reorganization in 1987, the Drug Abuse Administration and the Alcoholism Control Administration merged to form the Addictions Services Administration. The Addictions Services Administration was renamed the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Administration in 1988 (Chapter 758, Acts of 1988; Code Health—General Article, Title 8).

Functions of the Administration are carried out by the Office of Education and Training and eight divisions: Children, Youth, and Families; Criminal Justice; Grants Management; Management Information Services; Planning and Policy Development; Prevention; Regional Field Services; and Special Populations. The Administration also is served by the State Advisory Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, and the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Treatment Advisory Committee.

OFFICE OF WOMEN, INFANTS, & CHILDREN

Joan Salim, Director

Hecht Towers, 7th floor
118 N. Howard St.
Baltimore, MD 21201 (410) 225-5231

Created by the Department in 1985, the Office of Women, Infants, and Children administers the Maryland Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC) under federal law (P.L. 95-627). The Program provides health and nutrition services, including supplemental foods, to eligible individuals. The Program serves pregnant, postpartum and breast-feeding women; infants to one year of age; and children to their fifth birthday. To be eligible, an individual must be in one of the covered categories, meet income eligibility requirements, and be at nutritional risk.

Funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Program is administered by the Office of Women, Infants, and Children through grants to eighteen local agencies that serve the entire State. Each local agency determines recipient eligibility, prescribes individualized food packages, provides nutrition education, prepares required records and reports, and issues food instruments (negotiable checks used in exchange for approved foods). The Office ensures that Maryland's Program accords with federal requirements.

LOCAL HEALTH DEPARTMENTS

Local health administration preceded the organization of a State health department by nearly a century, when, in 1793, Baltimore City established a health office to stop an epidemic of yellow fever. The first county health department was formed by Allegany County in 1922. By 1934, each Maryland county had established its own health department. Today, local health departments in Maryland's twenty-three counties and Baltimore City are overseen by the Local and Family Health Administration.

MENTAL HYGIENE ADMINISTRATION

Stuart B. Silver, M.D., Director of Mental Hygiene
Oscar Morgan Acting Deputy Director
Stuart Keill, M.D., Acting Clinical Director

201 West Preston St.
Baltimore, MD 21201 (410) 225-6611

The Mental Hygiene Administration originated in 1886 as the State Lunacy Commission (Chapter 487, Acts of 1886). The Commission was established to inspect public and private institutions for the insane and to advise their boards of managers. In 1922, the Commission was replaced by the Board of Mental Hygiene (Chapter 29, Acts of 1922). The Board, in turn, was superseded by the Department of Mental Hygiene in 1949 (Chapter 685, Acts of 1949). The 1949 law abolished not only the Board of Mental Hygiene, but also the separate governing boards of the State mental hospitals, and gave the Department of Mental Hygiene responsibility for the custody, care, and treatment of mentally ill persons. The Department of Mental Hygiene became part of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene in 1969 and subsequently was reorganized as the Mental Hygiene Administration (Chapter 77, Acts of 1969).

The Administration oversees thirteen mental health centers:

Walter P. Carter Center
Crownsville Hospital Center
Eastern Shore Hospital Center
Thomas B. Finan Hospital Center
Highland Health Facility Psychiatric Unit
Clifton T. Perkins Hospital Center
Maryland Psychiatric Research Center

Regional Institute for Children & Adolescents—Baltimore

Regional Institute for Children & Adolescents—Rockville

Regional Institute for Children & Adolescents—Southern Maryland

Springfield Hospital Center
Spring Grove Hospital Center
Upper Shore Community Mental Health Center

To improve continuity of care between community and hospital programs, the Administration has adopted a regional structure. Assistant Directors serve the Baltimore metropolitan area and Eastern, Western, Southern and Central Maryland. Their regional offices implement policies to shorten length of hospital stays and improve community mental health programs for the severely ill.

The Administration is headed by the Director of Mental Hygiene, certified in psychiatry by the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology and appointed by the Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene. With the approval of the Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene, the Director of Mental Hygiene is empowered to make State grants-in-aid to further community mental health services (Chapter 125, Acts of 1966). The Director supervises programs receiving these grants-in-aid. The Maryland Community Mental Health Services Act of 1966 also authorized local mental health advisory committees (Code Health—General Article, sec. 10-208).

HEALTH CARE POLICY, FINANCE, & REGULATION

Vacancy, Deputy Secretary for Health Care Policy, Finance, & Regulation

201 West Preston St.
Baltimore, MD 21201 (410) 225-6500

The office of Deputy Secretary for Health Care Policy, Finance, and Regulation began in 1975 as the Office of Regulatory Services. By 1981, responsibilities of the Office were assigned to the Assistant Secretary for Health Regulation and Policy Analysis and, by 1985, to the Assistant Secretary for Health Regulation. In 1987, the position of Deputy Secretary for Policy, Financing, and Regulation was created and, in 1988, it became the Deputy Secretary for Health Care Policy, Finance, and Regulation.

The Deputy Secretary oversees the principal health regulatory functions of the Department and provides leadership and guidance for the Department's financing, regulatory and licensing programs. This entails oversight of regulatory functions of the State Health Services Cost Review Commission, the State Health Resources Planning Commission, and the Maryland Health Care Access and Cost Commission; compliance with regulations and standards of the Medical Care Compliance Administration and the Licensing and Certification Administration; payments for services through the Medical Care Operations Administration; and financing and policy of the Medical Care Policy Administration.

With the assistance of the Policy and Health Statistics Administration, the Deputy Secretary develops recommendations for the Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene to modify and shape the role of the Department. The Deputy Secretary helps define health problems, evaluates Department programs, and develops data on federal and other external trends so as to advise the Secretary on program emphasis and Department direction.

The Deputy Secretary plans, directs, and evaluates the Medical Assistance Program (Medicaid). The Medical Assistance Program provides access to health care for categorically and medically needy residents throughout Maryland. Health care includes hospital inpatient and outpatient services, laboratory and X-ray services, nursing facility services, physician services, and home health care. Additional health care is available as indicated in the Medical Assistance State Plan. The Program is implemented by the Medical Care Compliance Administration, the Medical Care Operations Administration, and the Medical Care Policy Administration.

Health care expenses of the Medical Assistance Program are federally matched on a 50/50 basis for approximately 90 percent of the recipients. For the remaining 10 percent, Program services are funded totally by State and local funds (Code Health—General Article, secs. 15-101 through 15-128).

Under the Deputy Secretary are five administrations: Policy and Health Statistics; Medical Care Finance and Compliance; Program Systems and Operations; Medical Care Policy; and Licensing and Certification. The Health Professionals Boards and Commissions Program, the State Anatomy Board, the State Board of Nursing, and the State Board of Physician Quality Assurance also are overseen by the Deputy Secretary.

POLICY & HEALTH STATISTICS ADMINISTRATION

Mary E. Stuart, Sc.D., Director

201 West Preston St.
Baltimore, MD 21201 (410) 225-5806

The Policy and Health Statistics Administration originated in 1984 as the Office of Policy Analysis and Program Evaluation. In 1987, it was reorganized as the Policy Analysis Administration and, in 1988, as the Policy and Health Statistics Administration. The Administration develops and implements priority projects. The Administration devises initiatives and conducts technical analyses needed to address departmental, gubernatorial or legislative concerns. It analyzes evaluations and statistics for policy decisions. The Administration works through three divisions: Health Systems Analysis; Project Planning and Coordination; and Primary Care and Rural Health.

DIVISION OF HEALTH SYSTEMS ANALYSIS

Michael H. Fox, Sc.D., Assistant Director
(410) 225-5213

The Division of Health Systems Analysis analyzes statistics on issues that pertain to health care financing and regulation and creates and maintains data bases on these matters. The Division both develops health services research and, from its findings, recommends policy options for the Department. The Division also provides reporting system support for other Department agencies.

DIVISION OF PROJECT PLANNING & COORDINATION

Vacancy, Assistant Director
(410) 225-5810

The Division of Project Planning and Coordination develops and implements special projects; analyzes the economic effects of proposed changes in health care benefits and financing; and writes position statements for State and federal legislation.

DIVISION OF PRIMARY CARE & RURAL HEALTH

Jonathan Foley, Assistant Director
(410) 225-6811

Within the Policy and Health Statistics Administration, the Division of Primary Care and Rural Health was formed in 1993. The Division builds and maintains health care systems in medically underserved areas of Maryland. For these areas, the Division recruits health care providers, develops health centers, and conducts needs assessments.

MEDICAL CARE FINANCE & COMPLIANCE ADMINISTRATION

Lawrence P. Triplett, Director

201 West Preston St., Room 200
Baltimore, MD 21201 (410) 225-5204

The Medical Care Finance and Compliance Administration began in 1975 as the Medical Care Compliance Administration. In November 1993, the Administration merged with the Office of Administration and Finance to form the Medical Care Finance and Compliance Administration. By developing and implementing procedures to monitor and control the delivery of health care services, the Administration assures that benefits of the Medical Assistance Program (Medicaid) are used effectively. The Administration designs computer applications to detect aberrant practices; administers systems to require preauthorization for certain services; and investigates and refers fraud for prosecution. By recovering reimbursements from all liable third parties, the Administration also ensures that Medicaid is the payor of last resort.

The Administration is organized into five divisions: Acute Care Services; Long-Term Care; Medical Assistance Recoveries; Utilization and Eligibility Review; and Adjunct Services.

STATE HEALTH SERVICES COST REVIEW COMMISSION

Charles O. Fisher, Sr., Esq., Chairperson, 1997
John M. Colmers, Executive Director

4201 Patterson Ave.
Baltimore, MD 21215 (410) 764-2605

The State Health Services Cost Review Commission was established in 1971 to monitor all fiscal affairs of Maryland's hospitals and related institutions (Chapter 627, Acts of 1971). The Commission publicly may disclose a hospital's financial position, its verified total costs incurred in rendering health services, and the level of reasonableness of its rates as determined by Commission review and certification. The Commission also evaluates the adequacy of each institution's financial resources to meet its financial requirements. When these resources are inadequate, the Commission seeks solutions.

The Commission assures purchasers of hospital health care that total costs are reasonable, that aggregate rates are set in relation to the hospital's aggregate costs, and that rates are set equitably among all purchasers of services.

The Commission consists of seven members appointed to four-year terms by the Governor, who also designates the chairperson. Authorization for the Commission continues until July 1, 2003 (Code Health—General Article, secs. 19-201 through 19-222).

STATE HEALTH RESOURCES PLANNING COMMISSION

Marcia Gann Pines, Chairperson, 1994
James R. Stanton, Executive Director

4201 Patterson Ave., Room 226
Baltimore, MD 21215 (410) 764-3255

The State Health Resources Planning Commission originated in 1968 as the Comprehensive Health Planning Agency (Chapter 221, Acts of 1968). The Agency was reformed as the Maryland Health Planning and Development Agency in 1978 (Chapter 911, Acts of 1978). In 1982, the State Health Resources Planning Commission replaced the Agency (Chapter 108, Acts of 1982).

The Commission promotes the development of a health care system that provides quality care at reasonable cost for all citizens. The Commission plans the development of quality health services within each health service area to meet current and future needs; identifies essential resources; and encourages the effective use of those resources. The Commission advocates policies and systems for efficient access to services, including acute, long-term, mental health, primary care, and community-based alternatives. The Commission also coordinates its work with the State Health Services Cost Review Commission and the Maryland Health Care Access and Cost Commission and assesses the impact of plans and projects on total health care costs to Maryland and its citizens. In addition, the Commission prepares the State Health Plan and conducts the Certificate of Need Program to assure that institutions meet standards of public need before building or constructing new facilities.

The law creating the Commission also established local health planning agencies to serve health service areas designated by the Governor. These agencies are required to assure broad citizen representation of their region and in their activities, formulate local health plans, and help develop statewide criteria and standards for Certificate of Need and health planning. Local agencies may testify at evidentiary hearings or submit recommendations on the evaluation of Certificate of Need applications. Presently, local organizations serve the following designated health service areas: 1) Western Maryland counties of Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Frederick, and Carroll; 2) Montgomery County; 3) Southern Maryland counties of Prince George's, Charles, Calvert, and St. Mary's; 4) Central Maryland area of Baltimore City and Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Harford and Howard counties; and 5) Eastern Shore counties of Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne's, Talbot, Caroline, Dorchester, Wicomico, Somerset, and Worcester.

The Commission consists of the Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene or designee, and thirteen members appointed to four-year terms by the Governor. Five members represent local health planning areas, six represent health care providers, and two represent the general public. The Governor designates the chairperson. The Executive Director is appointed by the Commission with the approval of the Governor (Code Health—General Article, secs. 19-103 through 19-122).

MARYLAND HEALTH CARE ACCESS & COST COMMISSION

4201 Patterson Ave.
Baltimore, MD 21215—2299 (410) 764-3460

In 1993, the Maryland Health Care Access and Cost Commission was created as an independent agency within the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (Chapter 9, Acts of 1993). The Commission develops strategies by which the costs of health care may be limited and access to health care services extended to all Marylanders. The Commission formulates a uniform set of benefits for the comprehensive standard health benefit plan; devises a payment system for health care services; and fosters development of practice parameters. The Commission also facilitates public disclosure of medical claims data for the development of public policy; maintains and analyzes a medical care data base on health care provided by health care practitioners; and ensures the use of that data base as a primary means to compile data and annually report on trends, variances, and comparisons regarding fees for service, cost of care, and malpractice. Additionally, the Commission encourages the development of clinical resource management systems that permit cost comparisons between various treatment settings and the availability of information to consumers, providers, and purchasers of health care; sets standards for the operation and licensing of medical care electronic claims clearinghouses; and reduces the costs of submitting and administering claims for health care practitioners and payors.

With Senate advice and consent, the Governor appoints the Commission's seven members to four-year terms. The Governor also designates the chairperson (Code Health—General Article, secs. 19-1501 through 19-1516).

ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON PRACTICE PARAMETERS

(410) 764-3460

The Advisory Committee on Practice Parameters was established in 1993 (Chapter 9, Acts of 1993). The Committee is to study the development of practice parameters for medical specialties and advise the Maryland Health Care Access and Cost Commission on the adoption and use of practice parameters. These parameters are intended to define appropriate clinical indications and methods of treatment for individual procedures or diseases that are subject to medical malpractice litigation. The parameters are meant to discourage inappropriate use; conform with standards of care; and meet certification, licensure or accreditation standards.

The Committee's fifteen members are appointed to four-year terms by the Governor, who designates the chairperson (Code Health—General Article, secs. 19-1601 through 19-1606).

The State Board of Examiners for Audiologists, Hearing Aid Dispensers, and Speech-Language Pathologists originated from three separate boards. The first was the Board of Examiners for Hearing Aid Dealers, formed in 1969 and placed within the Department of Licensing and Regulation in 1970 (Chapter 634, Acts of 1969; Chapter 402, Acts of 1970). In 1987, the speech pathologists' board was renamed the State Board of Examiners for Speech-Language Pathologists (Chapter 478, Acts of 1987). All three boards merged in 1992 to become the State Board of Examiners for Audiologists, Hearing Aid Dealers, and Speech-Language Pathologists within the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (Chapter 326, Acts of 1992). In Maryland, authority to license physicians was granted first to the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of the State of Maryland in their charter of 1798 (Chapter 105, Acts of 1798). From 1798 to 1838, the Faculty examined candidates, issued licenses upon payment of a fee, and prosecuted unlicensed doctors. The petitions of botanic medical practitioners influenced the legislature to pass a law in 1838 allowing any person to collect fees for medical services performed, which effectively ended the licensing of doctors until 1888 (Chapter 281, Acts of 1838).

The State Board of Health then licensed all physicians (Chapter 429, Acts of 1888). In 1892, two Boards of Medical Examiners carried on this function. One represented the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty and the other the State Homeopathic Society (Chapter 296, Acts of 1892). The General Assembly in 1957 abolished the Homeopathic Board and provided for the State Board of Medical Examiners to regulate the practice of medicine. Responsibility for disciplining licensed physicians was assigned to the Commission on Medical Discipline of Maryland, created in 1968 (Chapter 469, Acts of 1968). In 1988, the functions of both the State Board of Medical Examiners and the Commission on Medical Discipline of Maryland were combined under the State Board of Physician Quality Assurance (Chapter 109, Acts of 1988).

The Board tests and licenses physicians to practice medicine in the State. For certain causes, the Board may revoke the license of any physician. Candidates for licenses must be graduates of medical schools approved by the American Medical Association and the Association of American Medical Colleges or of foreign medical schools that offer an equivalent education. All graduates of foreign medical schools who apply must pass the examination given by the Educational Council for Foreign Medical Graduates. The Board determines qualifications for practice by the FLEX examination (Federal Licensing Examination), endorsement of licenses obtained in a reciprocating state, or endorsement of a certificate of the National Board of Medical Examiners. FLEX examinations are held in June and December of each year.

The Board also regulates the unlicensed practice of medicine by physicians' assistants, psychiatrists' assistants, cardiac rescue technicians, aviation trauma technicians, medical practitioners, acupuncturists, medical radiation technologists, and nuclear medical technologists in approved medical training programs.

Since 1967 the Board has licensed certain osteopaths on the basis of endorsement, depending upon qualifications (Code Health Occupations Article, sec. 14-310).

Composed of fifteen members, the Board is appointed by the Governor. The Board includes ten licensed physicians in active practice recommended by the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of the State of Maryland (State Medical Society). One member is a practicing licensed physician appointed at the Governor's discretion. One member, nominated by the Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene, represents the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. Two consumer members are appointed with Senate advice and consent. One consumer member, nominated by the Maryland Hospital Association, must be knowledgeable in risk management or quality assurance. The initial term for a consumer member is three years. The Committee recommends to the Board regulations for the certification of physician assistants. The Committee also recommends to the Board the approval, modification, or disapproval of an application for certification. The Committee may report to the Board any alleged unauthorized practice of a physician assistant, or any conduct of a supervising physician or a physician assistant that may be cause for disciplinary action.

To perform delegated medical acts, a physician assistant must obtain an approved job description from the State Board of Physician Quality Assurance. The Committee evaluates the qualifications of the physician assistant for delegated medical acts to be performed under that job description and recommends that the Board approve, modify, or reject the application for a job description. The Board, on review of the Committee's recommendation, may approve, modify, or deny a request for certification.

The Committee's seven members are appointed to three-year terms by the State Board of Physician Quality Assurance. Of these, three are licensed physicians, three are certified physician assistants, and one is a consumer. ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

In 1987, the Maryland legislature combined programs for low-income housing, home financing, building codes, planning and community development, and historic preservation to form the Department of Housing and Community Development (Chapter 311, Acts of 1987). The Department works to ensure available housing at all income levels, encourage strong neighborhoods and viable communities, and preserve Maryland's historical and cultural heritage. The Department funds or insures loans for purchase and construction of housing for low-income families; assists low- and moderate-income families to buy or rehabilitate houses; and aids nonprofit organizations with grants or loans to provide housing for special-needs groups such as the elderly, developmentally disabled, and homeless. The Department also distributes federal rent subsidies to low-income families; oversees construction, including prefabricated buildings and mobile homes, to ensure that it meets building code standards; and offers weatherization and energy conservation aid to qualified groups and households. To revitalize commercial districts and blighted areas, plan future growth and resource development, and provide adequate housing for citizens not served by the private sector, the Department funnels federal and State funds to communities and supports community action and regional development agencies. In addition, the Department finances historical preservation, archaeology, museum services, and cultural heritage commissions. Departmental programs help communities plan for the future.

Most functions now supervised by the Department originally fell outside the scope of government. Maryland communities grew initially with few restrictions and little planning, and shelter was a private responsibility. Local jurisdictions had little authority or interest in overseeing construction or development in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. How houses were built was limited by the skill of the builder, the availability of supplies, and the pocketbook of the owner. No governmental codes or regulations labeled structures substandard, although many must have been. In rare cases, the legislature sheltered the poor in private homes or later in county almshouses, but generally, poor persons, like everyone else, housed themselves and their families as best they could. Local building codes began tentatively in some localities in the eighteenth century; planning and zoning did not emerge as governmental responsibilities until the twentieth century. Zoning legislation, now a major tool for community development and planning, was passed for Baltimore City in 1927 and for the counties in 1933.

New Deal legislation of the 1930s initiated federal involvement in housing. In its housing programs, Maryland followed the federal lead and relied upon federal funding. The Housing Authorities Law of 1937 sought to remove the menace of insanitary and unsafe housing and to alleviate unemployment (Chapter 517, Acts of 1937). By this act, municipal governments could set up housing authorities to receive federal grants or loans for public housing projects. As with most subsequent laws for low-income housing or community renewal, the act followed on the heels of federal legislation which provided funds for its purposes.

During World War II, the influx of workers into Maryland caused a housing shortage. The Federal Public Housing Authority built thousands of units on vast tracts, but existing communities were hard pressed to provide necessary services and schools. After the war, the federal Veteran's Emergency Housing Act permitted the sale of government barracks and construction equipment to counties and municipalities to build or convert to civilian housing. The Maryland Veterans' Housing Commission coordinated the work of State and federal agencies dispensing funds or material to provide homes for returned veterans (Chapter 878, Acts of 1947).

The private sector embarked on a postwar building boom, marked by suburban developments containing miles of modest houses on treeless lots for veterans and their new families. Federally funded highway projects demolished housing and cleared slums, perpetuating the housing shortage, since construction of public units could not keep pace. The Federal Housing Act of 1954 financed local and regional planning assistance, including the Baltimore Regional Planning Council (created in 1956). Under the 1954 law, the Department of State Planning oversaw comprehensive planning assistance grants in Maryland.

Prosperity of the 1950s continued as federal funds solved many problems and created new ones. Poor families were displaced by highway construction and slum clearance in the 1950s, and by urban renewal in the 1960s. Private firms reaped profits building expensive suburban homes while Maryland municipalities struggled with the continual lack of low-cost housing. Federally subsidized public housing of the 1960s gave way to subsidized rent policies of the 1970s, and the Maryland Housing and Community Development Authority was created to encourage private construction of low- and moderate-income housing by grants and loans (Chapter 553, Acts of 1969). One year later, the Authority was abolished when the Department of Economic and Community Development was formed (Chapter 527, Acts of 1970). Within the new department, the Community Development Administration assisted and funded community development projects that provided some accommodations for families of limited income.

The accelerating rate of postwar growth and change put Marylanders in danger of losing touch with their past. Poor families were not the only victims of urban renewal; structures of irreplaceable historical value had been bulldozed for highways and development. Cultural and historical agencies emerged in the decade after 1960 to preserve the collective memory and restore its physical symbols. Joining the Department of Economic and Community Development in 1970 were two such agencies mandated to stop destruction and save the tangible evidence of Maryland's past. First was the Maryland Historical Trust, created in 1961 and dedicated to identifying and preserving structures of historical or architectural merit (Chapter 620, Acts of 1961). The Trust also advised communities on the establishment of historic districts, a type of urban renewal which worked well in Maryland. Historical interest and the hope of developing a tourist attraction had spawned the St. Mary's City Commission by 1966, the offshoot of a study commission appointed in 1965 (Chapter 115, Acts of 1966). Other commissions to preserve ethnic culture later were added to the Department of Economic and Community Development: the Commission on Afro-American and Indian History and Culture (Chapter 386, Acts of 1974), divided into two commissions in 1976 (Chapter 120, Acts of 1976); and the Maryland Ethnic Heritage Commission (Chapter 116, Acts of 1984).

In 1971, the Department of Economic and Community Development was assigned responsibilities for overseeing the implementation of both the Industrialized Building and Mobile Homes Act and the Model Performance Building Code (Chapters 662 & 663, Acts of 1971). The Building Codes Administration was established within the Department to handle these duties and, in 1978, began to set energy conservation standards for buildings. Other energy-related agencies such as the Energy Policy Office which originated in the Department of Natural Resources (Chapter 320, 1976), became components of the Department of Housing and Community Development in 1987.

Within the Department of Economic and Community Development, the Maryland Housing Fund was created in 1971 to stimulate construction of low and moderately priced housing by insuring lenders against mortgage losses (Chapter 669, Acts of 1971). The Housing Fund in 1976 became part of the Division of Local and Regional Development, which acted as a liaison between federal agencies and local communities. Federal policy had shifted to granting blocks of funds to the states for distribution to local governments and community action groups who were encouraged to find innovative ways to meet their own housing and development needs. The Division helped communities apply for block grants. At the same time, the Community Development Administration became responsible for the Maryland Home Financing Program and the Maryland Housing Rehabilitation Program.

As programs proliferated, the aims of economic and industrial development did not always mesh with community goals, and housing as an issue remained critical in complexity. The need for affordable housing never abated, and communities required greater expertise to plan development that would enhance, not compromise, the quality of life. In 1987, economic development programs were combined with employment and training programs in the new Department of Economic and Employment Development. At the same time, the Department of Housing and Community Development was formed to oversee the housing and cultural resource components of the former Department of Economic and Community Development, weatherization and community action agencies from the Department of Human Resources, and energy agencies from the Department of Natural Resources (Chapter 311, Acts of 1987). In 1991, functions of the Maryland Energy Office were reorganized and transferred to the Maryland Energy Administration, an independent agency.

MARYLAND HOUSING POLICY COMMISSION Vacancy, Chairperson

James I. Humphrey, Jr., Vice-Chairperson, 1994

Staff: Valerie M. Gonlin (410) 514-7170

Created in 1983, the Maryland Housing Policy Commission helps the Secretary of Housing and Community Development identify ways to increase housing supply and ownership opportunities for people of low and moderate income (Chapter 668, Acts of 1983).

The Commission annually updates the State Housing Plan, issues a policy and needs statement, and assesses their implementation. The Commission recommends to the Secretary innovative programs to build, finance, insure, and manage housing for families, elderly citizens, and others inadequately served by the private market. It also assists the Secretary, through a public information service, to bring available housing resources to the attention of those in need.

As an advocate of the housing needs of low and moderate income people, the Commission testifies before federal agencies, Congress, and the General Assembly. It also encourages and aids local governments cooperatively to solve common housing problems.

The Commission's fifteen members are appointed by the Governor to four-year terms. The President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Delegates, or their designees, serve as nonvoting members. The chairperson and vice-chairperson are designated by the Governor (Code 1957, Art. 83B, secs. 8-101 through 8-105).

The Council also recommends initiatives to promote drug-free environments in rental housing.

The Council consists of seventeen members. Eleven are appointed to four-year terms by the Governor. One member is nominated by the Senate President and one by the House Speaker. Four ex officio members include the Secretaries of Housing and Community Development, Human Resources,

MARYLAND HOUSING FUND

Earl DeMaris, Director

Vacancy, Deputy Director

100 Community Place
Crownsville, MD 21032

(410) 514-7350

The Maryland Housing Fund was established in 1971 (Chapter 669, Acts of 1971). Its primary objective is to assist State citizens of all income levels through a program of mortgage insurance and other credit enhancements for the construction of housing, rehabilitation, energy conservation, solar energy, public purpose, and infrastructure projects.

The Fund uses a variety of innovative mortgage insurance programs to stimulate the flow of private investment capital into the State for this purpose. The Fund operates through a large number of public and private lenders across the State as well as local housing agencies (Code 1957, Art. 83B, secs. 3-201 through 3-205).

CREDIT ASSURANCE REVIEW COMMITTEE

Mark Sissman, Chairperson

The Governor established the Credit Assurance Review Committee in December 1993 (COMAR 05.06.05). The Committee advises the Maryland Housing Fund on the Fund's credit assurance programs. The Committee alerts the Fund to new programs for housing insurance or credit assurance or to innovative means of using existing programs. The Committee also recommends methods of making the best use of Fund resources for the benefit of State residents and raising capital to support insurance reserves or programs through public or private sources.

For underwriting the insurance of mortgage loans and managing the insured loan portfolio, the Committee advises the Fund on what policies and criteria should be used. In addition, the Committee counsels the Fund on the structuring of its credit assurance programs to maintain the fiscal integrity of the Fund and of the reserve backing for each program.

MULTIFAMILY PROGRAMSVacancy, Manager

(410) 514-7325

Multifamily insurance programs provide longer mortgage terms than are generally available from other lenders; reduce monthly payments for the tenant; and enable higher loan-to-value ratio mortgages for borrowers. Multifamily insurance programs include construction loans and permanent loans.

Construction Loans insures mortgages financing nonprofit and qualified private developers of new or rehabilitated housing for families and individuals, the elderly and the handicapped. (Construction loans are insured only in combination with permanent mortgage financing.) The Maryland Housing Fund is the only insurer of construction loans in the State, other than the Federal Housing Administration.

Permanent Loans insures permanent mortgages to nonprofit and qualified private developers of new or rehabilitated housing. The permanent mortgage insurance is provided for multifamily projects for new construction and rehabilitation, projects receiving federal subsidies, and market-rate projects financed by eligible issuers of revenue bonds.

SINGLE-FAMILY PROGRAMSStanley H. Sanders, Jr., Manager

(410) 514-7300

Regular Mortgage Insurance offers insurance coverage on mortgages of up to 100 percent loan-to-value ratios on terms provided by major financial institutions. Mortgage insurance premiums are comparable to those charged by private mortgage insurers. This program is approved by the Federal National Mortgage Association.

The Public Mortgage Single-Family Program insures single-family mortgages financed by revenue bond-funded direct mortgages or mortgage purchase programs of a public agency mortgagee. The insurance is governed by the Regular Single-Family Program regulations, with modifications. The maximum mortgage amount is 95 percent of the total acquisition cost, not to exceed the sales price.

Pool Insurance offers insurance covering up to 100 percent of the loss on mortgages where there is primary coverage. The aggregate amount payable under this coverage is an agreed percentage (usually 5% to 10%) of the initial principal amount of mortgages financed through a revenue bond series. The Maryland Housing Fund provides pool insurance for revenue bonds issued by the Community Development Administration and other housing agencies.

Cooperative Insurance provides coverage on mortgages to tenant shareholders for the purchase of dwelling units in cooperatives.

The Revitalization Program provides opportunities to lower the risk of lending by using Maryland Housing Fund insurance to stimulate the flow of private mortgage capital into areas that have suffered from decreasing home ownership and associated economic and social instability. In addition, the Program makes home ownership possible for those who do not have the resources for a down payment and closing costs, which otherwise would be required by Maryland Housing Fund insurance. The borrower must make a minimum cash contribution (not less than $500) based upon levels of household income.

Home and Energy Loan Program (HELP) insurance covers 100 percent of the loan under the Community Development Administration's Home Improvement and Energy Conservation Loan Program.

FINANCEKim Luquette, Manager

(410) 514-7335

Finance is responsible for daily accounting operations and financial management needs of the Maryland Housing Fund. This includes premium billings for single- and multi-family insured loans; Maryland Housing Fund-originated mortgages and assigned mortgages; payment of expenses and insurance claims for acquired properties (non-budgeted), as well as budgeted administrative and operating expenses and investment of reserves.

DIVISION OF HOUSING FINANCE

The Division of Housing Finance was established in 1987 (Chapter 311, Acts of 1987). The Division consists of the Community Development Administration. The Division also is served by the Housing Finance Review Committee.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT
ADMINISTRATIONTrudy Parisa McFall, *Director*Nancy S. Rase, *Deputy Director*100 Community Place
Crownsville, MD 21032

(410) 514-7400

The Community Development Administration (CDA) was formed in 1970 within the Department of Economic and Community Development (Chapter 527, Acts of 1970). The Administration joined the Department of Housing and Community Development in 1987 (Chapter 311, Acts of 1987).

The Administration works to increase the supply of housing for families of limited income, the elderly, and the handicapped; foster sound community development; and stimulate the construction industry statewide. The Administration is responsible for Rental Housing Programs, Home Ownership Programs, Special Loan Programs, Rental Service Programs, and Housing Management. Programs are funded by the sale of tax-exempt revenue bonds; construction loan notes; taxable bonds; State general obligation bonds; general funds; special funds generated through loan repayments, fees, and charges; and federal housing subsidies. The Administration also issues essential function bonds for the Local Government Infrastructure Financing Program administered by the Division of Community Assistance.

Projects proposed for financial assistance must be consistent with local priorities and complement and supplement local community development programs and initiatives. Projects also must meet eligibility criteria and financing requirements (Code 1957, Art. 83B, secs. 2-203 through 2-208).

HOUSING FINANCE REVIEW COMMITTEE

Chairperson: Patricia J. Payne, Deputy Secretary of Housing & Community Development
(410) 514-7007

The Housing Finance Review Committee was created in 1983 (Chapter 668, Acts of 1983). The Committee reviews specific loan requests or categories of loan requests, and the investment and project financing policies of the Division of Housing Finance. After review, the Committee makes recommendations to the Secretary of Housing and Community Development.

Appointed by the Governor, the Committee is composed of seven members. Three are Department employees; two are public members who serve four-year terms; one is a public member who is the chairperson of the Maryland Housing Policy Commission; and one is an employee of the executive branch of State government who is not employed by the Department (Code 1957, Art. 83B, sec. 2-202).

RENTAL HOUSING PROGRAMS

Nancy S. Rase, Director
(410) 514-7446

The Rental Housing Production Program (RHPP) was established by the legislature in 1986 to stimulate production of rental housing for lower-income households. Funds can be used for capital assistance to cover costs of construction, rehabilitation, or acquisition of rental housing, or for mortgage assistance to reduce the operating costs of rental housing. Local governments must make a contribution to reduce costs or otherwise support developments financed through the Program. Priority is given to developments that serve households at 30 percent or less of area median income. The Program is funded with general funds and repayments of principal and interest on outstanding loans.

The Multi-Family Bond Program provides below-market-rate construction and permanent financing using taxable and tax-exempt bonds and notes. To be eligible, developments must set aside a portion of the units for limited-income households.

The Maryland Housing Rehabilitation Program—Multi-Family (MHRP—MF) is designed to preserve the State's stock of existing housing by making direct, low-interest loans available to the owners of apartment buildings of five or more units and commercial properties for repair and renovation. Under the requirements of the Program, recipients of loans for the renovation of rental properties must make units available to low-income tenants in the same proportion as MHRP financing to total project costs. Authorized by the General Assembly in 1975, MHRP—MF is funded by State general obligation bonds, general funds, and by repayments of principal and interest on outstanding loans.

The Home and Energy Loans Program—Multi-Family (HELP—MF) provides loans for energy conservation, home improvements, and general rehabilitation of multifamily rental housing. Loans are made directly through the Community Development Administration for rental housing with one or more units. Funds are generated by the sale of mortgage revenue bonds and taxable bonds. In multifamily developments, a certain percentage of units must be rented to limited-income families.

Created by the legislature in 1984, the Elderly Rental Housing Program (ERHP) provides below-market-rate or deferred payment loans to developers who agree to construct or rehabilitate rental housing for occupancy by low-income elderly households. Priority is given to developments that serve the lowest income households.

The Nonprofit Rehabilitation Program (NRP) was formed by the General Assembly in 1986. The Program makes loans to nonprofit organizations and local governments to rehabilitate buildings for rental housing, congregate housing, group homes, shelters, and other housing facilities that serve low-income households.

The Partnership Rental Housing Program (PRHP) was authorized by the General Assembly in 1988 as a two-year pilot program to expand the supply of affordable housing for the working poor. The Program was established by statute in 1990 (Chapter 343, Acts of 1990). In a partnership, local governments provide the finished site, including roads, water, sewer, and other infrastructure, while the Community Development Administration provides construction and permanent financing for rental housing units.

The Construction Loan Program (CLP) was created in 1987 with Community Development Administration reserve funds to provide construction financing to nonprofit organizations and local governments to acquire, build, or rehabilitate single-family owned homes, multifamily rental housing, congregate housing, group homes, and sheltered housing. Housing developed under the Program must be rented or sold to low- and moderate-income persons.

Established in January 1990, the Shelter I Program encourages nonprofit organizations, such as churches and community groups, to take the initiative in sponsoring their initial small housing project for low-income families or individuals. The Program supplies technical assistance and preferred interest rate loans from the programs listed above.

The Low-Income Housing Tax Credit Program was designated by the Governor to allocate tax credits in Maryland under the federal Tax Reform Act of 1986 and Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1989. Tax credits are awarded through a competitive allocation to both nonprofit and for-profit sponsors of low-income housing.

HOME OWNERSHIP PROGRAMS

Fran D. Makle, Director
(410) 514-7502

The Maryland Mortgage Program (MMP) originated in 1980 as the Mortgage Purchase Program and received its present name in July 1987. The Program was implemented when mortgage funds available through private lending institutions dwindled and mortgage rates rose. The MMP provides reduced-interest mortgage loans to eligible home buyers through participating lending institutions. In this program, the Administration provides mortgage loans directly to eligible low- and moderate-income persons or purchases loans made for them by participating lending institutions.

Both newly constructed and existing homes are eligible under the Maryland Mortgage Program. MMP is designed primarily for first-time home buyers.

Federal law designates certain low-income areas as target areas for which 20 percent of the funds from bond issues must be set aside. In these areas, purchase price limits are slightly higher and buyers are not required to be first-time home buyers.

The Maryland Mortgage Program is funded by the sale of tax-exempt revenue bonds. Both the acquisition cost and income limits are set by the Administration within federal tax law guidelines. Acquisition costs vary by region.

Using Maryland Mortgage Program funds, the Administration provides commitments to developers of newly constructed or substantially rehabilitated units for set-asides of mortgage funds for eligible buyers. Projects must have approval from the local government entity. To be eligible, project units must meet the acquisition cost limit for the region.

The Maryland Home Financing Program (MHFP) was authorized by the General Assembly in 1972 and first funded with the sale of State general obligation bonds in 1973. This direct-loan program expands home ownership opportunities for low-income Marylanders. By virtue of its funding source—general fund appropriations, and a revolving fund from prior loans under the Program—it differs from the other single-family programs. Loans have been made in every county and Baltimore City (Code 1957, Art. 83B, secs. 2-401 through 2-409; Code Financial Institutions Article, sec. 13-310).

MHFP also stimulates the production and rehabilitation of owner-occupied housing by providing below market loans targeted at households with income less than $27,650 per year. The Administration encourages local governments and nonprofit organizations to contribute local resources for developments funded through this program.

The Emergency Mortgage Assistance Program (EMA) was developed and merged into MHFP in 1989. Its forerunner was the Home Owner Emergency Mortgage Assistance Program (HEMAP), which was created by the General Assembly in 1984. The Program provides mortgage assistance to home owners who are in imminent danger of losing their homes. Through housing counseling agencies, the Program provides short-term loans to eligible home owners. The Program is funded through loan repayments and general fund appropriations to the Home Ownership Fund.

The Settlement Expense Loan Program (SELP) was begun by the General Assembly in 1988. The Program provides low interest loans for settlement expenses to eligible low- and moderate-income home buyers who do not have sufficient resources to purchase an affordable home.

The Reverse Equity Mortgage Program (REMP) was established by the General Assembly in 1986 and first funded in 1988 through CDA reserve funds. The Program enables older Maryland home owners to gain access to the accumulated equity in their homes without having to sell or move. No repayment of the loan is required until the eligible borrower dies, sells the house, or permanently moves out of the home.

SPECIAL LOAN PROGRAMS

Vance T. Morris, Director
(410) 514-7565

In 1986, the General Assembly created new special rehabilitation programs to address the housing needs of low-income households. With State general funds, these programs provide low-interest, no-interest, or deferred loans for 20-year terms.

Limited-income home owners and landlords of rental properties who rent to limited-income households may qualify for loans under the Indoor Plumbing Program and the Residential Lead Paint Abatement Program. The Indoor Plumbing Program provides loans to finance indoor plumbing and related systems in buildings that lack indoor plumbing or have failing plumbing systems. Loans through the Residential Lead Paint Abatement Program finance lead paint abatement in residential buildings.

The Accessory, Shared, and Sheltered Housing Program provides loans to limited-income home owners for housing modifications that create accessory dwelling units or provide for shared housing arrangements. Home owners also may receive loans to modify housing in order to provide sheltered housing for up to fifteen income-eligible elderly, handicapped, or disabled persons.

The Group Home Acquisition Program (GHAP) was authorized by the General Assembly in 1986 and is funded with special funds. GHAP provides financing to nonprofit organizations to acquire and modify housing for group homes and temporary and emergency shelters that serve low-income persons.

The Special Housing Opportunities Program (SHOP) provides funding to nonprofit organizations (as defined by Internal Revenue Code, sec. 501(c)(3)) and local development agencies to construct or acquire and modify existing housing as shelter for persons with special housing needs. Created in 1991, the program complements the Group Home Acquisition Program and is funded by tax-exempt revenue bonds.

By making low-interest loans available for repair and renovation, the Maryland Housing Rehabilitation Program—Single Family (MHRP—SF) preserves the State's stock of existing owner-occupied one- to four-unit dwellings. Owner-occupants and tenants of rental properties must meet income guidelines established by the Administration. MHRP—SF is administered under the same funding as MHRP—MF. The Livability Code Rehabilitation Program was merged into MHRP—SF on July 1, 1990.

The Home and Energy Loan Program—Single Family (HELP—SF) finances loans for energy conservation and home improvements in owner-occupied one- to four-unit dwellings. Loans are administered by the Community Development Administration, local housing agencies, and participating lenders. Owner-occupants and tenants of rental properties must meet income guidelines established by the Administration. HELP—SF is administered under the same funding as HELP—MF.

RENTAL SERVICE PROGRAMS

Phillip L. Katzung, Director
(410) 514-7490

Under the Community Development Administration, Rental Service Programs provides rental assistance with federal and State funds to low-income families for decent, safe and sanitary housing. Federal rental assistance funds come to the State through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development under the Federal Housing Act of 1937 (42 USC 1437, as amended). The office monitors compliance with legal mandates of all rental developments financed with Community Development Administration loans and federal Low-Income Housing Tax Credits.

Under the Section 8 Certificate/Voucher Program, participating landlords make available to low-income families rental housing that meets occupancy standards. To qualify, total family income must be 50 percent or less of the median income for the area in which the housing is located. Through local administering agencies, the Community Development Administration accepts and reviews applications from prospective tenants for participation in the program. Families that qualify are issued Certificates of Family Participation.

Under the Certificate Program, owners who agree to rent to qualifying families sign a contract with the Community Development Administration or the local administering agency that guarantees payments to the owner as long as the housing and lease adhere to federal standards. Through the Community Development Administration, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development subsidizes that part of the rent that exceeds 30 percent of the family's total income, and unit rent may not exceed the fair market rent. Individual applicants must find their own housing. In this way, families may select neighborhoods that best suit their needs. Under the Voucher Program, there is no fair market rent limitation, and tenants may pay more than 30 percent of their income for rent if it exceeds the fair market rent.

Other than the elderly, disabled, or handicapped, the only single persons automatically eligible for the Section 8 Certificate/Voucher Program are those displaced from their previous housing by governmental actions, or those who are a remaining member of a tenant family.

The Moderate Rehabilitation Program helps improve existing multifamily rental units that need repair or renovation. Under the Program, the landlord rehabilitates the unit, often with Community Development Administration financing. The Administration, on behalf of the tenants, then commits rent subsidies to the unit for a period of fifteen years. These rent subsidies are funded by the federal government. The Program is part of the Section 8 Existing Program; however, funding for new projects is not available.

The Rental Rehabilitation Program also is directed at rental housing in need of repair. The Program encourages owners of such housing to renovate the structures by providing the owner with half the cost of rehabilitating each unit, or up to $8,500 per unit, whichever is less. Funds are provided by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The Rental Allowance Program (RAP) was created by the General Assembly in 1986 and was first funded in 1987. For low-income homeless households or those with critical or emergency housing needs, the Program provides short-term rent subsidies. The Program is administered through grants to local governments for monthly payments to eligible households. Funding is provided through State general funds.

HOUSING MANAGEMENT

Stephanie White, Director
(410) 514-7566

Under the Community Development Administration, Housing Management oversees the management by private firms of multifamily housing developments financed by CDA or administered under Section 8 allocations. CDA oversees approximately 240 developments containing over 25,000 units of rental housing. This includes Section 8 contracts for 69 developments containing over 6,200 units of rental housing. Tenants in these subsidized units pay 30 percent of their monthly income in rent. The difference between the tenant's share and the fair-market rent is subsidized by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Housing Management also oversees the servicing of over 22,500 loans made under Home Ownership Programs and 2,500 loans made under Special Loan Programs.

DIVISION OF COMMUNITY ASSISTANCE

Richard J. Ferrara, Director

100 Community Place
Crownsville, MD 21032 (410) 514-7200

The Division of Community Assistance was formed in 1987 when the Department of Housing and Community Development was created. The Division administers programs for housing and community services, commercial revitalization and local government technical assistance, energy management needs, and building codes administration. It assists local governments, nonprofit organizations, community action agencies, and small private developers to implement these programs. The Division also manages a variety of development, grant and loan programs and serves as a liaison with local government and regional agencies. In addition, the Division acts both as a clearinghouse for State and federal programs and as a coordinating agency for State programs affecting local governments in Maryland (Code 1957, Art. 83B, sec. 4-201).

Within the Division of Community Assistance are the Building Codes Administration, Housing and Community Services Programs, and Commercial and Government Assistance Programs.

BUILDING CODES ADMINISTRATION

James C. Hanna, Director

100 Community Place
Crownsville, MD 21032 (410) 514-7220

Functions of the Building Codes Administration originated with the Code Enforcement Certification Board in 1971. Within the Department of Economic and Community Development, the Board became the Division of Building Codes Administration by 1975. Two years later, the Division was renamed as the Codes Administration. When the Department of Housing and Community Development was formed in 1987, the Administration was reorganized as the Building Codes Administration.

The Administration works with local governments, design professionals, and code inspectors to guarantee that the highest performance standards are met in building construction. The Administration is responsible for enforcement of the Industrialized Buildings and Mobile Home Regulations, the Model Performance Building Code, and the Maryland Building Code for the Handicapped. The Administration also administers the Maryland Safety Glazing Law and Maryland Energy Conservation Building Standards.

Established in 1971, the Industrialized Building Program offers certification standards for any building, building subsystem, or component that is manufactured and assembled off-site (Chapter 662, Acts of 1971). The Program encourages the growth of industrialized building construction by using preemptive uniform statewide codes and standards. Building systems that are certified by the State can be used or erected anywhere in Maryland without having to comply with different local building codes, as long as they comply with local zoning laws. The Building Codes Administration also inspects mobile homes to resolve consumer complaints and enforces the standard of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (Code 1957, Art. 83B, secs. 6-201 through 6-208).

The Model Performance Building Code was adopted in 1971 (Chapter 663, Acts of 1971). Based on the National Building Code of the Building Officials and Code Administrators International, Inc. (BOCA), the State's Model Performance Building Code was intended by the General Assembly eventually to be adopted statewide so builders might adapt their construction practices to a single set of modern, performance-oriented standards. Compliance with that code was voluntary.

In 1993, mandatory standards—the Maryland Building Performance Standards—were enacted by the General Assembly (Chapter 200, Acts of 1993). Also based on the most recent edition of the National Building Code issued by BOCA, these standards apply to all construction permits issued on or after August 1, 1995, with two exceptions. Counties or municipalities with no building code at all must comply by 1997, and those that adopted the Standard Building Code of the Southern Building Code Congress, Inc., must comply by 1999. Local jurisdictions may amend the Maryland Building Performance Standards to meet local needs. The Department of Housing and Community Development is to establish and maintain a central, automated data base that includes the Maryland Building Performance Standards, local amendments, the State Fire Prevention Code, local fire codes, all fire code amendments, and proposed State or federal legislation that directly affects the building industry.

Provisions to promote energy conservation in building construction were established by the Maryland Energy Conservation Building Standards Act in 1981 (Code 1957, Art. 78, sec. 54J).

The Building Codes Administration administers the Safety Glazing Law (Chapter 116, Acts of 1973). The law requires the use of safety glazing in certain locations in new buildings (Code 1957, Art. 83B, secs. 6-301 through 6-306).

With both financial and technical assistance, the Office of Special Projects helps nonprofit organizations and local governments develop and manage housing projects and programs for low-income persons. Among its programs are the Maryland Appalachian Housing Fund, the Housing Development Assistance Program, the Maryland Capacity Assistance Program, and the Home Seed Money Program. The Office also provides local neighborhood groups with operating assistance under the Neighborhood Housing Services Program.

For local governments and other providers of housing, the Office publishes a bi-monthly newsletter, Talk About Housing. The Office also sponsors training on housing development and other housing issues.

The Office of Weatherization Assistance administers the Weatherization Assistance Program. Formerly under the Department of Human Resources, the Program became part of the Department of Housing and Community Development in 1987 (Chapter 311, Acts of 1987). The Program funds local, community-based service organizations to help low-income, elderly, and disabled or handicapped persons conserve energy. The Program contracts with seventeen local administering agencies (county governments, community action agencies, offices on aging, and nonprofit organizations) to provide weatherization assistance statewide.

For eligible low-income households, the Program provides up to $1,600 in weatherization materials installed free of charge by certified workers. Eligibility for assistance is determined by family size and income. Energy conservation measures include insulation, storm windows, weatherstripping, caulking, jackets for hot water heaters, pipe insulation, and clock thermostats. Recipients stay warmer while spending less money on fuel. The Program promotes community awareness of energy conservation, provides jobs, and stimulates the weatherization industry.

Since 1991, the Office has entered into agreements with two major utility companies in Maryland to promote energy conservation in low-income households. With federal funds these households can take advantage of incentives offered to conserve energy through an initial outlay of capital.

The Local Government Infrastructure Financing Program was created by the General Assembly in 1985 and began operation in 1987. The Program provides Maryland's local governments with an efficient and economic alternative means of access to capital markets and thereby reduces the interest and issuance costs. The Administration operates a bond pool to finance infrastructure projects. Each loan is a general obligation of the local government.

MARYLAND HISTORICAL TRUST

Harrison E. Wetherill, Jr., Chairperson, 1995
Mark R. Edwards, Chief Programs Administrator & Deputy State Historic Preservation Officer

100 Community Place
Crownsville, MD 21032 (410) 514-7600

The Maryland Historical Trust was formed in 1961 to preserve, protect, and enhance districts, sites, buildings, structures, and objects significant in the prehistory, history, upland and underwater archaeology, architecture, engineering, and culture of the State (Chapter 620, Acts of 1961). The Trust also encourages others in the field and promotes interest in and study of such matters. In 1970, the Trust became an agency of the Department of Economic and Community Development. The Trust was placed under the Department of Housing and Community Development in 1987 (Chapter 311, Acts of 1987).

The Trust acquires and maintains properties of historic or architectural merit by gift, grant, or purchase. Through an easement program, it holds partial interest in such properties in order to monitor their condition and appearance without the necessity of public ownership.

The Trust helps organizations, local governments, businesses, and individuals restore and acquire historic properties through State-funded grants-in-aid, and a revolving fund loan program. Matching grants-in-aid from the National Park Service of the U.S. Department of the Interior are made through the Trust. They support a variety of programs, including historic resource identification (i.e., survey), evaluation (i.e., registration), preservation planning, education, and "Certified Local Government" programs.

The Trust contracts with local jurisdictions to survey Maryland historic sites. Results of these surveys are published. The most significant sites are eligible for nomination to the National Register through the Trust. Properties listed on the National Register receive a degree of protection from federally licensed or funded projects that might adversely affect them.

Through its community education program, the Trust administers a local volunteer network, represented by advisory organizations (one in each county, in Baltimore City and Annapolis). These organizations, besides carrying out their own local preservation programs, assist the Trust by promoting its programs, grants, and loans; sponsoring Preservation Week activities; and advising on preservation needs and interests. The Trust conducts an annual conference and sponsors regional workshops. It hosts special events and issues publications, including news sheets and a quarterly news magazine.

The Trust maintains a library of archival and photographic material relating to Maryland's archaeological and architectural history.

The Board of Trustees of the Maryland Historical Trust is composed of fifteen members. Twelve are appointed to four-year terms by the Governor with Senate advice and consent. Three serve ex officio: the Governor, the Senate President, and the Speaker of the House of Delegates, or their designees. Trustees appoint eight area representatives to serve one-year terms. The Board also appoints the Director.

Maryland's State Historic Preservation Officer, appointed by the Governor pursuant to the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, is a member of the Trust staff. Preservation activities as required by the federal government are carried out by the State Historic Preservation Officer in concert with the Trust (Code 1957, Art. 83B, secs. 5-601 through 5-619).

ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

Created in 1975, the Department of Human Resources serves families and individuals who, due to financial hardship, disability, age, chronic disease, or any other cause, need help in obtaining basic necessities of food and shelter. Children in particular are the concern of day care, foster care, adoption, and protective services that also extend to vulnerable adults. Federally funded programs such as Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), Food Stamps, and Medicaid are administered by the Department with State programs for the homeless, refugees, migrant workers, victims of crime, and women who are displaced, battered, or assaulted.

Many functions of the Department originally were administered by county government from the colonial period to 1900. State government assumed certain responsibilities in 1900 when Maryland's first State agency of public welfare, the Board of State Aid and Charities, was formed. In the 1930s, State efforts were joined by the federal government.

County Poor Relief. Although colonial settlers were nearly all young and able-bodied, disabling accidents and other disasters deprived some of their means of livelihood. Separated by the ocean from family and kin, such unfortunates had nowhere to turn. As early as 1650, an order of the Assembly authorized a tax levy to provide maintenance for the maimed, lame, and blind of St. Mary's County. Still, few people applied for assistance. Creation of a bureaucracy such as existed in England under the poor laws was considered unnecessary and wasteful, even though several governors recommended it. County governments tried to limit their financial obligations. They required persons harboring a stranger to post bond that the stranger would not become a charge on the county. Parents of bastards also had to post bond for their support.

Predating other child protective agencies by centuries, county courts in 1658 began to protect the welfare and estates of orphan children in probate matters. An orphan was any minor who inherited an estate and whose father had died. The court appointed guardians and oversaw administration of a child's resources until the child came of age. When the estate was insufficient for the child's maintenance, the court bound out the child to learn a trade.

In the seventeenth century, Maryland's need for labor was such that no able-bodied person lacked work. Acquisition of land and upward mobility was possible for nearly everyone. As available land was taken up, however, economic conditions changed and, prior to the Revolutionary War, fewer opportunities existed for persons without capital and property.

Two methods of poor relief developed in Maryland. The first was to provide direct payment of money for support, a method which began in the colonial period and continues to this day. The second was to house the poor in a county almshouse, later known as the county home.

As early as 1650, direct support payments (later called out-pensions) developed from annuities granted by the county courts to provide for persons too old, crippled, or young to work. Parish vestries also administered poor relief in some counties, as in England. After the emergence of almshouses in the late eighteenth century, persons receiving relief outside of the almshouse were known as out-pensioners and received an annual pension from the county tax levy. By 1799, out-pensions were granted to the bedridden and people "whose peculiar circumstances may render a situation in the poor-house particularly unsuitable for them" (Chapter 65, Acts of 1799). Annually, the legislature passed laws authorizing persons to receive a pension. These laws indicate that many out-pensions went to relatives caring for orphaned children or a lunatic family member. The 1799 law limited to ten the number of out-pensioners in each county and to thirty dollars the annual amount of each pension, but this law continually was amended.

County Almshouses. The county almshouse became the primary public institution for the destitute. The legislature in 1768, recognizing that "the necessity, number and continual increase, of the poor within this province is very great, and exceedingly burthensome," passed an act to relieve the poor by creating almshouses, or workhouses, in five counties (Chapter 29, Acts of 1768). Later built in other counties as well, almshouses did not function until after the Revolution. The concept behind almshouses was punitive: the original act vested absolute power in each county's five Trustees of the Poor "for the better relieving, regulating and setting the poor to work, and punishing vagrants, beggars, vagabonds and other offenders" (Chapter 29, Acts of 1768). Initially, persons were sentenced to the almshouse, and required to wear a badge on their sleeve with an emblazoned "P" for pauper. This punitive attitude towards the poor also was reflected in the Constitution of 1776, which prohibited men without property from voting. They were disenfranchised until 1801 (Chapter 90, Acts of 1801).

Because the intent was to make the inmates work for their upkeep, almshouses were situated on farms. A workhouse was part of their structure when they first were built. Nonetheless, despite the efforts of trustees and overseers, during most of their history almshouses were not self-supporting; they relied on county tax levies. Because those accepted in the almshouse were adults and children unable to support themselves, the "able-bodied" unemployed were not admitted. Consequently, though the demand was made for hard labor, inmates who were elderly, infirm, crippled, blind, deaf, or insane could not provide it. In 1838, a statewide flurry of interest in silk cultivation resulted in legislation enabling eight counties to embark on that profit-making scheme in their almshouses (Chapters 77, 90, 160, 170, 192, 221, 231, and 296, Acts of 1838). Several counties planned to use profits to hire a teacher for the children of almshouse inmates, but no evidence indicates the scheme was implemented. As in farming, the trustees overestimated the abilities of their work force.

Almshouses survived in Maryland until after 1940 with little change except in the demography of their clientele. The poor and destitute perceived them as a last resort. Inmates were plagued by filth, vermin, inadequate diet, and the crowding together of persons with totally different needs. An 1877 report by the Secretary of the State Board of Health referred to one county almshouse as "a mockery of charity and a nursery of pollution." Almshouses provided relief to people who had no family or friends to support them in the community. Most commonly they were mothers and children, the elderly, insane, feeble-minded, alcoholic, blind, deaf, and other physically handicapped. Vagrants and lunatics, if not in the almshouse, were likely to be confined in the county jail. Almshouses reflected the optimistic faith of the early nineteenth century in the efficacy of institutions in solving, or at least hiding, societal ills. That belief led to the creation of more specialized institutions which eventually reshaped almshouse populations. Children were the first to leave. An 1886 law prohibited the presence in an almshouse of any child aged three to sixteen years of age for more than ninety days, provided of course that the child was not "an unteachable idiot, an epileptic, or a paralytic, or otherwise so disabled or deformed as to render it incapable of labor or service." (Chapter 262, Acts of 1886). Those children removed from almshouses were to be placed by the Trustees of the Poor with a respectable family or in an institution. The trustees previously had authority to bind out pauper children and the children of free blacks and mulattoes as apprentices. Towards the end of the nineteenth century, as the State built institutions for the insane, the feeble-minded, and incurables, and training schools for the deaf and blind, these groups also gradually moved out of the almshouses. As early as 1817, counties could have committed their insane to the Maryland Hospital, which became exclusively a hospital for the mentally ill in 1838. The number of insane persons confined in county almshouses and jails did not diminish, however, even after the second State hospital for the insane was built in 1894. The dependent insane finally were removed to State hospitals in 1911 (Chapter 435, Acts of 1908).

From 1900 to 1940, almshouse residents increasingly became the elderly and chronically ill. In 1906, perhaps to relieve the stigma, almshouses were renamed as county homes (Chapter 32, Acts of 1906). Changing the name did not alleviate the problems. Special commissions reported to the Governor and legislature in 1931, 1933, 1938, and 1940 that conditions in almshouses were a disgrace to a civilized country, jeopardizing the health of their inmates. Nonetheless, until the State built its first chronic care hospital in 1950, almshouse residents had no place to go.

The counties and Baltimore City bore the financial burden of their almshouses and out-pensioners alone, although the General Assembly passed all laws relating to their administration. The State took no direct fiscal responsibility for the poor and destitute; relief came from county taxes. In 1816, an unusual statewide measure for the temporary relief of the poor due to "the awful calamity of a scarcity of grain" enabled counties to borrow, levy, or appropriate funds for their suffering citizens, but no State monies were provided (Chapter 192, Acts of 1816). State funds built a few public institutions in the late nineteenth century, but they were far outnumbered by private charities. The legislature, recognizing the public service of these private institutions, haphazardly granted annual appropriations to a select and favored few, requiring no accountability or efficiency in return.

Private Charities. Private philanthropy grew profusely, paralleling the growth of private fortunes in the nineteenth century. In Baltimore City especially, private citizens and religious bodies supported soup kitchens, orphanages, hospitals, schools, nurseries, and old-age homes. Private charitable institutions developed to meet public welfare needs not met by almshouses, out-pensions, and the few existing State institutions. Due in part to the multiplicity of charitable institutions, out-pensions in Baltimore City ceased around 1862, and, until outlawed by the legislature, City government instead appropriated funds to private charities. Baltimoreans early realized that while private charitable donations and institutions were more than adequate to aid the City's poor, distribution was chaotic and inadequate. Two organizations, the Baltimore Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor (1849) and the Baltimore Charity Organization (1881), were formed to organize philanthropy according to tenets of "scientific charity." Their efforts ultimately professionalized social work but also categorized the poor as worthy and unworthy. To avoid duplication of resources, both organizations used a central registry of recipients and investigated applications for assistance. Their concerns focused more on solutions to underlying causes of poverty than relief of immediate needs.

Modern Public Assistance. Scientific charity attacked in particular the out-pensioner system, which was flawed. For instance, county trustees of the poor or the county levy court (whichever had responsibility for pensions) had no authority or manpower to check on recipients without an act of legislature. A person could receive a pension until death, no matter how circumstances changed. In each county, the process was different with no uniform standard of need or accountability. In contrast, the proponents of scientific charity wanted an organized system with the poor classified and labeled according to need; they believed statistics would provide enlightened forms of relief. Opponents of scientific charity's campaign to end out-pensions argued that most recipients of public assistance were mothers with children who would be separated if pensions were ended. Progressives working for reforms such as workmen's compensation and child labor laws embraced the mothers' pension issue as well. A federal conference in 1909, the White House Conference on Children, influenced some states to establish mothers' pensions. In 1916, Maryland extended partial relief to widows with children under the age of fourteen. County government administered and funded the pensions, each application was investigated, and a mother's worthiness was considered (Chapter 670, Acts of 1916). Pensions went to the most needy, in case county funds were not sufficient to provide pensions to all acceptable applicants.

Board of State Aid and Charities. In Maryland, the State role in social welfare began with the creation in 1900 of the Board of State Aid and Charities, the first State agency with any responsibility for social services (Chapter 679, Acts of 1900). Initially, the Board did not shape State policy for social welfare or administer programs for the poor; instead, the Board investigated private charitable institutions and recommended to the legislature which were worthy to receive State funds. Beginning in 1922, the Board headed the Department of Charities and received annual reports from the State's two tuberculosis sanitoriums (Chapter 29, Acts of 1922).

The Great Depression beginning in 1929 and the resultant New Deal changed the structure of social welfare. The federal government established and funded programs for jobs, old age pensions, allotments for dependent children, and distribution of surplus food commodities. States were responsible for creating the machinery to issue federally subsidized support.

In 1935, Board powers were increased substantially (Chapter 586, Acts of 1935). The Board was authorized to coordinate poor relief in Maryland and administer Aid to Dependent Children, Old Age Assistance, Assistance to the Needy Blind, and General Public Assistance. It also licensed institutions, agencies, or organizations having custody of either children or the elderly; established county welfare boards; and received federal funds and surplus commodities under federal acts relating to public welfare. Under the Board, county welfare boards certified eligible persons for employment in the federal Works Progress Administration, the Public Works Administration, and the Civilian Conservation Corps.

State Department of Public Welfare. Retaining its watchdog function, the State Department of Public Welfare replaced the Board of State Aid and Charities in 1939 (Chapter 99, Acts of 1939). The new Department administered public assistance in Maryland for nearly 30 years.

State Department of Social Services. Reorganized and renamed in 1968, the State Department of Social Services took over duties of the State Department of Public Welfare (Chapter 702, Acts of 1968). It became the Department of Employment and Social Services in 1970 (Chapter 96, Acts of 1970). In 1970, the Department became responsible for all State employment and training programs and various diverse commissions relating to aging, children and youth, migrant labor, manpower, Spanish-speaking persons, and veterans. The Department was renamed the Department of Human Resources in 1975 (Chapter 382, Acts of 1975).

Department of Human Resources. The Department of Human Resources and its predecessor agencies at times have had duties and functions which now belong to other executive departments. From 1970 to 1983, the Department was responsible for employment and training programs now found in the Department of Economic and Employment Development, and from 1943 to 1966 the State Department of Public Welfare had jurisdiction over the juvenile training institutions now within the Department of Juvenile Services. Because the poor were often lumped together with insane, feeble-minded, blind, sick, elderly and criminal persons, both in institutions and in the public mind, duties of the Department of Human Resources often have overlapped those of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. Chronic care hospitals, now under the latter department, began as tuberculosis sanitoriums overseen by the Department of Charities. The first State inspection of almshouses was conducted in 1876 by the State Board of Health, and later the Board of Mental Hygiene was required to inspect them every six months.

Today, the Department of Human Resources encompasses five administrations: Child Care, Social Services, Income Maintenance, Child Support Enforcement, and Community Services. The Community Services Administration oversees Adult Services, Maryland Energy Assistance, Food and Nutrition Services, Homeless Services, Legal Services, Women's Services, and the Maryland Office of Refugee Affairs. The Administration also includes the Maryland Commission for Women, the Governor's Commission on Migratory and Seasonal Farm Labor, the Governor's Commission on Hispanic Affairs, and the Office of Asian-Pacific American Affairs (Code 1957, Art. 41, secs. 6-101 through 6-407).

The Secretary of Human Resources directs the Department. Appointed by the Governor with Senate advice and consent, the Secretary serves on the Governor's Executive Council; the Governor's Subcabinet for Children, Youth, and Families; the Governor's Council on Adolescent Pregnancy; the Governor's Commission on Hispanic Affairs; the Governor's Drug and Alcohol Abuse Commission; and the Governor's Volunteer Council. The Secretary also serves on the Interdepartmental Advisory Committee for Minority Affairs; the State Board of Victim Services; the State Advisory Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse; the Advisory Council on Landlord-Tenant Affairs; the Interagency Committee on Aging Services; the Domiciliary Care Facilities Board; and the State Commission on Infant Mortality Prevention.

DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN RESOURCES ADVISORY COUNCIL

Leonard R. Sachs, Chairperson, 1995
(410) 767-7109

The Department of Human Resources Advisory Council was created in 1984 (Chapter 421, Acts of 1984). The Council advises the Secretary of Human Resources on program plans, grant levels, eligibility requirements, and the Department budget. The Council also serves as a forum for public comment and keeps local boards of social services informed of actions of the Council and other local boards.

The Council's fifteen to twenty-five members are appointed by the Secretary of Human Resources with the approval of the Governor. The Secretary of Human Resources designates the chairperson (Code 1957, Art. 41, sec. 6-105).

MARYLAND CITIZEN BOARD FOR REVIEW OF FOSTER CARE FOR CHILDREN

Iris Gordon, Chairperson, 1994
Charles R. Cooper, Administrator

2701 North Charles St.
Baltimore, MD 21218 (410) 767-7330

The Maryland Citizen Board for Review of Foster Care for Children was established in 1978 to coordinate the activities of local citizen review boards (Chapter 980, Acts of 1978). The State Board promulgates policies and procedures relating to the functions of local review boards. It also makes recommendations to the General Assembly on foster care policies and procedures (Code Family Law Article, secs. 5-535 through 5-547).

Every six months, the local boards review cases of children who have resided in foster care for more than six months to determine what efforts have been made towards their permanent placement. For each child reviewed, a recommendation is sent to the local department of social services and the juvenile court. With the concurrence of the Social Services Administration, the State Board may establish categories of foster children for whom a satisfactory permanent arrangement has been made and who may be exempt from local review.

Local review board members are appointed by the Governor for four-year terms. There are five members and two alternates on each local board.

The State Board is composed of eleven members. Each local review board of Judicial Circuits nos. 1 through 7 elects a member to the State Board. From Judicial Circuit no. 8, the local review boards choose three State Board members. The Governor also appoints one member from the executive staff. Members serve two-year terms concurrent with their individual terms on the local review board.

The Administrator is appointed by the State Board with the approval of the Secretary of Human Resources.

OFFICE OF LOCAL OPERATIONS

Jules B. Margolis, Assistant Secretary for Local Operations (410) 767-7711

The Office of Local Operations was established in 1994 as a direct link between the Office of the Secretary of Human Resources and the local departments of social services in each county and Baltimore City. The Office serves as liaison for local departments on policy and planning; helps local departments resolve problems; promotes "community partnerships"; and conducts on-site reviews and evaluations.

PROGRAMS

Daryl C. Plevy, Esq., Deputy Secretary for Programs

311 West Saratoga St.
Baltimore, MD 21201 (410) 767-7486

The Deputy Secretary for Programs oversees the major programs of the Department. In conjunction with local departments of social services, these programs are carried out by five administrations: Social Services; Income Maintenance; Community Services; Child Support Enforcement; and Child Care.

SOCIAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION

Diane W. Gordy, State Director of Social Services
Yvonne Gilchrist, Deputy Director

311 West Saratoga St.
Baltimore, MD 21201 (410) 767-7216

The Social Services Administration originated as the Board of State Aid and Charities in 1900 (Chapter 679, Acts of 1900). In 1939, the Board was replaced by the State Department of Public Welfare (Chapter 99, Acts of 1939). The Department was renamed the State Department of Social Services in 1968 (Chapter 702, Acts of 1968). In 1970, it became the Social Services Administration (Chapter 96, Acts of 1970).

The Social Services Administration coordinates and directs all social services in the State (Code 1957, Art. 41, sec. 6-106). These include adoption, foster care, protective services to children and families, and services to families with children.

The Social Services Administration develops and coordinates services, determines what factors contribute to social and family problems, and recommends ways to address those problems. In carrying out these responsibilities, the Administration calls upon local departments of social services for leadership within their communities and for participation in statewide programs. Baltimore City and each county have a local department of social services. The director of the local department administers social services locally subject to the supervision, direction, and control of the Social Services Administration.

The Social Services Administration supervises all public and private institutions that have the care, custody, or control of dependent, abandoned or neglected children, except those placed under supervision of another agency. It licenses agencies and institutions having the care and custody of minors.

The State Director of Social Services is appointed by the Secretary of Human Resources with the Governor's approval (Code 1957, Art. 88A, sec. 2).

In each county, the local department of social services has a nine-member board of social services.

Board members are appointed to three-year terms by the local governing authority. One member is a member of the local governing body, designated to serve ex officio. In Baltimore City, the board is called the social services commission. The Mayor appoints its members to six-year terms. The Mayor and the Commissioner of Health serve ex officio (Code 1957, Art. 88A, secs. 1, 2, 4, 14, 14A).

The Social Services Administration is organized into the Special Projects Division and five offices: Family and Children's Services; Federal Funding Initiatives; Program Review and Monitoring; Executive Management and Support Services; and Child Placement Resources.

OFFICE OF FAMILY & CHILDREN'S SERVICES

Linda M. Heisner, Director
(410) 767-7026

The Office of Family and Children's Services originated as the Office of Family and Child Development Services in 1980 and was reorganized under its present name in 1991.

The Office sets policy and standards for four programs: Child Protective Services, Family Services, Foster Care, and Adoption. The Office also is responsible for Maryland's part in the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children, the Maryland Adoption Resource Exchange, and the Mutual Consent Voluntary Adoption Registry.

OFFICE OF FEDERAL FUNDING INITIATIVES

Margaret J. Sisk, Director
(410) 767-7287

Functions of the Office of Federal Funding Initiatives date to the 1930s when the federal government first contributed to the funding of State social welfare programs. In 1991, the Office of Federal Program Reimbursement was created. Later that year, it was renamed the Office of Federal Funding Initiatives. The Office is responsible for three programs: Emergency Services to Families with Children (Title IV-A); (Title IV-E); and Supplemental Security Income for Foster Care Children (Title XIII).

Under Title IV-A of the federal Social Security Act, the federal government pays 50 percent of the administrative costs for child welfare programs to alleviate abuse, neglect, or abandonment, or the threat of those conditions, and pays for the first six months of foster care for children removed from their homes due to such conditions. Title IV-E provides federal funds for 50 percent of administrative costs and maintenance payments for foster care and adoptive children who meet federal income requirements and removal criteria. Disabled or functionally delayed children in State foster care or adoption programs are screened to determine their eligibility for Supplementary Security Income under Title XIII of the federal Social Security Act.

OFFICE OF PROGRAM REVIEW & MONITORING

Grace C. Clark, Director
(410) 767-7632

The Office of Program Review and Monitoring was formed in 1980 as the Office of Program Support and adopted its present name in 1991. The Office provides technical, automation, statistical and monitoring functions that are vital to the Administration's varied programs.

OFFICE OF EXECUTIVE MANAGEMENT & SUPPORT SERVICES

Barbara S. Law, Director
(410) 767-7095

The Office originated as the Office of Administrative Support Services in 1980 and received its present name in 1991. To support the operation of Department programs, the Office provides essential services, including rates management, contracts and procurements, training, and budgeting.

SPECIAL PROJECTS DIVISION

Calvin D. Street, Director
(410) 767-7659

The Special Projects Division was formed in 1993 to coordinate interagency efforts to plan, fund, and implement new human service projects that address the needs of Department clients. Current projects focus on the problem of drug abuse.

OFFICE OF CHILD PLACEMENT RESOURCES

Jean E. Clarren, Director
(410) 767-7675

Functions of the Office of Child Placement Resources originated in 1927 when the Board of State Aid and Charities was authorized to license institutions, associations, agencies and individuals having the care, custody, and control of children (Chapter 632, Acts of 1927). By 1954 the Bureau of Child Welfare was part of the State Department of Public Welfare (Chapter 519, Acts of 1953). In 1965, the Bureau was reorganized as the Bureau of Family and Child Welfare Services (Chapter 817, Acts of 1965). The Bureau, by 1980, functioned as the Office of Child Welfare Services under the Social Services Administration. The Office received its present name in 1991.

The Office seeks and approves residences for children who are in crisis or who have been removed from the home of their parents.

INCOME MAINTENANCE ADMINISTRATION

Katherine L. Cook, Acting State Director of Income Maintenance
George Sinclair, Deputy Director

311 West Saratoga St.
Baltimore, MD 21202 (410) 767-7338

The Income Maintenance Administration, formerly part of the Social Services Administration, was established first by Executive Order and then by law in 1980 (Chapter 26, Acts of 1980). The Income Maintenance Administration coordinates and supervises all public assistance programs in the State (Code 1957, Art. 88A, sec. 1A). These programs include Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC); Disability Assistance and Loan Program (DALP); Food Stamps; and Medical Assistance.

The Administration certifies eligible low-income families for the Medical Assistance Program (Medicaid). In agreement with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Administration also directs the Food Stamps Program.

The Administration sets policy for local departments of social services to follow in determining eligibility for financial assistance, Medical Assistance, and Food Stamps. In Baltimore City and in each county, the local director of social services administers public assistance programs subject to the supervision, direction, and control of the Income Maintenance Administration.

The State Director of Income Maintenance is appointed by the Secretary of Human Resources with the Governor's approval (Code 1957, Art. 88A, sec. 1A).

Four offices are part of the Administration: Policy Administration; Quality Assurance; Program Innovations; and Administrative Services.

OFFICE OF POLICY ADMINISTRATION

Beth Boyd, Acting Director
(410) 767-7055

The Office of Policy Administration was formed as the Office of Policy Development in 1992 and received its present name in 1993.

DIVISION OF POLICY

Beth Boyd, Manager
(410) 767-7927

PRIMARY PREVENTION INITIATIVE OFFICE

Joyce Underwood, Program Manager
George Van Hook, Program Supervisor
(410) 767-7298

The Primary Prevention Initiative Program began in January 1993 as a five-year demonstration project. The Program tests the impact of sanctions and incentives on the behavior of welfare recipients.

To prevent long-term dependence on public assistance, the Program encourages welfare recipients to take responsibility for their children's school attendance and health care. The Program requires parents to secure regular comprehensive, preventive health care for their children from birth to age 6. School-age children must attend school at least 80 percent of the time. For each child not in compliance, a standard deduction is made from the family's monthly benefit check. Supportive intervention services, such as counseling and seminars, are available to assist parents. Also, bonuses may be earned for prenatal health care of pregnant women or for preventive health care of children over age 6.

DISABILITY ENTITLEMENT ADVOCACY PROGRAM

David F. Baker, Manager
(410) 767-8910

Begun in 1987, the Disability Entitlement Advocacy Program helps disabled recipients of General Public Assistance apply for federal Medicaid, Social Security, and Supplemental Security Income benefits. The Program also aids in the documentation process and acts as advocate for persons with disabilities at entitlement and appeal hearings.

OFFICE OF QUALITY ASSURANCE

The Administration subcontracts with twenty local agencies (departments of social services, governments, and community action agencies) and 450 energy suppliers to provide energy assistance to eligible low-income people across the State. Under the Program, vendors provide a combination of fuel oil, electricity, gas (natural and/or propane), wood, and coal to eligible householders statewide. Eligibility for assistance is based on household size, income, fuel type, and geographic location. Those with the greatest need receive the highest level of assistance. Benefits reflect a fixed portion of average fuel consumption based on fuel type. They range from 32 to 85 percent of average consumption. Heating assistance is offered to eligible renters, roomers, boarders, and homeowners. Maryland is the first state to offer this aid to shelters for battered spouses and the homeless.

The Program also offers Emergency Energy Assistance to householders certified eligible for regular MEAP benefits. Provided on a one-time-only basis, this assistance is for fuel deliveries, utility cut-offs, emergency repairs, blankets, emergency space heaters, or emergency shelter. It may not exceed $180. Benefits provided are paid directly to energy vendors selected by the eligible household. Vendors deliver fuel to a household until the family's benefit amount is exhausted. Legal Services, then known as Judicare, was created in 1971. It helps low-income persons obtain civil legal services.

Through a pro bono supplementation program, Legal Services encourages private attorneys to take pro bono cases by paying $30 an hour, without a cap, to attorneys who have taken a case from a participating pro bono program and have put in an initial 20 hours of volunteer time on that particular case. Supplementation is paid after the attorney has both put in the 20 hours of pro bono time and requested coverage under the supplementation program.

Legal Services contracts with the Legal Aid Bureau and the Maryland Disability Law Center to represent children in Child in Need of Assistance (CINA) cases and, also with the Center, to represent persons subject to Adult Protective Services proceedings.

Court-appointed attorneys are paid by Legal Services to represent children in CINA and other juvenile causes in which the Department of Human Resources is involved, CINA parents in termination of parental rights proceedings, and persons subject to Adult Protective Services proceedings.

With the Maryland Legal Services Corporation Legal Services has a contract that funnels to the Corporation each year the half million dollars of State support provided by the Maryland Legal Services Corporation Act.

Baltimore, MD 21201 (410) 767-7176

The Women's Services Program was created in 1983 by the Department and the Community Services Administration. The Program was renamed in 1991 as the Women's Advocacy Program. In 1992, the Program received its present name.

Women's Services coordinates services for battered spouses, displaced homemakers, victims of crime, rape crisis, shelter for homeless women, and transitional housing. In addition, Women's Services administers the New Choices Program of the Primary Prevention Initiative within the Income Maintenance Administration. Under the Program, workshops on problem-solving are conducted as a supportive service to recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) who have not met program requirements for preventive health care or school attendance. Participation in New Choices allows families to find solutions for meeting program requirements without losing any of their AFDC benefits.

The Battered Spouse Program provides services to spouses who suffered beatings and their children when they must leave home to safeguard their lives and welfare. The Program began as a model shelter in 1971. Through a network of eighteen community organizations, the Program offers temporary shelter or help in finding shelter, counseling, information, and referral for the victim, and rehabilitation for the abuser (Code Family Law Article, secs. 4-513 through 4-516).

The Displaced Homemakers Program was created as a model program in 1976. In 1979, the model became a permanent project with statewide focus (Chapter 339, Acts of 1979). The Program helps homemakers who are displaced due to the death or disability of, or divorce, separation, or abandonment by a family member upon whom they depended for income. A network of twelve community-based organizations helps displaced homemakers become self-sufficient through counseling, training, and employment assistance (Code Family Law Article, secs. 4-601, 4-602).

Established in 1983, the Rape Crisis Program gives specialized support to victims of rape and sexual assault. Sixteen community-based organizations provide telephone hotlines, counseling, and medical and legal accompaniment.

The Homeless Women's Shelter Program originated in 1980 from legislation to establish a model crisis shelter for homeless women. Currently, the Program maintains ten homes, which provide temporary residence and counseling to enable clients to secure more permanent living situations and resolve the problems which led to the homelessness.

The Transitional Housing Program was created in 1986 as part of the Governor's Housing Initiative. Three pilot projects were established consisting of small multifamily residences with supervision and on-site support services. Homeless single mothers and their children live in the residences for up to eighteen months while the women obtain the education and skills needed to become self-sufficient.

CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT ADMINISTRATION

Kenneth H. Rumsey, Acting Executive Director

311 West Saratoga St.
Baltimore, MD 21201

(410) 767-7674

Within the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services, enforcement of court-ordered child support formerly was the duty of the Division of Parole and Probation. Then, under the Department of Human Resources, from 1979 to 1984, the Income Maintenance Administration was the public agency through which support payments were channeled. In 1984, the Child Support Enforcement Administration was created in the Department of Human Resources to provide child support services for families (Chapter 296, Acts of 1984). Through local departments of social services, State's Attorneys' offices, courts, and other agencies, the Administration locates absent parents; determines paternity; establishes, reviews, modifies, and enforces support orders; and collects and disburses support payments (Code Family Law Article, secs. 10-106 through 10-117).

Recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) and Non-Public Assistance Medical Assistance receive services at no charge and are required to cooperate with the Administration in order to secure support. After the first $50 collected each month is paid to the family receiving AFDC, any further support collected is reimbursed to the State and federal governments for public assistance paid to the family.

For a one-time fee of $20 regardless of income, the Administration also provides services to all other families. Collections made on behalf of such families are paid in full to the family.

 ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

The Department of Juvenile Services works with troubled youth. In the colonial period, children who turned to crime, begging, or vagrancy could be jailed with hardened criminals. By the end of the eighteenth century, they could be committed to an almshouse. County courts and local trustees of the poor also bound out such children to learn a trade so that local government would not have to support them. As Maryland built its first prison in 1811, the idea came into vogue that the State ultimately could save money by stopping children from embarking on a life of crime. Children would be separated from adults in places of detention and given a home, education, and training for a trade.

Private and Quasi-public Reformatories. In 1830, the legislature passed "An Act to establish a House of Refuge for Juvenile Delinquents" (Chapter 64, Acts of 1830). A private corporation supported by member subscriptions, the House of Refuge nevertheless had ties to State and local government. Of its twenty-four managers, eight were appointed by the Governor and Council, eight by the membership, and eight by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore. Managers were to report annually to the legislature, and the institution's buildings and grounds would be tax-free. The House of Refuge was to admit minors who were arrested for begging in the streets of Baltimore; arrested, awaiting trial, or convicted of any criminal charge in the courts of Baltimore City or Baltimore County; found refractory by almshouse trustees; or convicted by a county court of an offense punishable by imprisonment in the Penitentiary. Instead of granting an outright appropriation to the fledgling institution, the General Assembly assigned up to $5,000 annually for five years from the profits of the Maryland Penitentiary to support the House of Refuge. Those five years were unprofitable for the Penitentiary and consequently for the House of Refuge as well. Financial difficulties hampered construction and, by 1841, the managers were ready to return contributions (Chapter 3, Acts of 1841). In 1849, while the legislature appropriated no State funds to hasten construction, it did amend the 1830 law. Upon complaint of a parent or guardian, the House of Refuge now was authorized to admit incorrigible minors prior to arrest (Chapter 374, Acts of 1849). That same year the Penitentiary Warden in his annual report alluded to ... mere youths, who are here for their first offences, and whose offences it is but charitable to conclude, were the results more of thoughtlessness or of circumstances than of any confirmed principle of crime. Of this description we have three prisoners between the ages of 13 and 15, and 18 between the ages of 15 and 18, a majority of whom are in for trivial offences,—and may I not ask, would not fine or the alternative of confinement in a house of correction, as is the case in some of our sister states, be a more appropriate way of disposing of the perpetrators of such offences, than imprisonment in the Penitentiary?

In recommending State aid, a select committee of the House of Delegates noted in 1852 that the House of Refuge had been contemplated for thirty-eight years, with $20,000 contributed thus far by the City of Baltimore, $22,000 from private subscriptions, and not one penny from the State. By December 1855, the House of Refuge opened. A year later, another select committee visited and found it "a grand and noble institution," and the General Assembly appropriated $10,000 annually to its support for five years (Chapter 288, Acts of 1856). By 1867, according to the annual report, the House of Refuge had housed 1,638 children: 1,394 boys and 244 girls.

Midcentury, private institutions, including orphanages and reformatories, proliferated, especially in Baltimore City. The Home of the Friendless was incorporated in 1854, followed by the Children's Aid Society in 1862, the House of the Good Shepherd in 1864, and St. Joseph's House of Industry and St. Mary's Industrial School for Boys in 1865. With State appointees on their governing boards and fairly regular government funding, these institutions became quasi-public in nature and received children committed by courts, magistrates, justices of the peace, parents, or guardians.

After the Civil War, reformatories for youth were established as private institutions segregated by race and gender. Four ultimately became public reformatories: the House of Refuge; the House of Reformation; the Maryland Industrial School for Girls; and the Industrial Home for Colored Girls. After the House of Refuge came the Maryland Industrial School for Girls, incorporated in 1866 for the "care, reformation and instruction of such girls as are not admitted into either the House of Refuge, the Home of the Friendless, or the Children's Aid Society, but who need the care of some public reformatory institution" (Chapter 156, Acts of 1866). Initially, directors of the School were chosen from the membership or appointed by the Mayor of Baltimore; the School received no State aid but its property was tax-exempt. By 1870, however, the Governor appointed ten of thirty directors (Chapter 391, Acts of 1870). The School was renamed the Female House of Refuge in 1880 (Chapter 173, Acts of 1880).

The House of Reformation and Instruction for Colored Children was incorporated in 1870 (Chapter 392, Acts of 1870), perhaps in response to the "Memorial of the Grand Jury of Baltimore City Praying that a Place of Punishment may be Provided for Minor Colored Children" (House Documents, X, February 5, 1867). The Governor appointed two of sixteen managers; buildings and grounds were tax-free; a report to the General Assembly was required; and, contingent on $30,000 from private subscriptions, an appropriation of $5,000 was allotted annually for two years. In 1882, the Industrial Home for Colored Girls was established and given tax-exempt status (Chapter 291, Acts of 1882). The Governor appointed two of its eleven managers.

These private reformatories served a public role as caretakers for the State's youthful offenders. Two of them, indeed, became public agencies of the State in 1918. The former House of Refuge, then known as the Maryland School for Boys, became the Maryland Training School for Boys, the State reformatory for white boys (Chapter 300, Acts of 1918). Its counterpart for white girls, the former Maryland Industrial School for Girls, then the Female House of Refuge was designated the Maryland Industrial Training School for Girls (Chapter 303, Acts of 1918).

In an executive reorganization of 1922, both training schools together with the Maryland School for the Deaf were placed under the Department of Education (Chapter 29, Acts of 1922). When Maryland, in 1931, established the Maryland Training School for Colored Girls as a reformatory, superseding the Industrial Home for Colored Girls, it too came under the oversight of the State Superintendent of Schools (Chapter 367, Acts of 1931). The State completed its acquisition of private reform schools in 1937 by taking over the House of Reformation at Cheltenham as the State reformatory for black boys and renaming it Cheltenham School for Boys (Chapter 70, Acts of 1937).

State Department of Public Welfare. By the 1940s, though the State paid for institutional care for children in public and private institutions, services were not coordinated nor standards set for care. Each institution controlled its own admissions and parole. Yet, staff and funding for parole were so limited that children often failed to readjust to the community and were reinstitutionalized. The State Board of Public Welfare had more authority over private institutions than over the State training schools which were full of untrainable, mentally handicapped delinquents and nondelinquent children who would have benefitted from in-home or foster care had such programs been available. Maryland's child welfare services were desperately in need of coordination to ensure that each child received appropriate care. In 1943, the Maryland Commission on Juvenile Delinquency recommended creation of a Bureau of Child Welfare under the State Department of Public Welfare; placement of the State's four institutions for delinquent children under a division for children's institutions within the Bureau of Child Welfare; and establishment of an institution (somewhere between a training school and prison) for incorrigible offenders between ages 16 to 20. The legislature responded the same year by requiring the State Department of Public Welfare to supervise both public and private institutions "having the care, custody or control of dependent, delinquent, abandoned or neglected children;" creating a Bureau of Child Welfare with a Division of Institutions within the Department; placing the State training schools under the Department's supervision; and requiring the Department to establish standards for care, admission, discharge, and after-care (Chapter 797, Acts of 1943). The Division of Institutions oversaw the State's training schools for delinquent children: Maryland Training School for Boys, the Montrose School for Girls (formerly Maryland Industrial Training School for Girls), the Cheltenham School for Boys, and the Maryland Training School for Colored Girls. The State Department of Public Welfare also later administered the forestry camps first established in 1955 for delinquent boys in Western Maryland. Under the Department of Juvenile Services, these camps were reorganized in 1977 as youth centers.

Juvenile Courts. In the nineteenth century, institutions were seen as the solution to many social ills. But for juvenile offenders, the existence of reformatories did not preclude the possibility of a jail or prison sentence. Minors who committed a crime still could be tried, convicted, and punished like adults. In 1849, approximately 8 percent of Maryland Penitentiary prisoners were between the ages of 13 to 18. In 1897, some 42 years after the founding of the House of Refuge for juveniles, roughly 15 percent of prisoners in the Penitentiary were between 12 and 20 years of age just prior to conviction, and 21 percent in the Maryland House of Correction were aged 10 to 20 years when first imprisoned.

Progressives, at the turn of the century, were concerned about youth in prisons. They believed that children were not criminals and that they needed treatment, not punishment. Reformers helped establish the first juvenile court in the country in Chicago in 1899. Baltimore did not lag far behind. The Charity Organization Society lobbied for a Magistrate for Juvenile Causes to hear cases of minors under age 16 in Baltimore City. The law, passed in 1902, allowed the magistrate, who was a justice of the peace, to commit children awaiting trial to a reformatory instead of jail, and authorized the Supreme Bench to appoint unpaid probation officers to investigate the circumstances of each child brought to trial, represent the interests of the child, and have control and custody of the child before and after the trial. Court proceedings could be suspended and a child placed on conditional probation under supervision of a probation officer (Chapter 611, Acts of 1902).

In the counties, juvenile delinquency was less acute. Nevertheless, in 1916 county circuit courts were empowered to designate a judge who would hear, try, and determine cases of dependent, neglected or delinquent children (Chapter 326, Acts of 1916). For the first time, the law defined a delinquent child as a boy under age 20 or a girl under age 18 who had violated a criminal law; was incorrigible; associated with thieves or other depraved persons; was growing up in idleness or crime; frequented gambling places; beer saloons and other unsavory places; or was guilty of indecent, immoral or lascivious behavior. Each circuit court was to appoint paid probation officers. The law also prohibited confinement of a child under age 14 in a jail or police station with other prisoners.

Public concern about child welfare prompted the Governor to appoint two commissions: the Children's Code Commission of 1922, and the Commission on Laws of Minors, which completed its work in 1924. Instigated by the League of Women Voters, the Children's Code Commission found that many children were trapped in the juvenile system and cited the case of a 2 and 1/2 year old child, committed to reform school as an incorrigible minor. Committed children remained in custody of reformatories until they reached age 21. Both commissions reviewed all laws in Maryland relating to minors and found that despite the 1916 statute, only seven counties had established juvenile courts. The Commissions recommended that juvenile courts be mandated, and decisions of the Juvenile Court of Baltimore City be given more judicial weight so as to be less easily reversed. Further, they found that supervision of children's welfare ought to be vested in one agency, the State Board of Welfare. Perhaps because a Judiciary Commission was at the same time studying ways to revise the whole judicial system, no action was taken until 1931 to make juvenile courts more effective.

In 1931, juvenile jurisdiction was removed from the county circuit courts (Chapter 323, Acts of 1931). The Governor appointed an additional justice of the peace for each county to serve as Magistrate for Juvenile Causes with criminal jurisdiction and exclusive jurisdiction over cases of commitment of minors under age 16. The Magistrate was authorized to conduct informal hearings, place a minor on probation at any stage of the court proceeding, or cause the minor to be examined by a doctor, psychiatrist, or psychologist. A minor, upon arrest, would be detained in a suitable place such as a juvenile institution, not the county jail. In each county, the Governor appointed juvenile court committees to confer with and assist the Magistrate for Juvenile Causes. The Magistrate named probation officers with constabulary authority who were required to have at least one year's experience in social work. The 1931 law, however, did not apply to Baltimore City, or Allegany, Washington and Baltimore counties.

The rate of juvenile crime increased in the 1940s and, in Maryland, focused attention on the place of minors within the criminal justice system. After public outcry, the Governor appointed a commission in 1940 and another in 1941 to study the problem. They drew similar conclusions. Only eight counties had juvenile courts, probation officers, or someplace other than the county jail for detention of minors. Only four counties had active juvenile court committees. In Baltimore City, the Juvenile Court lacked authority to handle felonies committed by children and needed a temporary detention center. In 1943, the Maryland Commission on Juvenile Delinquency called for reform of the juvenile courts, and for study and implementation of crime prevention plans. The Commission agreed with recommendations of the White House Conference of 1940 that juvenile courts should adjudicate, but treatment functions should be assigned to State and local departments of child welfare. Reforming juvenile courts included ending the system of magistrates for juvenile causes; defining the age limit for juvenile offenders; distinguishing between criminal and juvenile causes; and giving exclusive jurisdiction for juvenile causes to the Circuit Courts of the counties and the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City. Thereafter, the juvenile causes law was revised first for Baltimore City and then for the counties.

In 1943, the old magistrate court for Baltimore City was abolished and a new Circuit Court for Juvenile Causes established (Chapter 818, Acts of 1943). A Master of Juvenile Causes could conduct preliminary hearings and commit children to the State Department of Public Welfare. For Baltimore City, the law defined a child as being under age 16. In 1945, the State juvenile causes law was revised. It abolished the magistrate system, gave exclusive jurisdiction in juvenile cases to the county circuit court, and defined a child to be under age 18 (Chapter 797, Acts of 1945). No longer could a child be charged with the commission of any crime. Under the new law, a minor under age 18 could be charged only as a dependent, delinquent, neglected or feeble-minded child. Appointed by the judge, probation officers still were to make preliminary and follow-up investigations. In any case concerning a child, the judge could dismiss the case; place the child on probation; give custody of the child to a public or private institution or person; or, in cases which would be a misdemeanor or felony if committed by an adult, waive jurisdiction. Some counties were not covered by the new law.

Further reform came in 1969 when the concept of a "child in need of supervision" (CINS) became significant. Such a child was defined as habitually truant, disobedient, ungovernable, a danger to himself or others, or one who had committed an offense applicable only to children, and required guidance, treatment, or rehabilitation (Chapter 432, Acts of 1969). Previously, a CINS had been included in the definition of delinquent child, who was redefined as a child who had committed a delinquent act (any act which would be a crime if committed by an adult) and required supervision, treatment, or rehabilitation. Separating the two categories of youthful offenders gave impetus to the movement away from institutional care towards broader-based community treatment. The 1969 law required not only that children be detained separately from adults but also that adjudicated delinquents be kept away from alleged delinquents; children in need of supervision; or neglected, mentally handicapped or dependent minors. Despite prohibitions going back at least to 1916, the legislature found it necessary to include a deadline in the 1969 law after which no child could be detained in a jail or adult facility. This deadline was later extended to January 1, 1975 (Chapter 616, Acts of 1971). By 1973, in-home or community care for the CINS virtually was mandated, when it became unlawful to commit any child except an adjudicated delinquent to a juvenile institution (Chapter 737, Acts of 1973).

Department of Juvenile Services. After the 1945 revision of the juvenile causes law, the juvenile justice system diversified according to local needs, finances, and beliefs. Each county handled juvenile problems differently, with a child's needs often not adequately met. The Advisory Council on Child Welfare, established in 1963, reported to the legislature in 1965 that Maryland lacked a uniform statewide probation service for juvenile courts. Citing the unequal administration of juvenile justice, the General Assembly called for the Legislative Council to initiate a study to determine: a uniform age limit for the jurisdiction of juvenile courts; an appropriate age limit for commitment of juveniles to institutions; and the most effective way to establish standard probation services (Joint Resolution no. 16, Acts of 1965). That study led to the creation of the State Department of Juvenile Services in 1966 as the "central coordinating agency for juvenile investigation, probation and aftercare services and for State juvenile, diagnostic, training, detention, and rehabilitation institutions" (Chapter 126, Acts of 1966). Personnel providing investigative, probation and after-care services to juvenile courts were employees of the new department but under the direct supervision and control of the juvenile court judge.

The Department of Juvenile Services in 1967 assumed administrative responsibilities for all State juvenile training schools, children's centers, and boys' forestry camps, previously overseen by the State Department of Public Welfare. At the same time, the Department of Juvenile Services initiated a single statewide program for juvenile probation and aftercare services, formerly provided by the counties, Baltimore City, the State Department of Public Welfare, and the State Department of Parole and Probation. In 1969, the Department of Juvenile Services, then known as the Juvenile Services Administration, was placed within the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (Chapter 77, Acts of 1969). Reorganized as an independent unit, it was renamed the Juvenile Services Agency in 1987 (Chapter 290, Acts of 1987). The Agency was reorganized in 1989 as the Department of Juvenile Services, a principal department of State government (Chapter 539, Acts of 1989).

Since 1969, through field offices in each county and Baltimore City, intake officers from Juvenile Services receive and process complaints filed against juveniles. Most complaints come from the police after a juvenile has been arrested, but parents, teachers, social workers, or any citizen may file a complaint. The intake officer makes a preliminary inquiry as to whether court proceedings are in the child's best interest and then may dismiss the complaint, file a petition for court action, or resolve the complaint out of court through informal supervision or diversion to community-based services. Most complaints now are resolved without court action. When a petition for court action is filed, the intake officer recommends whether detention is necessary prior to adjudication, and a detention hearing is held in juvenile court. Next, an adjudicatory hearing determines whether the child is delinquent or in need of supervision. Then a disposition hearing decides on adequate treatment for the child, either at home, under community supervision, in an out-of-home residence, or for those categorized as dangerous to themselves and others, through commitment to a secure institution. The Department of Juvenile Services is responsible for providing care to youth adjudicated delinquent or CINS (child in need of supervision), and since 1971 also is responsible for developing programs for the "predelinquent" child, one whose behavior is likely to lead to contact with law enforcement agencies (Chapter 480, Acts of 1971). Up until 1991, Juvenile Services intake officers also received complaints and filed petitions for children in need of assistance (CINA), who now come under the care of local departments of social services (Chapter 343, Acts of 1991).

In the past twenty-five years the State has significantly altered the way it cares for troubled youth. Maryland no longer relies on custodial care in institutions to treat juveniles who have violated the law. Juvenile Services' most recent reform initiative is best characterized by the 1988 closing of the Montrose School, the 1991 privatization of the Charles H. Hickey, Jr., School, and expansion of community-based alternatives to institutionalization.

The Department of Juvenile Services provides individualized care and treatment, consistent with the public safety, to youth under the age of eighteen who violate the criminal law, or are likely to violate the law, or whose behavior is such that they may endanger themselves or others. Whenever feasible, the Department serves troubled youth in their homes or residences within the community. The Department is responsible for probation, that is, the supervision of youngsters who are adjudicated delinquent but not institutionalized; and aftercare, the supervision and counseling of minors for a prescribed period of time upon their release from an institution. The Department also administers community-based residential programs, and nonresidential and residential services provided by private vendors.

In addition, the Department operates institutional programs for juveniles who pose a risk to public safety. The Charles H. Hickey, Jr., School, which serves adjudicated delinquents who cannot be served in a less restrictive setting, provides specialized education and treatment to committed youth. The Department's five detention facilities provide short-term residential care to juveniles awaiting trial or court disposition. The Department also licenses private and publicly operated residential programs serving troubled youth.

To ensure compliance with licensing regulations, Program Monitoring oversees those private firms licensed by the Department of Juvenile Services to provide residential services for troubled youth. Those providers also under contract with the Department are monitored for contract compliance. Every fiscal year, a formal licensing or program audit is conducted for each licensed facility.

In addition to the annual audit, Program Monitoring develops a plan to monitor the unique characteristics and needs of each licensed program. ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

The Department of Licensing and Regulation supervises many of the State's licensing and regulatory boards. Created in 1970, the Department consolidated over thirty State agencies and boards responsible for licensing and regulating businesses, professions, and trades.

The oldest of the Department's agencies date to the nineteenth century: the Bureau of Statistics and Information (1884); and the State Board of Examining Engineers (1892). More boards were established in the twentieth century: the Board of Examiners of Public Accountants (1900); the Board of Barber Examiners (1904); the State Board of Commissioners of Practical Plumbing; the Maryland State Board of Censors (1916); the State Athletic Commission and Maryland Racing Commission (1920); the Board of Examiners and Registration of Architects, and the Board of Hairdressers and Beauty Culturists (1935); the State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers, and the Real Estate Commission of Maryland (1939); and the Maryland Home Improvement Commission (1962).

Some early regulatory agencies became obsolete. Functions, for example, of the Examiners of Horseshoers, formed in 1898, and the Board of Examining Moving Picture Machine Operators, established in 1910, were discontinued. Enduring agencies operated as separate entities.

The first effort to bring together licensing and regulatory boards came in 1951, when the Central License Office was authorized to house five boards (Chapter 280, Acts of 1951). The Office provided office space and clerical services to the Board of Barber Examiners, the Board of Examining Engineers, the Board of Examiners of Motion Picture Machine Operators, the Board of Electrical Examiners and Supervisors, and the State Board of Commissioners of Practical Plumbing. Boards that licensed and regulated health care and environmental professionals were placed under the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene as that department was organized in 1969. Standards of performance for several vocations are enforced by the Division of Occupational and Professional Licensing. The Division supervises a variety of specialized occupations, including accountants, architects, engineers, cosmetologists, barbers, home improvement contractors, and real estate brokers. David M. Porter, Deputy State Bank Commissioner

501 St. Paul Place
Baltimore, MD 21202 (410) 333-6808

The office of the State Bank Commissioner was created in 1910 (Chapter 219, Acts of 1910). The Commissioner's office has general supervision over all banking institutions in the State except national banks. It must examine each institution at least once every calendar year, at such other times as the Commissioner deems expedient, and at any time upon request of the board of directors of the institution. These examinations may be made in conjunction with federal regulatory agencies.

Every bank, trust company, and mutual savings bank is required to submit under oath to the State Bank Commissioner at least two reports in each calendar year. The reports must exhibit in detail the resources and liabilities of the institution. These reports are published in local newspapers.

All new State banking institutions must incorporate under the supervision of the State Bank Commissioner and must obtain a certificate before opening for business. The Commissioner must approve all applications for a branch office made by a State bank, trust company, or mutual savings bank, and must pass upon all amendments to their charters as well as the establishment of affiliates and subsidiaries. The Commissioner also must approve any mergers or voluntary liquidations and acquisitions of State-chartered or national banks by out-of-state bank holding companies. On June 30 of each year, the Commissioner submits a written report to the Governor (Code Financial Institutions Article, secs. 2-101 through 5-1007).

Under the Credit Union Law, any seven or more Maryland residents sharing common occupational, residential or social experiences or characteristics may act as incorporators to form a credit union and apply to the State Bank Commissioner for permission to organize.

The State Bank Commissioner supervises all State-chartered credit unions and is required to examine these institutions at least once each year. All credit unions must report annually to the Commissioner (Code Financial Institutions Article, secs. 6-101 through 6-704).

State-chartered credit unions may be insured by the National Credit Union Administration or the Credit Union Insurance Corporation (Chapter 658, Acts of 1973). The State Bank Commissioner must certify to the Corporation a credit union's financial affairs, solvency, management, and directorship as being approved for insurance of its members' shares and deposit accounts (Code Financial Institutions Article, secs. 7-101 through 7-117).

Persons who wish to transact such business in Maryland must procure an annual license from the Commissioner. All such persons must report periodically to the Commissioner on agent charges, financial structure, and other conditions relative to their functions under the Law (Code Financial Institutions Article, secs. 12-401 through 12-424).

Tax-exempt financial institutions may apply to the State Bank Commissioner to be supervised and examined by the State Bank Commissioner (Code Financial Institutions Article, sec. 12-701). These institutions include nonstock corporations exempt from taxes under the Internal Revenue Code (sec. 501 (c)(3)), as amended; financial institutions engaged solely in extending credit and loans to socially or economically disadvantaged businesses for their business and commercial development; and a majority and all controlling members of a financial institution who are persons, designated and ap-

Each applicant for a real estate salesperson's or broker's license must complete courses relating to the principles of real estate in order to qualify for examination.

The Commission may revoke, refuse, or suspend a license and reprimand or fine a person up to $2,000 per violation for unethical conduct or violating the real estate laws. ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

Created in 1969, the Department of Natural Resources works to ensure the preservation, development, wise use, and enjoyment of Maryland's natural resources for the greatest benefit to the State and its citizens. The Department coordinates all natural resources activities within the State and reviews and evaluates all natural resources policies, plans, programs, and practices of county, State, regional and federal agencies and institutions.

The natural resources of Maryland were described early. In 1634, Father Andrew White wrote of Chesapeake Bay as "the most delightful water I ever saw, between two sweet landes." Seventeenth-century settlers were impressed by woodlands, wildlife, and waters teeming with fish. When the abundance later ebbed, the General Assembly enacted a multitude of laws to protect natural resources, particularly those of Chesapeake Bay. Indeed, for the past two centuries, much of Maryland's concern with natural resources has focused on the Bay.

America's first formal interstate agreement concerned the Bay and other waters, boundaries, fisheries, and navigational rights. The Compact of 1785 between Maryland and Virginia set a precedent for negotiating interstate differences over Bay matters. The Compact was ratified by the Maryland Legislature in 1785 (Chapter 1, Acts of 1785).

Thereafter, in the nineteenth century, the General Assembly acted to safeguard Bay oysters, clams, and fish, and during the twentieth century, crabs. Inspectors of salted fish were appointed to improve the quality of exports (Chapter 114, Acts of 1817). Measurers of oysters were licensed to gauge the size of oysters in the shell and the tubs from which they were sold (Chapter 406, Acts of 1868). When New England watermen raided Chesapeake oyster beds in the early 1800s, the legislature passed "An Act to prevent the destruction of Oysters in this State" and sounded the alarm that "well grounded apprehensions are entertained of the utter extinction of oysters in the state" (Chapter 24, Acts of 1820).

Fisheries also required protection. In 1820, the Legislature sought to stop vessels from anchoring in the fisheries of the Susquehanna River and at the head of Chesapeake Bay (Chapter 199, Acts of 1820). Following an address by conservation pioneer, Robert B. Roosevelt (uncle of Teddy Roosevelt), the General Assembly authorized commissioners to inspect and report on the "bay, marine and river fisheries of the State" (Chapter 297, Acts of 1870; Resolution 2, Acts of 1870).

By 1868, the State Oyster Police Force was created to enforce oyster laws. The Governor, Treasurer, Comptroller, Superintendent of Labor and Agriculture, and Clerk of the Court of Appeals were constituted the Commissioners of the State Oyster Police to oversee the Force. Reorganized as the State Fishery Force in 1874, it was placed under the Commissioner of Fisheries and, in 1880, under the Board of Public Works. The Force constituted the "Maryland Navy" in the Bay oyster wars fought between Maryland and Virginia watermen at the end of the century. By 1886, the State Fishery Force also was assigned conservation duties, buying oyster shells to be planted or sown in the Bay "for the purpose of catching spat and experimenting in the propagation of oysters" (Chapter 314, Acts of 1886). In 1892, county commissioners were authorized "in their discretion" to supplement the Force with boats and officers at county expense (Chapter 643, Acts of 1892).

Yet, the earliest origins of the Department of Natural Resources trace to geological and mapping functions of the first State Geological Survey, which operated from 1834 to 1841. In 1896, the State Geological and Economic Survey was formed (Chapter 51, Acts of 1896). That same year, the State Game Warden's Office was created (Chapter 293, Acts of 1896). State programs for woodlands were initiated ten years later, when the State Board of Forestry was established (Chapter 294, Acts of 1906).

The State Fishery Force, the State Game Warden, and the Engineer became part of the newly formed Conservation Commission in 1916 (Chapter 682, Acts of 1916). The Commission was charged with oversight of oysters, clams, fish, crabs, terrapin, wild fowl, birds, game, and fur-bearing animals. In 1935, the Conservation Department was formed, governed by the Conservation Commission (Chapter 523, Acts of 1935).

Conservation agencies were reorganized in 1941. The Board of Natural Resources oversaw five departments: the Department of Tidewater Fisheries; the Department of Game and Inland Fish; the Department of State Forests and Parks; the Department of Geology, Mines, and Water Resources; and the Department of Research and Education (Chapter 508, Acts of 1941). These agencies were consolidated to form the Department of Natural Resources in 1969 (Chapter 154, Acts of 1969).

The Department is responsible for the Maryland membership units of ten interstate bodies: the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission, Coastal States Organization, Interstate Mining Commission, Ohio River Basin Commission, Interstate Oil Compact Commission, Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, Potomac River Basin Advisory Committee, Potomac River Fisheries Commission, Southern States Energy Board, and the Susquehanna River Basin Commission (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 1-101 through 1-104).

MARYLAND ENVIRONMENTAL TRUST

Constance Lieder, Chairperson, 1997
Thomas D. Saunders, Director

100 Community Place, 1st floor
Crownsville, MD 21032-2023 (410) 514-7900

The Maryland Environmental Trust was formed in 1967 to conserve, improve, stimulate, and perpetuate the aesthetic, natural, scenic and cultural aspects of the Maryland environment (Chapter 648, Acts of 1967). The Trust also promotes appreciation of the environment and continued interest in its care.

The Trust seeks donations of conservation easements to the State on certain lands to preserve the land from development. By 1994, the Trust had secured 272 conservation easements on 41,237 acres.

The Trust consists of fifteen trustees. Three serve ex officio. The remaining twelve trustees each year elect three of their own successors for four-year terms. The Trust selects the Director (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 3-201 through 3-211).

STATE FOREST & PARK SERVICE

Richard P. Barton, Director

Tawes State Office Building, E-3
580 Taylor Ave.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 974-3771
camping information: (410) 768-0895

The State Forest and Park Service originated in 1906 when John and Robert Garrett of Baltimore gave the State nearly 2,000 acres of land in the Swallow Falls area of Garrett County. The gift came with a proviso that a forestry service be established to protect woodlands and advance forestry. That same year, the Board of Forestry was created (Chapter 294, Acts of 1906). The Board was replaced by the Department of Forests and Parks in 1941 (Chapter 508, Acts of 1941). In 1969, the Department of Forests and Parks became part of the Department of Natural Resources (Chapter 154, Acts of 1969). The Department of Forests and Parks in 1972 divided into two units: the Park Service and the Forest Service (Chapter 348, Acts of 1972). These agencies were recombined in 1982 as the Forest and Park Service (Chapter 184, Acts of 1982). In 1984, the Forest and Park Service merged with the Wildlife Administration to form the Forest, Park and Wildlife Service (Chapter 136, Acts of 1984). The Department in 1991 separated the State Forest and Park Service from the Wildlife Program.

The State Forest and Park Service administers and manages Maryland's State forests, parks, scenic preserves, historic monuments, and natural environmental areas. While providing recreation sites, the Service preserves natural resources and ensures multiple uses and a sustained yield of forest resources. The Service also is responsible for the Maryland Conservation Corps (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 5-101 through 5-219).

The Service consists of fifty-three management projects. These include four State forests, ten multi-use parks, fourteen general recreation parks, seven waterfront parks, six natural environment areas, ten historic or scenic sites, one roadside picnic area, and three natural resource management areas.

Parks and recreational activity brochures are available at each park and upon request from the Service.

PARK ADVISORY COMMISSION

C. James Sears, Chairperson

Contact: Linda Davis (410) 974-3771

The Park Advisory Commission was formed in 1972. By 1983, the Commission was merged with the Forest Advisory Commission to form the Forest and Park Advisory Commission. The Commission was reformed again as the Park Advisory Commission in 1988 (Chapter 178, Acts of 1988). The Commission's nine members are appointed by the Governor with the advice of the Secretary of Natural Resources.

MARYLAND CONSERVATION CORPS

Jonathan Underwood, Director

Tawes State Office Building, B-2
580 Taylor Ave.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 974-3771

Authorized in 1982, the Maryland Conservation Corps was funded and began operation in 1984 (Chapter 297, Acts of 1982; Chapter 510, Acts of 1984). The Corps, formerly under the Tidewater Administration, was assigned to the Forest, Park and Wildlife Service in 1988. Since 1991, the Corps has been under the State Forest and Park Service.

The Corps provides Maryland youths, aged 14 to 21, with jobs that help develop and maintain the State's natural resources. Corps projects conserve or improve natural resources or enhance and preserve environmentally important lands and waters. During the summer of 1993, some 361 youths worked on projects throughout the State. Participants may be sponsored by private industry and must be physically fit and have the desire to work out-of-doors, possibly in remote locations. Through a federal grant in 1992, the Maryland Conservation Corps began a year-round program for participants, aged 17 to 25.

GREENWAYS & RESOURCE PLANNING

David G. Burke, Director

Tawes State Office Building, D-3
580 Taylor Ave.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 974-3654

Greenways and Resource Planning originated as Land Planning Services under the Capital Programs Administration and was reorganized under its present name in 1991. It provides planning, mapping, environmental review, and capital budget services to help the Department acquire, develop, and manage public lands and scenic rivers.

Under Greenways and Resource Planning are four sections: Resource Planning; Technical Services; Environmental Review; and Mapping and Property Research. Greenway and Resource Planning also provides technical support to the Maryland Greenways Commission.

RESOURCE PLANNING

The Resource Planning Section formulates master plans for new State parks or for recreational use and modification of existing State parks. For proposed new Department areas, the Section conducts detailed property reviews as well as environmental reviews for many Department projects and lands. The Section also develops master facilities plans for areas without approved master plans.

The Section prepares resource management plans for the nine rivers of the scenic and wild rivers system to promote the wise use of the rivers' land and water resources, and improve resource conservation measures. Planners work with local citizen advisory boards developing recommendations for local governments on resource use.

SCENIC & WILD RIVERS REVIEW BOARD

Chairperson: Torrey C. Brown, M.D., Secretary of Natural Resources

John F. Wilson, State Scenic & Wild Rivers Coordinator

(410) 974-3654

The Scenic and Wild Rivers Review Board was created in 1968 (Chapter 85, Acts of 1968). The Board reviews all inventories, studies, plans, rules, and regulations concerning the Scenic and Wild Rivers Program. The Program includes the following rivers and their tributaries: the Anacostia; Deer Creek; Monocacy; Patuxent; Pocomoke; Potomac (in Montgomery and Frederick counties); Severn; Wicomico (in Charles County); and Youghiogheny. During review, the recommendations of the Secretary of Natural Resources, local governing bodies, and local advisory boards are considered. The Board recommends to the General Assembly resource management plans for rivers, shorelines, and related lands included in the Program, and recommends additional rivers and tributaries for the Program.

With the advice and consent of the local governing body, the Review Board appoints a local scenic and wild river advisory board for each river in the Scenic and Wild River Program.

The Board consists of the Secretary of Agriculture; the Secretary of the Environment; the Secretary of Natural Resources; the Director of Planning; and a Garrett County Commissioner who votes only on matters pertaining to the wild portion of the Youghiogheny River (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 8-401 through 8-411).

TECHNICAL SERVICES

John C. Wolfe, Chief

(410) 974-3589

Technical Services provides computer support for publication and display graphics, and for all the work of Greenways and Resource Planning. This section also maintains a geographic information system and coordinates the Department's planning for forest management.

ENVIRONMENTAL REVIEW

Gene F. Cheers, Chief

(410) 974-3589

Environmental Review coordinates the Department's review of all proposals that affect Department lands, including leases, sales, and easements. In support of capital budget requests, planners in this section prepare environmental and growth management assessments.

MAPPING & PROPERTY RESEARCH

Steven C. Goodmuth, Chief

(410) 974-3589

The Mapping and Property Research Section researches property records (deeds, surveys, land patents) and prepares project boundary maps for all Department lands. These maps show properties in the acquisition program, as well as properties owned by the Department or not yet acquired. The Section also conducts surveys, and reviews and updates the maps.

Program Open Space acquires outdoor recreation and open space areas for public use. The Program administers funds made available to local communities for open and recreational space by the Outdoor Recreation Land Loan of 1969 and from the Land and Water Conservation Fund of the National Park Service, U.S. Department of the Interior. ENGINEERING & CONSTRUCTION SERVICES

Robert B. Dannecker, Director

Tawes State Office Building, D-3
580 Taylor Ave.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 974-3666

Engineering and Construction Services began as the Capital Development Program, which was part of the Capital Programs Administration by 1984. In 1990, the Program was renamed Engineering Services. It became Engineering and Construction Services in 1991 under Public Lands and in 1992 under Public Lands and Forestry. Engineering and Construction Services provides design and construction services to other Department agencies, evaluates facilities for capital budget planning purposes, and helps preserve historic properties owned by the Department.

FOREST SERVICE

Eric C. Schwaab, Director

Tawes State Office Building, E-1
580 Taylor Ave.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 974-3776

Forestry Programs started in 1943 with the Forest Conservancy Districts Act (Chapter 722, Acts of 1943). By 1971, the Program was called the Technical Forestry and Reforestation Program. By 1979, it was renamed Cooperative Forest Management and, by 1983, Cooperative Forestry Program. It became Forestry Programs in 1991.

Forestry Programs helps private landowners and municipal and county governments manage their forests and trees. Forestry Programs seeks to improve and maintain the economic, aesthetic, recreational, and environmental contributions of trees, forests, and forest-related resources for human benefit. Duties include cooperative forest management; urban and community forestry; resource use, planning, and protection; and all matters relating to forestry in the critical areas surrounding Chesapeake Bay.

Forestry Programs provides forest management expertise to private landowners and local governments. Forest fire prevention and control, insect and disease control, land management, watershed management, as well as reforestation, and urban and community forestry constitute the main thrusts of Forestry Programs. Through urban and community forestry, Forestry Programs carefully plans development and large-scale forestry projects with developers, builders, architects, and city and county planners. Supervision of utility trimming and municipal tree care programs is an important facet of urban and community forestry. The urban forestry concept includes granting individual shade tree consultations to private landowners, as time permits.

FOREST ADVISORY COMMISSION

John E. Brodie, Chairperson

Formerly the Forest and Park Advisory Commission, the Forest Advisory Commission was created in 1988 (Chapter 178, Acts of 1988).

DISTRICT FORESTRY BOARDS

James E. Klunk, Executive Director
(410) 974-3776

District Forestry Boards function in all twenty-three Maryland counties and in Baltimore City. The Boards were established in 1943 to assist the then Department of Forests and Parks by promoting forest management on privately owned woodlands. The original goal was to help assure a supply of wood fiber products through scientific forest management. Today, their role has been expanded to improve the environment in urban and suburban areas and educate people about the benefits forests provide. Board members work closely with project and Chesapeake Bay foresters throughout the State. Forestry Boards primarily serve as advisory, educational and facilitating bodies. In the Chesapeake Bay Critical Area, Forestry Boards are responsible for approving forest management plans. Forestry Boards also review proposed laws and represent the interests of forestry with local, State and federal legislatures (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 5-601 through 5-610).

Forestry Board members are appointed by the Assistant Secretary for Public Lands and Forestry on the recommendation of the local forester in consultation with Board members. Meeting at least four times a year, each board has five or more members. The chief requirement for membership is an interest in forestry and a desire to see resources wisely used and renewed. Tree farmers, forest product workers, arborists, educators, farmers, and government representatives are but a few of the interest groups represented on the Boards.

RESOURCE MANAGEMENT

Catherine Pieper Stevenson, Deputy Assistant Secretary

Tawes State Office Building

Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 974-3548

Resource Management was organized in 1992. The Assistant Secretary for Resource Management is responsible for six agencies: the Tidewater Administration; the Boating Administration; the Natural Resources Police Force; the Water Resources Administration; the Maryland Geological Survey; and the Fish, Heritage, and Wildlife Administration. The Assistant Secretary also oversees the Chesapeake Bay Critical Area Commission.

CHESAPEAKE BAY CRITICAL AREA COMMISSION

West Garrett Place, Suite 320
275 West St.

Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 974-2426

The Chesapeake Bay Critical Area Commission was created in 1984 (Chapter 794, Acts of 1984). The Commission monitors a 1,000-foot shoreline strip around the Bay and its tributaries. This planning area is critical to the survival of the Bay's tidal waters, fish, wildlife, and plant habitats.

The Commission regulates undeveloped land use along the Bay's shores and tributaries and may intervene in local governments' development plans if it determines the Bay may be endangered. Periodically, the Commission meets with the General Assembly's Joint Committee on Chesapeake Bay Critical Areas.

With Senate advice and consent, the Governor appoints the Commission's twenty-seven members to four-year terms. They include seven ex officio, voting members or their designees. The Governor names the chairperson with Senate advice and consent (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 8-1801 through 8-1816).

TIDEWATER ADMINISTRATION

Dr. Paul O. Massicot, Director

Tawes State Office Building, C-2
580 Taylor Ave.

Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 974-2926

Origins of the Tidewater Administration trace to 19th century legislation to safeguard clams, oysters, and fish. In this century, many duties stem from the Department of Tidewater Fisheries formed in 1941 (Chapter 508, Acts of 1941). The Department was reorganized as the Department of Chesapeake Bay Affairs in 1964 (Chapter 82, Acts of 1964). In 1972, the Department merged with the Fish and Wildlife Administration to form the Fisheries Administration (Chapter 348, Acts of 1972). Duties of the Fisheries Administration were assigned to the Tidal Fisheries Division in 1979, when the Division joined with the Coastal Zone Management Program, and Waterway Improvement to form the Tidewater Administration (Chapter 601, Acts of 1979). Reorganized in 1988, the Administration oversees the work of four divisions: Fisheries; Coastal and Watershed Resources; Chesapeake Bay Research and Monitoring; and Power Plant and Environmental Review.

TIDAL FISHERIES DIVISION

W. Peter Jensen, Director

(410) 974-3558

The Tidal Fisheries Division traces its origin to the Commissioners of Fisheries formed in 1874 (Chapter 150, Acts of 1874). In 1916, functions of the Commissioners of Fisheries were assigned to the Conservation Commission, which oversaw fish hatcheries (Chapter 682, Acts of 1916). The Conservation Department assumed fisheries duties in 1935 and was replaced in 1939 by the Department of Game and Inland Fish (Chapter 354, Acts of 1939). The Department was superseded in 1941 by the Department of Tidewater Fisheries, which became the Department of Chesapeake Bay Affairs in 1964 (Chapter 508, Acts of 1941). That Department, in turn, was replaced by the Fish and Wildlife Administration in 1970 and the Fisheries Administration in 1972 (Chapter 252, Acts of 1970; Chapter 348, Acts of 1972). In 1979, the Fisheries Administration was reformed as the Tidal Fisheries Division of the Tidewater Administration. By 1984, the Division was renamed the Fisheries Division and, in 1993, it resumed the name, Tidal Fisheries Division. The Division preserves, enhances, develops, and oversees use of fishery resources in Maryland.

The Division's Fishery Management Program plants oyster shells for propagation, transplants seed oysters on public oyster bars, and monitors blue crab movement to gauge fluctuations in annual harvest. The Program studies young fish annually to determine reproductive success; monitors anadromous fish reproduction and harvests; and supports striped bass hatcheries for research and restoration. The Program also issues permits for aquaculture and scientific collections of fish and shellfish, investigates disease and parasite infestations, develops and analyzes statistics for management decisions, and formulates management plans. The Division strives to provide maximum opportunities for public fishing within existing habitat while preserving and enhancing natural resources within the State (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 4-101 through 4-1209).

The Division is served by several advisory committees including the Sport Fisheries Advisory Commission, and the Tidal Fisheries Advisory Commission.

SPORT FISHERIES ADVISORY COMMISSION

Dr. James Gilford, Chairperson, 1993

Contact: W. Peter Jensen (410) 974-3558

The Commission advises the Department on sport fishing matters. The Commission consists of nine members appointed to four-year terms (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 1-102, 4-204).

COASTAL & WATERSHED RESOURCES
DIVISIONRobert L. Beckett, Director

(410) 974-2784

Origins of the Coastal and Watershed Resources Division stem from the Coastal Zone Management Program which began in 1973 when the Governor designated the Department of Natural Resources to receive and administer federal grants pursuant to the federal Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972. The Program was assigned first to the Water Resources Administration and, by 1977, transferred to the Energy and Coastal Zone Administration. By Executive Order in 1978, the Governor declared the Coastal Zone Management Program to be State policy for activities in Maryland coastal areas. In 1979, the Program became part of the Tidewater Administration (Chapter 601, Acts of 1979). Within the Administration, the Program was overseen by the Coastal Resources Division, which merged with the Watershed and Growth Management Division to form the Coastal and Watershed Resources Division in 1992.

The Division is composed of seven major programs: Coastal Zone Management; Chesapeake Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve System—Maryland; Targeted Watersheds; Watershed Impact Evaluation; Natural Resource Impact Assessment; Special Projects; and Public Involvement.

The Division administers the Coastal Zone Management Program with grants from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. The Program is based upon the laws, regulations, authorities, expertise, and perspectives of six State Departments (Agriculture, Health and Mental Hygiene, Housing and Community Development, Natural Resources, Budget and Fiscal Planning, and Transportation); sixteen coastal counties and Baltimore City; two regional planning agencies; and numerous federal agencies.

The Chesapeake Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve System—Maryland was created in accordance with the federal Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972. The System protects representative estuarine systems, including valuable wetland habitat, for use as natural field laboratories. The System maintains three reserves on Chesapeake Bay: Otter Point Creek Component, Harford County; Monie Bay Component, Somerset County; and Jug Bay Component, Anne Arundel County. Each reserve is a field laboratory supporting several monitoring, research and educational programs.

Through the Targeted Watersheds Program, the Division studies the impact of land use on watersheds and their streams and aquatic resources, and how to mitigate adverse effects by controlling sources of pollution.

The Watershed Impact Evaluation Program sets standards for documenting the cumulative impact of different types, densities, and patterns of land use on watersheds and their streams and rivers. The Program relates land use and development to effects on stream ecosystems. For local jurisdictions, the Program devises methodologies, models, and information to reduce the impact of land uses on aquatic life.

The Natural Resource Impact Assessment Program develops management techniques to guide growth and development by minimizing ecological impacts, particularly on aquatic life. The Program helps implement the Economic Growth, Resource Protection, and Planning Act (Chapter 437, Acts of 1992).

Special Projects, formerly the Mapping and Data Analysis Program, uses geographic information systems to evaluate the effects of growth on Maryland watersheds.

The Public Involvement Program seeks help from civic and community associations, environmental groups, businesses, and local governments to protect and restore watersheds.

CHESAPEAKE BAY RESEARCH &
MONITORING DIVISIONRonald J. Klauda, Ph.D., Director

(410) 974-3782

Within the Tidewater Administration, the Chesapeake Bay Research and Monitoring Division was formed by the Department in 1988. The Division consolidates scientific programs of the Tidewater Administration in the areas of ecological habitat impacts; biological assessments; aquatic toxicology; database management; nonindigenous aquatic species control; acid deposition; power plant topical research; and the status investigations of shellfish disease and oyster population carried out at the Cooperative Oxford Laboratory. This consolidation reflects the importance of the Chesapeake Bay Program as a vehicle for producing long-term, far-reaching changes to protect and restore the Bay's living resources.

The Division is served by the Acid Deposition Advisory Committee, the Science Advisory Board, and the Board of Visitors of the Cooperative Oxford Laboratory.

ACID DEPOSITION ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Contact: Ronald J. Klauda, Ph.D. (410) 974-3782

At the request of the Chesapeake Bay Research and Monitoring Division and the Power Plant and Environmental Review Division, the Acid Deposition Advisory Committee reviews and comments upon materials related to the Acid Deposition Program. These include draft annual reports to the Governor and General Assembly and research studies produced by the Program (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 1-102 (d), 3-303).

SCIENCE ADVISORY BOARD

Executive Committee

Dr. Rosa G. de Pena, Chairperson

Contact: Dr. Paul E. Miller (410) 974-3782

Formerly the Environmental Research Guidance Committee, the Science Advisory Board was established in 1986. The Board identifies research priorities for the Power Plant Topical Research Program and invites proposals for research projects. The Board reviews project proposals, technical progress reports, and draft final project reports. Appointed by the Secretary of Natural Resources, members serve three-year terms (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 1-102(d), 3-303).

COOPERATIVE OXFORD LABORATORY BOARD OF VISITORS

Stephen J. Jordan, Ph.D., Director

904 South Morris St.

Oxford, MD 21654

(410) 226-0078

An advisory body, the Board of Visitors periodically reviews the mission, facilities, and accomplishments of the Cooperative Oxford Laboratory. Originally a federal research center, the Laboratory in 1987 became a joint research and monitoring facility of the Department of Natural Resources, and the National Marine Fisheries Service of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce. Located on the Tred Avon River, the Laboratory is a complex of laboratories and experimental ponds, with an extensive scientific library. Laboratory work focuses on diagnosing and monitoring diseases of shellfish and finfish. A unit of the National Marine Mammal Stranding Network also is based there.

POWER PLANT & ENVIRONMENTAL REVIEW DIVISION

Peter M. Dunbar, Director

(410) 974-2261

The Power Plant and Environmental Review Division originated in 1971 as the Power Plant Siting Program (Chapter 31, Acts of 1971). The Program, by 1986, was renamed the Power Plant Research Program under the Energy Administration. In 1988, the Program was reorganized by the Department under the Tidewater Administration as the Power Plant and Environmental Review Division.

The Division is responsible for the environmental reviews formerly carried out by the Fisheries Division, the Coastal Resources Division, and the Power Plant Research Program. The Division evaluates growth and development controls needed to prevent adverse effects on Chesapeake Bay and other resources. To assess the broad total impact of projects and programs, the Division also conducts cumulative and regional environmental reviews (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 3-301 through 3-307).

The Power Plant and Environmental Review Division is served by the Power Plant Research Advisory Committee and the Science Advisory Board.

POWER PLANT RESEARCH ADVISORY COMMITTEE Vacancy, Chairperson

Contact: Peter M. Dunbar (410) 974-2261

Appointed by the Secretary of Natural Resources, the Committee advises the Secretary on the Power Plant Research Program (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 1-102(d), 3-303).

BOATING ADMINISTRATION

Bruce A. Gilmore, Director

Tawes State Office Building, E-4

580 Taylor Ave.

Annapolis, MD 21401

(410) 974-2908

The Boating Administration was formed by the Department in 1988. Within the Administration are five programs: Administration; Waterway Improvement; Planning and Policy; Shore Erosion Control; and Ocean City Beach Replenishment and Hurricane Protection.

ADMINISTRATION PROGRAM

Kathy T. Lantz, Director

(410) 974-2908

The Administration Program is responsible for budget, fiscal and personnel management; public information; and management information services. Administration also schedules, operates, and maintains three State vessels: the State yacht Maryland Independence; the work boat H. J. Elser; and the skipjack Anna McGarvey. The Program is responsible as well for two State marinas. It operates Somers Cove Marina, home of the Annual Crab Derby in Crisfield. It also monitors the contract for managing the Fort Washington Marina at Piscataway Bay off the Potomac River in Prince George's County.

WATERWAY IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

Robert P. Gaudette, Director

(410) 974-2743

The Waterway Improvement Program was created in 1972 to serve the boating public (Chapter 348, Acts of 1972). The Program places and maintains navigational aids, clears debris and obstructions from Maryland waters, and removes derelict vessels. The Program also undertakes ice breaking and dredging, and constructs regional boating facilities and local small-boat launching ramps, piers, and ancillary facilities.

PLANNING & POLICY PROGRAM

Bess Crandall, Director

(410) 974-2939

The Planning and Policy Program plans for the use of Maryland's waterways and the location of marine-related facilities. The Program also serves as liaison with the boating industry.

SHORE EROSION CONTROL PROGRAM

Leonard M. Larese-Casanova, Director

(410) 974-3727

The Shore Erosion Control Program began in 1975 and functioned as a distinct unit by 1979 (Chapter 360, Acts of 1975). The Program provides technical assistance to property owners, communities, and counties experiencing shore erosion. The Program administers the Shore Erosion Control Revolving Loan Fund, which provides interest-free loans for project designs and construction to qualified applicants. Matching grants are available for nonstructural (vegetative) projects to control shore erosion. It also provides construction supervision for State-financed projects. The Program evaluates new materials and methods for erosion control, and informs the public about causes and prevention of shore and bank erosion. The Program assesses and makes recommendations on erosion in Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 8-1001 through 8-1007).

OCEAN CITY BEACH REPLENISHMENT & HURRICANE PROTECTION PROJECT

Leonard M. Larese-Casanova, Director

(410) 974-3727

The Ocean City Beach Replenishment and Hurricane Protection Project provides storm protection to Ocean City and maintains the recreation beach used by some 4 million visitors annually. The Project was constructed in two phases. Phase I established a wide, gradually rising beach and level berm area. It was completed in September 1988 and funded by State government, Ocean City, and Worcester County. Phase II included 1.8 miles of steel bulkhead protecting the boardwalk and 7 miles of dunes and berm to provide hurricane protection up to the Delaware boundary line. It was jointly funded by the State, Ocean City, Worcester County and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

State funding for Phase I, Phase II, and continued maintenance of the Project comes from the Ocean Beach Replenishment Fund, established in 1986 (Chapter 606, Acts of 1986). The beach is to be replenished every four years to retain its 100-year storm protection level and ensure federal involvement in case of a major catastrophe.

NATURAL RESOURCES POLICE FORCE

Col. Franklin I. Wood, Superintendent

Lt. Col. C. T. Howes, Deputy Superintendent

Tawes State Office Building, C-3

580 Taylor Ave.

Annapolis, MD 21401

(410) 974-3170

As Maryland's oldest State law enforcement agency and one of the oldest conservation law enforcement agencies in the country, the Natural Resources Police Force traces its origins to 1868, when the State Oyster Police Force was created to enforce oyster laws. As the State Fishery Force, it was reorganized in 1874 under the Commissioner of Fisheries and, in 1880, under the Board of Public Works. In 1922, the Force became part of the newly formed Conservation Department and was renamed Maryland Patrol and Inspection Fleet. Marine enforcement by the Natural Resources Police Force originated from responsibilities of the early fisheries fleets.

For wildlife and inland fisheries, the creation of the post of State Game Warden in 1896 provided a system for uniformly enforcing conservation laws across the State. After the appointment of a State Game Warden, government programs were initiated that still define the inland enforcement duties of the Natural Resources Police Force. In 1922, the post of State Game Warden became a part of the Conservation Department along with the State Fishery Force (renamed the Maryland Patrol and Inspection Fleet). In 1939, the Conservation Department was split into two departments: the Department of Tidewater Fisheries, and the Game and Inland Fish Commission (later the Department of Game and Inland Fish). The Marine Enforcement Fleet then was named the Division of Inspection and Patrol. Responsible for enforcing the Maryland Boat Act of 1960, it became the Maryland State Marine Police in 1962. After the Department of Chesapeake Bay Affairs and the Department of Game and Inland Fish were abolished, the Natural Resources Police Force was created in 1972 within the Department of Natural Resources (Chapter 348, Acts of 1972).

The Natural Resources Police Force has full police powers throughout the State. The Force is responsible for preserving the peace, preventing crime, detecting and apprehending criminals, and safeguarding individual rights.

The Force protects life and property, and serves as the primary search and rescue agency on Maryland waters and in rural areas of the State. Through enforcement of hunting and wildlife conservation laws, the Force provides the primary law enforcement service as well as emergency services for some remote areas in Maryland. The Force enforces State laws and regulations on commercial seafood harvesting and sport fishing, boating, waterways pollution, and wildlife conservation, as well as general criminal law enforcement.

The Force inspects boats for violations of conservation and boating laws and inspects seafood processing houses and trucks carrying seafood cargo. It arrests and issues warnings to violators. The Force also investigates boating accidents, reports them to the U.S. Coast Guard, and conducts boating and hunting safety education programs.

The Force operates the Natural Resources Police Academy at Matapoke, a central maintenance and supply facility, and an aviation unit to provide airborne surveillance and rescue services to enforcement programs and Department agencies (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 1-201 through 1-210).

WATER RESOURCES ADMINISTRATION

Robert D. Miller, Director
Charles A. Wheeler, Deputy Director

Tawes State Office Building, E-2
580 Taylor Ave.
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 974-3846

Duties of the Water Resources Administration began in 1933 when the Water Resources Commission of Maryland was formed to devise and develop a general water resources conservation program for the State (Chapter 526, Acts of 1933). Commission functions devolved to the Department of Geology, Mines, and Water Resources in 1941 (Chapter 508, Acts of 1941). Responsibilities of the Department and the Water Pollution Control Commission, formed in 1947, were inherited by the Department of Water Resources in 1964 (Chapter 697, Acts of 1947; Chapter 73, Acts of 1964). The Water Resources Administration replaced the Department of Water Resources in 1972 (Chapter 348, Acts of 1972). The Administration protects, manages, and develops the water resources of the State. The Administration conducts three programs: Bureau of Mines; Water and Wetlands; and Enforcement and Services.

STATE WATER QUALITY ADVISORY COMMITTEE

James E. Gutman, Chairperson

Contact: Ruth Mathes (410) 631-3734

The Committee advises the Department of Natural Resources and the Department of the Environment on ways to improve and protect water quality in Maryland (Federal Regulations 40 CFR, Part 25).

WATER RESOURCES ADVISORY COMMISSION

Vacancy, Chairperson

Contact: Robert D. Miller (410) 974-3846

The Commission advises the Director of the Water Resources Administration (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 1-102, 8-202).

BUREAU OF MINES

Anthony F. Abar, Director

160 South Water St.
Frostburg, MD 21532 (301) 689-6104

Functions of the Bureau of Mines began in 1876 when the Governor first appointed a mine inspector for Allegany and Garrett counties. By 1916, the inspector was appointed by the State Board of Labor and Statistics with the Governor's approval. The Bureau of Mines was organized in 1922 as a unit of the Department of Labor and Statistics (Chapter 307, Acts of 1922). In 1941, the Bureau was transferred to the Department of Geology, Mines, and Water Resources. In 1964, the Bureau was made part of the Maryland Geological Survey (Chapter 73, Act of 1964). The Bureau was placed under the Energy and Coastal Zone Administration in 1976, and in 1979 under the Energy Administration (Chapter 320, Acts of 1976). The Bureau became part of the Water Resources Administration in 1987. The Bureau has two distinct areas of responsibility: environmental control of active coal mines and restoration of abandoned coal mines.

Active Mines. The Bureau evaluates mining plans for proposed deep and strip coal mines. After environmental controls are established, reclamation plans for the land must be approved before mining can begin. Active mines are monitored for compliance with the law and the approved plans.

Abandoned Mines. Legislation makes possible the restoration of abandoned mines, which for decades have posed serious environmental problems. A surcharge on mined coal pays for the repair of environmental damage caused by abandoned mines. In conjunction with the Active Mining Program, abandoned mines also are reclaimed (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 7-201 through 7-203).

MINERALS, OIL & GAS DIVISION

C. Edmon Larrimore, Chief
(410) 974-3874

The Minerals, Oil and Gas Division originated as the Surface Mining Division under the Water and Wetlands Program of the Water Resources Administration. The Division was reorganized in 1992 under its present name and transferred to the Bureau of Mines.

WATER & WETLANDS PROGRAM

Gary T. Setzer, Director

(410) 974-2236

The Water and Wetlands Program originated as the Water Management Program, formed in 1987. The Program was renamed in 1990 as the Water and Mineral Management Program and, in 1993, as the Water and Wetlands Program.

The Program manages water supply resources throughout the State. This involves water conservation; water supply planning; and water appropriation permits. Geotechnical and surveying services are provided by the Program to all agencies within the Department.

DAM SAFETY DIVISION

Brad Iarossi, Chief

(410) 974-2101

To ensure the safety of dams, the Dam Safety Division inspects existing dams and dams under construction; issues dam construction and repair permits; and provides emergency warning and response.

NONTIDAL WETLANDS & WATERWAYS DIVISION

William A. Jenkins, Chief

(410) 974-3841

The Nontidal Wetlands and Waterways Division oversees the permit process for construction projects that will affect nontidal wetlands. Such wetlands include swamps, bogs, marshes, bottomlands, and woodlands.

TIDAL WETLANDS DIVISION

Frank W. Dawson, Chief

(410) 974-3871

To minimize damage to tidal wetlands, the Tidal Wetlands Division provides advice and issues permits for all construction projects that affect areas subject to the rise and fall of the tides.

WATER RIGHTS DIVISION

Terrance W. Clark, Chief

(410) 974-3675

To meet the increasing needs of Maryland water users, the Water Rights Division regulates the withdrawal and use of surface and ground water. The Division requires a permit to withdraw water from the ground, rivers, or Chesapeake Bay. (A permit is not required for farm use of less than 10,000 gallons a day, or home uses other than heating and cooling.) The Division reviews permit applications to assure that the amount of water to be withdrawn is reasonable; will not create problems for other users; and will not have a harmful effect on the resource. The Division also develops management plans for the water resources of a region, county, or town; and provides detailed information about available ground and surface water for a specific area.

ENFORCEMENT & SERVICES PROGRAM

William S. Burgess, Director

(410) 974-2721

The Enforcement and Services Program was organized within the Water Resources Administration in 1989. Its work is carried out by four divisions: Enforcement; Data Systems; Geographic Information Services; and Permit Services.

ENFORCEMENT DIVISION

Thomas C. Boone, Chief

(410) 974-2641

The Enforcement Division is responsible for inspection and enforcement related to legal mandates governing mines, mining, water, water resources, wetlands, and riparian rights (Code Natural Resources Article, Titles 7 through 9). Division duties involve some 5,000 licenses, permits, and approvals for surface mining; nontidal wetlands construction, and their adjoining "buffer" lands; tidal wetlands projects; waterway and flood plain construction; oil and gas exploration; dams and pond construction; and surface or ground water for commercial or industrial use.

The Division conducts periodic and unscheduled surveillance by ground, air, and water. Administrative or legal enforcement actions are based on the nature, extent, and impact of violations.

DATA SYSTEMS DIVISION

Bruce E. Thompson, Chief

(410) 974-2225

The Data Systems Division, formerly the Information Services Division, creates specialized computer systems and programs to help manage Maryland's water resources and expedite the permit process.

GEOGRAPHIC INFORMATION SERVICES DIVISION

Vacancy, Chief

(410) 974-2631

The Division manages the Map and Image Processing System (MIPS), a geographic information system that links data to maps, aerial photographs, and satellite pictures of land areas.

PERMIT SERVICES DIVISION

MARYLAND GEOLOGICAL SURVEY

Emery T. Cleaves, Ph.D., Director

2300 St. Paul St., Suite 440
Baltimore, MD 21218—5210 (410) 554-5504

The first State Geological Survey operated from 1834 to 1841. Fifty-five years later, the State Geological and Economic Survey was established in 1896 (Chapter 51, Acts of 1896). The work of the Survey was placed under the Department of Geology, Mines, and Water Resources in 1941 (Chapter 508, Acts of 1941). In 1964, the Maryland Geological Survey superseded the Department of Geology, Mines, and Water Resources (Chapter 73, Acts of 1964). The Survey became part of the Department of Natural Resources in 1969 (Chapter 154, Acts of 1969).

The Survey researches the geology, water and mineral resources of the State so this knowledge can be applied to resolve practical problems related to environmental and natural resources. Publication of maps and technical reports are the primary means of relaying this information to the public, private industry, and local, State and federal government agencies. The Survey periodically publishes County Reports, County and Quadrangle Atlases, Reports of Investigations, Basic Data Reports, Bulletins, Educational Series, and Information Circulars. The Survey also publishes county topographic and geologic maps, a State geologic map, and other maps and charts.

The Survey researches and investigates coastal and estuarine geology related to erosion and sedimentation in the Chesapeake Bay and along the ocean shoreline. A 42-foot research vessel, the RV Discovery, is used for Bay research projects. As part of its applied earth science research on the Bay, the Survey was one of the principal investigators on the Chesapeake Bay Program of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). The Survey's work is carried out by three programs: Hydrogeology and Hydrology; Environmental Geology and Mineral Resources; and Coastal and Estuarine Geology.

The Survey is headed by the Director, who is appointed by the Governor upon recommendation of the Secretary of Natural Resources (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 2-201 through 2-203).

LAND RECLAMATION COMMITTEE

Chairperson: Emery T. Cleaves, Ph.D., Director,
Maryland Geological Survey
Anthony F. Abar, Executive Secretary

c/o Bureau of Mines
160 South Water St.
Frostburg, MD 21532 (301) 689-6104

The Land Reclamation Committee was formed in 1967 (Chapter 144, Acts of 1967). The Committee studies, recommends, and approves procedures to reclaim, conserve, and replant land affected by open-pit coal mining in Maryland. The Committee reviews mining and reclamation plans, progress reports, and final reports. It establishes plans and procedures, as well as practical guidelines, for prompt and sufficient reclamation, conservation, and revegetation of all lands disturbed by open-pit mining of bituminous coal within the State.

The Committee consists of thirteen members. The Governor appoints four members to three-year terms: two mining industry representatives, appointed with Senate advice and consent; one Allegany County Planning and Zoning Commission member, recommended by the Allegany County Commissioners and appointed with Senate advice and consent; and one Garrett County Planning Commission member, recommended by the Garrett County Commissioners and appointed with House of Delegates advice and consent. The Secretary of Natural Resources appoints six members: an Allegany County resident and a Garrett County resident, each without any interests in any mining operation, to serve three-year terms; and four members of the Department of Natural Resources, including the Committee chairperson. One member of the Department of the Environment is appointed by the Secretary of the Environment. The Soil Conservation Districts of Allegany County and Garrett County are each represented on the Committee (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 7-205, 7-501 through 7-505, 7-509, 7-510, 7-515).

STATE MAPPING COMMITTEE

Emery T. Cleaves, Ph.D., Chairperson
(410) 554-5504

The State Mapping Committee originated in 1976 as the State Topographic Mapping Committee formed by the Secretary of Natural Resources. In 1988, the Committee received its present name.

The Committee reviews topographic map coverage of the State and evaluates present scales of mapping. Priorities for revised and new maps are determined by the Committee and recommended to the U.S. Geological Survey. The Committee also examines and evaluates the utility of new map presentations, such as orthophoto maps and slope maps. In addition, the Committee receives reports from the U.S. Geological Survey on the status of mapping in Maryland; makes recommendations for map funding and revision; and considers computer mapping techniques and methods of developing Geographic Information Systems (GIS).

The Committee includes representatives from the Department of the Environment, Department of Natural Resources, Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation, State Archives, State Department of Assessments and Taxation, State Highway Administration, Office of Planning, Salisbury State University, Towson State University, Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, Baltimore Regional Council of Governments, Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, Baltimore City Department of Public Works, Harford County Government, Queen Anne's County Department of Planning and Zoning, Baltimore Gas and Electric Company, U.S. Department of Agriculture, and U.S. Geological Survey.

GEOLOGIC MAPPING ADVISORY COMMITTEE

M. Gordon Wolman, Ph.D., Chairperson
(410) 554-5504

Created in 1992, the Geologic Mapping Advisory Committee advises the Director of the Maryland Geological Survey on the development of geologic maps of areas important to the economic, social and scientific welfare of the State and nation. The Committee is concerned with the State geologic mapping component (called STATEMAP) of the National Cooperative Geologic Mapping Program established in 1992 within the U.S. Geological Survey (P.L. 102-285, National Geologic Mapping Act of 1992).

COMMISSION OF THE MARYLAND GEOLOGICAL SURVEY

M. Gordon Wolman, Ph.D., Chairperson
(410) 516-7090

The Commission of the Maryland Geological Survey advises the Director on matters concerning the Survey. The Commission's five members are appointed by the Secretary of Natural Resources to five-year terms (Code Natural Resources Article, sec. 2-204).

HYDROGEOLOGY & HYDROLOGY PROGRAM

Harry J. Hansen, Ph.D., Chief
(410) 554-5554

The Hydrogeology and Hydrology Program was formed in 1972. In cooperation with the U.S. Geological Survey, the Program maintains a statewide water data network and investigates the hydrologic and geologic characteristics of Maryland's water resources.

The surface water data network provides information on minimum, maximum and average streamflows for the planning of water supply and sewage facilities, water power projects, dams and bridges. The ground water network measures water levels in aquifers and selected springs and relates changes in ground water levels to withdrawals and precipitation. The ground water network also monitors the hydrologic effects of long-term changes in pumpage, land use patterns, and rainfall.

Special resource assessment studies undertaken with local and county governments include the extent of saltwater intrusion, aquifer and stream-flow characteristics, water quality and rates of replenishment, and water well sampling for basic chemistry, nutrients, radon and either industrial organic constituents, or agricultural herbicide or pesticide residues.

ENVIRONMENTAL GEOLOGY & MINERAL RESOURCES PROGRAM

James P. Reger, Ph.D., Chief
(410) 554-5523

The Environmental Geology and Mineral Resources Program makes geologic, environmental and topographic maps and investigates mineral and energy resources. Program studies provide an earth science framework for managing Maryland's mineral, energy and land resources. The Program was created in 1972 from the former Geologic Investigations Program and the Topographic Maps Program.

Topographic maps are used by the public for activities such as hiking and camping and by State and local governments for a myriad of technical and planning applications. Geologic maps provide data about the kinds of rocks and the location of minerals (predominantly sand, gravel, stone, and coal) and provide background for the intelligent planning and use of Maryland's geologic natural resources.

The Program provides technical advice and assistance for the Geologic Exhibits and Visitors Center at Sideling Hill in western Maryland. Through the Survey's library and the Earth Science Information Center, aerial photos and large-scale maps are available to the public and private industry.

COASTAL & ESTUARINE GEOLOGY PROGRAM

Randall T. Kerhin, Chief
(410) 554-5544

Created in 1971 from the Shore Erosion Investigation Program, the Coastal and Estuarine Geology Program investigates the geologic framework and resources of the State's coastal environments extending from the barrier island of the Atlantic Ocean to the wetlands and shorelines of Chesapeake Bay. Orthophoto quadrangle maps from aerial photography, combined with historical shoreline erosion maps, provide the basis to evaluate shoreline changes in the Bay region.

Using the Survey's research vessel, the geochemical components and physical features of the sediments are being monitored around the Hart-Miller Island Containment Facility.

In 1975, the Chesapeake Bay Earth Science Study was added to the Program. This work determines the distribution of sands, silts, and clays; identifies the patterns of erosion and deposition of these sediments; and analyzes the geochemistry of the pore waters in these sediments.

FISH, HERITAGE, & WILDLIFE ADMINISTRATION

Robert A. Bachman, Director
(410) 974-5551

The Fish, Heritage, and Wildlife Administration began in 1970 as the Fish and Wildlife Administration and became the Wildlife Administration in 1972 (Chapter 252, Acts of 1970; Chapter 348, Acts of 1972). In 1984, the Forest and Park Service merged with the Wildlife Administration to form the Forest, Park and Wildlife Service (Chapter 136, Acts of 1984). Through a reorganization in 1992, the Fish, Heritage, and Wildlife Administration was created to oversee three programs: Wildlife; Natural Heritage; and Freshwater Fisheries.

WILDLIFE PROGRAM

Joshua L. Sandt, Director
(410) 974-3195

The Wildlife Program applies modern professional wildlife management techniques both to control and assure continuing wildlife while affording optimum public recreational opportunities compatible with the welfare of wildlife resources. The Program engages in field surveys and research projects to evaluate public demands on wildlife resources, wildlife populations, harvesting parameters, and relevant environmental factors. It constructs ponds (primarily waterfowl habitat) and plants food and cover vegetation. It also manages and protects birds, land-based reptiles and amphibians, and mammals. Under its protection are game species, nongame species, and threatened and endangered wildlife.

The Program develops and manages thirty-two State Wildlife Management Areas (public hunting areas). The Program also manages and administers recreational use of cooperative wildlife areas and some State park areas.

The Program is aided by several advisory bodies among which are the Atlantic Coast Joint Venture Implementation Committee; Captive Wildlife Advisory Committee; Farm Game Advisory Committee; Waterfowl Advisory Committee; Wildlife Advisory Commission; and Wild Turkey Advisory Committee.

WATERFOWL ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Vacancy, Chairperson

Contact: Joshua L. Sandt (410) 974-3195

The Waterfowl Advisory Committee was formerly the Duck Release Program Advisory Committee. Appointed by the Governor, the Committee works with the Wildlife Program to develop an improved duck release program (Code Natural Resources Article, sec. 1-102).

WILDLIFE ADVISORY COMMISSION

C. A. Porter Hopkins, Chairperson, 1993

Contact: Joshua L. Sandt (410) 974-3195

The Governor appoints the Commission to advise the Wildlife Program and the Secretary of Natural Resources on wildlife matters. Members serve four-year terms (Code Natural Resources Article, sec. 1-102).

NATURAL HERITAGE PROGRAM

Janet S. McKegg, Director
(410) 974-2870

The Natural Heritage Program identifies significant natural areas of the State and sets priorities for their protection. Staff biologists and botanists continuously update a computerized inventory that describes Maryland's rare, threatened and endangered plants and animals, as well as unique and exemplary natural communities. Since 1979, the Program has maintained a State listing of the threatened and endangered species. Currently, the list numbers 497 plants and 121 animals protected by State law. Staff biologists also monitor ecologically vulnerable species and those with declining populations or dwindling habitat. The Program advises federal, State and local county agencies and educational institutions on ecological resources in Maryland (Code Natural Resources Article, secs. 5-1501 through 5-1506).

FRESHWATER FISHERIES

H. Robert Lunsford, Director
(410) 974-3061

Created in 1991, Freshwater Fisheries protects, preserves, and restores the freshwater fish resources of Maryland. Through administration of the Fisheries Management and Protection Fund, Freshwater Fisheries conducts scientific investigations and environmental review, propagates fish, and manages the nontidal finfish of the State.

Through standardized field surveys, Freshwater Fisheries maintains a data base of the physical, chemical and biological properties of freshwater resources as a basis for environmental review and management planning. By analysis of this data base, consultation with the Sport Fisheries Advisory Commission, and communication with the angling public, Freshwater Fisheries regulates Maryland freshwater fish resources to assure a pleasurable angling experience and preserve freshwater fish stock for future generations.

ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

The Department of Personnel develops and maintains a personnel system that recruits, trains, and strives to retain an efficient, qualified work force for public service in State government (Code 1957, Art. 41, secs. 9-101 through 9-106).

Origins of the Department date to 1920 when the Merit System was established for employees of State government. The Merit System was formed to attract well qualified people to government service and end the political patronage by which government positions had been filled in the nineteenth century. In 1920, the office of State Employment Commissioner was created to administer the Merit System (Chapter 41, Acts of 1920). The Commissioner in 1922 was renamed Commissioner of State Employment and Registration and became head of the Department of State Employment and Registration (Chapter 29, Acts of 1922). The Commissioner of State Employment and Registration also chaired the State Employees' Standard Salary Board, formed in 1941 (Chapter 395, Acts of 1941). In 1953, the Commissioner was renamed the State Commissioner of Personnel (Chapter 310, Acts of 1953). The State Commissioner of Personnel became responsible for the State Incentive Awards Board in 1958 (Chapter 65, Acts of 1958).

The Department of Personnel superseded the Commissioner in 1970. Although the State Employees Standard Salary Board and the State Incentive Awards Board were abolished in 1970, their main functions were assigned to the Department of Personnel (Chapter 98, Acts of 1970).

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

Joseph Adler, Secretary of Personnel

301 West Preston St., Room 609
Baltimore, MD 21201 (410) 225-4715

Appointed by the Governor with Senate advice and consent, the Secretary of Personnel heads the Department. The Secretary establishes guidelines and procedures for the orderly and efficient administration of the Department. The Secretary carries out the Governor's policies with respect to personnel and advises the Governor on all matters assigned to the Department.

The State Employees' Health Insurance Advisory Council is chaired by the Secretary, who also serves on the Governor's Executive Council; the Governor's Construction Industry Employers' Advisory Council; the Governor's Drug and Alcohol Abuse Commission; the Asbestos Oversight Committee; the Interdepartmental Advisory Committee for Minority Affairs; and the Board of Trustees for Maryland State Retirement and Pension Systems.

Directed by the Secretary of Personnel, the Department is organized under an assistant secretary for Personnel Management Services and an assistant secretary for Human Resource Management and Development (Code 1957, Art. 41, secs. 9-101 through 9-106; Art. 64A, secs. 1-63).

STATE EMPLOYEES' HEALTH INSURANCE ADVISORY COUNCIL

Chairperson: Joseph Adler, Secretary of Personnel
(410) 225-4715

In 1985, the State Employees' Health Insurance Advisory Council was created (Chapter 217, Acts of 1985). The Council advises the Secretary of Personnel on implementation, maintenance, negotiations, and administration of the State Employees' Health Insurance Program. The Council also advises the Secretary on the procedure for soliciting bids from health care providers for a contract under the Program; what types of providers should be contracted to provide health care benefits; and what those benefits should be.

Appointed by the Governor, the Council consists of eleven members. These include the Secretary of Personnel or designee, and one representative each from the Department of Budget and Fiscal Planning; Department of Health and Mental Hygiene; State Insurance Commissioner; Comptroller of the Treasury; Senate President; House Speaker; Maryland Classified Employees Association; American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees; Maryland Troopers Association; and the public. Members serve two-year terms. The Governor designates the chairperson (Code 1957, Art. 64A, sec. 48E).

MEDICAL DIRECTOR

James A. D'Orta, M.D., Medical Director
(410) 225-4626

The position of Medical Director was established in 1937. The major responsibility of the Medical Director is to determine if State employees, or applicants for State employment, are employable in terms of their health.

The Division also investigates and settles charges brought under the Employee Disclosure and Confidentiality Protection Act (Code 1957, Art. 64A, secs. 12F-12K).

HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT & DEVELOPMENT

Sara Miller, Assistant Secretary for Human Resource Management & Development

301 West Preston St., Room 602
Baltimore, MD 21201 (410) 225-4751

Human Resource Management and Development was organized in 1991 from units previously administered by Compensation and Employee Selection, Administration, and Employee Services. The Assistant Secretary for Human Resource Management and Development is responsible for three divisions: Recruitment and Examination; Salary Administration and Position Classification; and Work Force Quality.

RECRUITMENT & EXAMINATION DIVISION

Nelson L. Sutton III, Director

300 West Preston St., Room 406
Baltimore, MD 21201 (410) 225-4846
public information: (410) 225-4847

The Recruitment and Examination Division was formed in 1970. The Division recruits, tests, and certifies candidates as eligible for employment in Merit System positions within State government. Information about Maryland State employment opportunities and applications may be obtained by calling the Division. Personnel specialists also are available for employment counseling at Division offices.

Merit System vacancies are advertised in the newspapers, in bulletins sent to State agencies, and are listed with the Maryland Job Service. Applicants submit a completed MS100 application form which is evaluated by the Division. For some positions, candidates are rated based on the application and notified of their rating. For other positions, applicants who meet the minimum requirements of the job description are notified where and when to report for a required examination. For all vacancies, an eligible list is compiled which ranks applicants either by rating or examination score. The eligible list of candidates is sent to the State agency with the vacancy. A person is selected from among the five highest ranking on the list. Names remain on eligible lists for one year.

The average time span between a vacancy being advertised and the sending of an eligible list is about seventy days.

ORIGIN & FUNCTIONS

The Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services was created in 1970 (Chapter 401, Acts of 1970). Today, the Department has statewide responsibility to prevent crime, maintain law and order, and supervise and rehabilitate adjudicated individuals who pose a threat to the public. In Maryland, these functions initially derived from British precedent and common law, but evolved to fit local needs.

The Maryland Charter of 1632 made the administration of justice, including the granting of pardons, the privilege and duty of the Proprietor, who usually delegated that authority to the Governor. Under the Lords Baltimore, little criminal law was codified as the Proprietor and Assembly debated over whose prerogative such lawmaking was. In the absence of statutes, local courts defined crimes and punishments. Maryland's largest deviation from British precedent was in the low number of crimes for which death was the penalty. In a labor-scarce economy, executing persons for petty pilfering or other minor crimes did not make sense. British law was bloodthirsty, with hanging the response to a wide range of crimes, from sheep-stealing to adultery. For crimes against property, Maryland and most colonies gradually replaced capital punishment with corporal punishment. Restitution also was required, and a person without resources could be sold for a term of indentured servitude to cover the cost of restitution. Those charged with murder or other crimes against persons faced the death penalty as did those charged with treason or sedition. Retribution was swift in colonial Maryland; a convicted person was either hanged or subjected to whipping, branding, or other corporal punishment. Public humiliation was considered a deterrent, so the convicted criminal was not locked up—only debtors languished in jail. One of the sheriff's earliest duties was to take custody of prisoners. Because few counties had a secure place of confinement for prisoners, most persons awaiting trial were out on bail, bond, or personal recognizance, and a sheriff who could not produce them for trial was penalized. Beginning in 1674, every county was required to build a jail (Chapter 16, Acts of 1674), and the Paper Currency Act of 1733 allotted funds for each county to erect a prison (Chapter 6, Acts of 1733).

In response to an increase in such crimes as burglary, robbery and horse-stealing, a Court of Oyer and Terminer and Gaol Delivery was created in 1793 for Baltimore County (Chapter 57, Acts of 1793). The Court could sentence convicted men for up to seven years hard labor working on the public roads of Baltimore County or building, repairing, or cleaning the streets or basin of Baltimore-town. Caretakers, a place of confinement, coarse apparel, and food, consisting of bread, coarse meat, and water would be provided by the Court. Convicts could be compelled to work in irons and wear a distinctive badge. Any misconduct was punishable by close confinement, a diet of bread and water, and up to thirty-nine lashes of the whip. Convicted women also could be sentenced for up to seven years hard labor; however, their labor was out of public view at such tasks as picking oakum, beating or hackling hemp or flax, manufacturing wool, knitting, or sewing. Women were not subject to whipping. The most interesting feature of the 1793 law was its statewide provision. County courts and the General Court of the State had the option of conveying their convicted criminals to the person or persons appointed to take care of criminals in Baltimore County for the fee of five pounds current money. The law also authorized counties to keep their criminals at home, the men at hard labor on the county roads, the women in the county workhouse. Such laws were known as "wheelbarrow" laws.

Development of State Prisons. The nineteenth century was the forum for the great debate over systems of penology. Penitentiaries were built in response to public outrage at the spectacle of convicts laboring on roads and other public projects. Their institutional function was to punish prisoners through solitary confinement and, later, hard labor. Prison labor began as a punitive measure, but by the end of the century was perceived as rehabilitative, which justified any profit to the State.

The Maryland Penitentiary, authorized in 1804 and opened in 1811, vacillated between the two competing penal philosophies of the times, but was renowned for nearly always being profitable (Resolution no. 15, Acts of 1804). A legislative committee inspected the building under construction in 1807 and reported that the new penitentiary had depositories for raw materials and manufactured goods, nine cells measuring roughly 8 by 16 feet, separate rooms for women, and a chapel. The 1809 law, which specified for what crimes and what terms persons were to be sentenced to confinement in the new penitentiary, merely stipulated that convicts "shall be kept therein at hard labour, or in solitude," and male and female prisoners kept separate (Chapter 138, Acts of 1809). Thus, at its inception, the Maryland Penitentiary operated under neither the Philadelphia system of total isolation nor the Auburn system of moral isolation. Both systems, however, exerted some influence. In 1829, the Directors of the Maryland Penitentiary reported the completion of a new east wing designed for solitary confinement at night. In 1837, the Directors were required to remodel or rebuild the old west wing so that prison discipline based on the Philadelphia plan could be extended to the women's department. Further, "the directors shall pay particular regard to the enforcement of the Philadelphia system, to the fullest extent of its admissibility, in the new cells, so as to be able to report to the Governor annually, the effects thereof upon the convicts, as a reformatory and punitive confinement, and also upon the financial and manufacturing operations of the Penitentiary, for the purpose of affording a comparative estimate of the merits of the two great systems of punishment now in use in the United States" (Chapter 320, Acts of 1837). The President and Directors of the Maryland Penitentiary noted in 1838, however, that "the experience of the past year has served to test the efficacy of the Auburn system of prison discipline in our Penitentiary, to the introduction of which the new workshops were expressly adapted." By 1841, the Auburn System was definitely in use with its discipline of silence by day, solitary confinement by night, enforced by the whip.

Prisoners in the Maryland Penitentiary were kept at hard labor most of the time, either confined in their solitary cells (Philadelphia) or in a common but silent work area (Auburn). The 1809 law called for either hard labor or solitude, whereas the 1837 law required the prisoner to work in his cell during solitary confinement a period not less than one-twentieth nor more than one-half of the total sentence (Chapter 138, Acts of 1809; Chapter 320, Acts of 1837). The weaving of cotton and woollen goods was one of the more successful manufactures undertaken, as it employed even the older and more feeble inmates. In the late 1830's, however, the market for such products was undercut by cheap machine-made calicoes.

By 1842, the Penitentiary, hit hard by a general commercial depression and the depreciation of its textile production, had accumulated a deficit. Its directors appointed a committee to visit five penitentiaries in the northern states and investigate their manufacturing departments. The Committee on Prison Manufactures (1842) concluded: first, solvency of the Penitentiary required maintaining a large, productive prison population, which had been dwindling since an 1836 law provided for negroes to be sold out of state for a second offense; second, debate continued over the merits of manufacturing on the State account plan or hiring the convicts out to contractors; and third, working men forced to compete with prison labor might cripple prison industries.

After the Civil War, Maryland turned totally to the contract system of prison labor. Between 1880 and 1912, the Penitentiary returned its greatest profits to the State treasury. Rumors of corporal punishment and unsanitary conditions, however, caused the appointment of an investigative commission in 1913 which found that profits had been at the expense of the prisoners. Recommendations of the Maryland Penitentiary Penal Commission were enacted very gradually into law and form the basis for the current correctional system. The Commission called for the State Use and State Account Systems to replace contract labor; a centralized board to govern State penal institutions; a Board of Pardons and Paroles; a prison farm and a separate institution for women offenders; use of local jails only for pretrial detention and not for final sentence; State control of juvenile reformatories; passage of an Indeterminate Sentence Act; and classification of prisoners, with incentives for good behavior.

The Maryland Penitentiary Penal Commission also furthered educational programs for prisoners. The Penitentiary library began in 1844 with books donated by Dorothea Dix among others. Religious instruction had been provided from an early date by outside clergy, the Prisoners' Aid Society, and other groups. In 1905, an institutional chaplain was hired, whose duties included reading prisoner mail and supervising the library. By 1907, prisoners were encouraged to take approved correspondence courses, and in 1913, after the Commission's investigation, night schools for illiterates were started using prisoners as teachers.

By 1916, the State Board of Prison Control began to oversee the Maryland Penitentiary and House of Correction, and to phase out contract labor after the Penal System Commission of 1914 advocated changes similar to those recommended by the Maryland Penitentiary Penal Commission, (Chapter 556, Acts of 1916). That same year prison labor came full cycle with passage of a law authorizing the use of prisoners to work on the public roads, bridges, and highways, the spectacle of which back in 1804 had led to the building of the Penitentiary (Chapter 211, Acts of 1916). The contract labor system continued until 1935 when federal legislation outlawed the interstate sale of goods produced in prison, forcing Maryland to establish State Use Industries (Chapter 213, Acts of 1937).

The Maryland Penitentiary is by far the oldest State correctional institution. Not until 1874 was the Maryland House of Correction authorized. Originally sentences to the House of Correction were for not less than three months nor more than three years. Vagrants, the habitually disorderly, and habitually drunk were subject to commitment. Inmates were to be kept at useful employment, not hard labor, and good behavior could lead to remission of sentence (Chapter 233, Acts of 1874). Due to shorter sentences, the House of Correction also had difficulties keeping prisoners working. Prisoners worked on the institution's farm, were hired out to neighboring farmers, and as early as 1915, were working on the roads of Anne Arundel and Howard counties, as well as manufacturing under the contract labor system.

The twentieth century saw a flurry of prison construction: the Maryland State Penal Farm (later to become Maryland Correctional Institution at Hagerstown) in 1931; Women's Prison of the State of Maryland at Jessup in 1939; Patuxent Institution at Jessup in 1951; Maryland Correctional Training Center at Hagerstown in 1966; Maryland Correctional Institution at Jessup in 1981; Roxbury Correctional Institution at Hagerstown in 1983; Eastern Correctional Institution at Westover in 1987; Maryland Correctional Adjustment Center at Baltimore in 1989; and a new prison that will open in the fall of 1995 near Cresaptown, south of Cumberland in Allegany County. The State assumed additional responsibilities in 1991 when it took control of the Baltimore City Jail and reorganized it as the Baltimore City Detention Center under the Division of Pretrial Detention and Services.

A State System of Parole and Probation. Development of Maryland's system for parole and probation was propelled by the need for prison reform around 1913 and later by the problem of prison labor after 1935.

From its opening in 1811, a person sentenced to the Maryland Penitentiary could be released only by pardon of the Governor or expiration of sentence, unless the prisoner died or escaped. No remission of sentence existed as an incentive for good behavior. In 1870, the Governor was authorized to commute a death sentence to confinement in the Penitentiary or banishment, issue conditional pardons, or remit a sentence of confinement under specified conditions (Chapter 306, Acts of 1870).

In 1894, Maryland became the second state after Massachusetts to use probation as a correctional remedy. Courts were authorized to release first offenders convicted of noncapital offenses upon consideration of "the youth, character and antecedents of the offender, to the nature of the offence, and to any extenuating circumstances under which the offence was committed" (Chapter 402, Acts of 1894). This law may have served to keep some juveniles out of the Penitentiary; yet minors continued to be committed. In 1907, for example, 154 offenders between ages twelve to twenty were confined in the Maryland Penitentiary.

Around 1900, many states adopted a system of indeterminate sentence whereby a court imposed a sentence with a minimum and maximum term of confinement. After the minimum term was served, a board reviewed the prisoner's record and determined whether more of the term should be served or the prisoner released on parole. In 1905, the Governor appointed a commission to study this nationwide trend (Chapter 563, Acts of 1906). On the commission was the Warden of the Maryland Penitentiary who strongly opposed indeterminate sentences fearing they would cut into Penitentiary productivity and profits. Not surprisingly, the commission also opposed adopting an indeterminate sentence system.

The thorough investigation by the Maryland Penitentiary Penal Commission in 1913 not only brought about sweeping changes in the penal system, but also was instrumental in establishing a parole system. In 1914, an amendment to the Constitution authorized laws for the suspension of sentences by courts in criminal cases; indeterminate sentence; and the release of convicts on parole (Chapter 453, Acts of 1914). The same year, the Advisory Board of Parole was created to advise the Governor about issuing conditional pardons and paroles and to supervise released convicts (Chapter 500, Acts of 1914). The three-member Board was authorized to appoint not more than four parole officers. In 1922, the Advisory Board of Parole was replaced by the Parole Commissioner.

The crisis in the penal system over the issue of prison labor in 1935 ultimately expanded the parole and probation system. The Maryland Commission on Prison Labor recommended to the General Assembly in 1937 that overcrowding be alleviated by the immediate completion of the State Penal Farm, more extensive use of parole with adequate supervision, and a greater use of probation. Adequate supervision was the key; the Parole Commissioner still had only four parole officers supervising approximately 275 parolees. In 1939, the Division of Parole and Probation was created with a board, a director, and a field supervisor to supervise and investigate parolees and probationers (Chapter 406, Acts of 1939). The actual power to grant parole was left with the Governor. Not until 1953 was the Governor relieved of the duty to review all parole recommendations, and the Board of Parole and Probation was authorized to grant parole, except in cases of life sentences (Chapter 625, Acts of 1953).

State Fire Marshal. The office of State Fire Marshal was first created in 1894 to investigate suspicious fires throughout the State and prosecute guilty parties (Chapter 248, Acts of 1894). The office was funded by insurance revenues, and insurance companies were required to report all claims for fire losses to the Fire Marshal. The mere existence of the office was thought to deter arson. By 1915, the Fire Marshal was investigating annually over one thousand fires statewide and inspecting fire exits and escapes in public buildings. In 1916, the position of State Fire Marshal was abolished and its powers and duties transferred to the State Insurance Commissioner who was authorized to appoint an additional deputy to handle fire duties (Chapter 521, Acts of 1916). In 1964, the office of State Fire Marshal was recreated, along with the State Fire Prevention Commission, a new State Fire Prevention Code, and revision of laws pertaining to fires and investigations, fireworks, and explosives (Chapter 46, Acts of 1964).

Maryland State Police. Under common law, every person had an active responsibility for keeping the peace. This was a vital principle in colonial Maryland, a fledgling society with no police or peace officers. The responsibility included crime prevention through vigilance and the apprehension of suspected lawbreakers by groups of persons raising the "hue and cry" or the more official "posse comitatus." Persons whose previous behavior indicated that they were at risk of breaking the peace could be taken before a local court or magistrate and bound over to keep the peace, thereby, in theory, preventing crime. Adapted from the British legal system were the positions of sheriff and constable, officers of the court who also enforced the law. Sheriffs and constables had no jurisdiction outside their own county. As population increased, county and municipal police departments were created to meet local needs. The first State agency to exercise police powers was the Baltimore City Police Force, established in 1867 under a Board of Police Commissioners elected by the General Assembly (Chapter 367, Acts of 1867). Baltimore had been developing a police force since the establishment in 1784 of a night watch "very necessary to prevent fires, burglaries, and other outrages and disorders" (Chapter 69, Acts of 1784); from 1867 its police force was governed by a State board although jurisdiction was limited to the City. From 1900 to 1920 the Board of Police Commissioners was appointed by the Governor; after 1920, a single Police Commissioner of Baltimore City was appointed, who also served on the Governor's Advisory Council. The Baltimore City Police Department remained under State governance until 1978, when the Mayor began to appoint the Police Commissioner, subject to confirmation by the City Council (Chapter 920, Acts of 1976).

In 1909, the Board of Police Commissioners of Baltimore City urged the creation of a State detective force, as the Governor, Fire Marshal and State's Attorneys in the counties frequently requested the assistance of Baltimore City's expert investigators. The first tentative step towards a statewide police force, however, was taken in 1914 as a corps of motorcycle officers under the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles began to enforce motor vehicle laws throughout Maryland (Chapter 564, Acts of 1914).

The need for statewide enforcement of criminal law became more critical after World War I when a crime wave struck Maryland. The Governor, Police Commissioner of Baltimore City, and the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles came up with a plan for a State Police Force under the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. Former servicemen were recruited and the first training camp was conducted early in 1921. By 1922, the force of motorcycle deputies had statewide jurisdiction over criminal cases through deputization by the county sheriffs. The force was supported by a plainclothes investigative department and was known as the State Police Force.

In 1935, the State Police Act established the Maryland State Police as a separate department of State government (Chapter 303, Acts of 1935). The new agency was funded out of revenues from the Department of Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. It was granted statewide police powers, including enforcement of fish, oyster, game and other conservation laws, and was required to maintain a training school.

Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services. In 1970, as part of the effort to streamline State government, the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services was created, absorbing the previously autonomous entities of the Division of Correction, Division of Parole and Probation, Maryland State Police, State Civil Defense and Emergency Planning Agency, State Fire Prevention Commission and the State Fire Marshal, Maryland Traffic Safety Commission, and Patuxent Institution, as well as certain advisory boards. The State Civil Defense and Emergency Planning Agency was renamed several times and then transferred to the Military Department in 1989 as the Maryland Emergency Management Agency (Chapter 674, Acts of 1989).

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

Bishop L. Robinson, Secretary of Public Safety & Correctional Services

6776 Reisterstown Road
Baltimore, MD 21215—2341 (410) 764-4004

Appointed by the Governor with Senate advice and consent, the Secretary of Public Safety and Correctional Services directs and coordinates State law enforcement and correctional programs. The Secretary also serves on the Governor's Executive Council; the Governor's Advisory Board for Justice Assistance; the State Board of Victim Services; the State Advisory Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse; the Governor's Drug and Alcohol Abuse Commission; and the Interdepartmental Advisory Committee for Minority Affairs; the Pricing Committee for Blind Industries and Services of Maryland; and the Pricing and Selection Committee for Rehabilitation and Employment Programs.

Reporting directly to the Secretary are the Maryland State Police, the State Fire Marshal, the Division of Pretrial Detention and Services, the Division of Correction, Patuxent Institution, and the Division of Parole and Probation. The office of the Secretary also oversees the Explosives Advisory Council, the Handgun Roster Board, and the Correctional Options Advisory Board. The Secretary is assisted by a deputy secretary and two assistant secretaries.

EXPLOSIVES ADVISORY COUNCIL

Stoyan L. Russell, Chairperson, 1998
(410) 764-4000

Formed in 1984, the Explosives Advisory Council recommends to the Department rules and regulations for the storage, use, manufacture, and transport of explosive material (Chapter 694, Acts of 1984). The Council reviews proposed rules, regulations, and laws that affect the manufacture, use, or distribution of explosives. On a continual basis, it monitors new developments in the explosives industry, including safety precautions, techniques for blasting, and federal regulations.

The Council may have no more than nineteen members. They are appointed to five-year terms by the Governor (Code 1957, Art. 41, sec. 4-106).

HANDGUN ROSTER BOARD

Chairperson: Col. Larry W. Tolliver, Superintendent, Maryland State Police
(410) 653-4219

The Handgun Roster Board was established in 1988 (Chapter 533, Acts of 1988). The Board compiles, maintains, and publishes the Handgun Roster, which lists those handguns manufactured after January 1, 1985, that may be manufactured for distribution or sales, sold, or offered for sale in Maryland. It is illegal in Maryland to sell or offer for sale a handgun manufactured after January 1, 1985, that is not on the Handgun Roster. Semiannually, the Handgun Roster is published in the Maryland Register.

The Board consists of nine members appointed to four-year terms by the Governor with Senate advice and consent. The Superintendent of the Maryland State Police serves as chairperson (Code 1957, Art. 27, secs. 36F, 36I, 36J).

CORRECTIONAL OPTIONS ADVISORY BOARD

Charles F. Wellford, Ph.D., Chairperson

Contact: Thomas H. Williams (410) 764-4010

In 1993, Maryland was selected by the Bureau of Justice Assistance of the U.S. Department of Justice as one of four sites for the pilot project, Correctional Options: Part I. The project will develop and implement initiatives to manage low-risk offenders. To assist the project, the Correctional Options Advisory Board was formed by the Secretary of Public Safety and Correctional Services in 1993. The Board advises the Secretary on intermediate sanctions for violators of parole.

DIVISION OF DATA SERVICES

Paul E. Leuba, Director

(410) 764-4200

The Division of Data Services was created in 1970. The Division is responsible for the Criminal Justice Information System, the Criminal Justice Information System Central Repository, Management Information Systems, and the Data Center.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE INFORMATION SYSTEM

Earl L. Gillespie, Director

(410) 764-5665

The Criminal Justice Information System was formed in 1976 (Chapter 239, Acts of 1976). It develops and manages statewide information systems for the Maryland criminal justice community, including the courts; local, State and federal law enforcement personnel; local detention centers; State prisons; State's attorneys; and parole and probation officers. The System also is responsible for system administration, network administration, data security, system documentation, and user training. In addition, the System administers the Maryland Automated Fingerprint Identification System (MAFIS).

Averaging 15 million transactions per month, the System network is composed of over 9,500 individual users, 173 user agencies, 2,000 terminals, and 18 computer interfaces.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE INFORMATION SYSTEM CENTRAL REPOSITORY

William H. Niemeyer III, Director

(410) 764-4501

The Criminal Justice Information System Central Repository originated as the Criminal Records Central Repository in 1977. The Repository received its present name in 1989. It collects, stores, and disseminates criminal history record information. The Repository is the only source that disseminates conviction criminal history record information to the noncriminal justice community.

The Repository has primary responsibility for identification of persons through fingerprints. The Division of Pretrial Detention and Services was established within the Department in 1991 (Chapter 59, Acts of 1991). At that time, the State assumed responsibility for the Baltimore City Jail and renamed it the Baltimore City Detention Center. Maryland is the only state which has administrative control over a large local detention center.

The Division oversees the Baltimore City Detention Center and Pretrial Release Services for those awaiting trial in criminal proceedings before the District Court or the Circuit Court of Baltimore City. Appointed by the Secretary of Public Safety and Correctional Services with the Governor's approval, the Commissioner of Pretrial Detention and Services heads the Division (Code 1957, Art. 41, secs. 4-1401 through 4-1414).

PRETRIAL RELEASE SERVICES

John R. Camou, Director

Robert S. Weisengoff, Deputy Director

Mitchell Courthouse, Room 508
100 North Calvert St.
Baltimore, MD 21202

(410) 333-3833

Formerly under the Circuit Court for Baltimore City, the Pretrial Release Services Division became a unit of the Division of Parole and Probation in 1985 (Chapter 725, Acts of 1985). In 1988, the Pretrial Release Services Division was established as a separate division within the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services (Chapter 474, Acts of 1988). The Division was reorganized as a program within the Division of Pretrial Detention and Services in 1991 (Chapter 59, Acts of 1991).

Pretrial Release Services investigates all defendants awaiting trial in criminal proceedings before the Baltimore City Circuit Court and the District Court of Maryland for Baltimore City. The Program then provides the courts with verified information regarding the defendant's ties to the community and special problems such as alcoholism, drug addiction, or residential placement needs. The Program also makes recommendations to the courts

Of some 51,978 defendants screened annually, the Program supervises and monitors approximately 19,000 defendants for whom the court orders pretrial release. Urine testing surveillance is used for some of these defendants. At trial or in subsequent proceedings, the Program reports to the court on the defendant's compliance with the terms of pretrial release. These compliance reports are used for sentencing decisions and, in some instances, plea bargaining negotiations.

To minimize unnecessary incarceration, the Program develops alternative sanction plans under court supervision, and arbitrates or mediates disputes when requested by the court. Under scrutiny of the courts, the State's Attorney, and the Public Defender or private counsel, the Program presents and defends alternatives to prosecution.

In addition, the Program reviews the status of defendants in pretrial detention in the Baltimore City Detention Center. To manage the Center's inmate capacity, the Program recommends options to the court, such as scheduling early trials; monitors writs, detainers, and violations of court orders; and further investigates the feasibility of recognition or reduced bail for some defendants.

The Director and Deputy Director are appointed by the Commissioner of Pretrial Detention and Services with the approval of the Secretary of Public Safety and Correctional Services (Code 1957, Art. 41, secs. 4-1401 through 4-1406).

The Central Booking and Intake Facility is scheduled to open in 1995 in Baltimore City. All persons arrested in Baltimore City will be processed or "booked" at the Facility. BALTIMORE CITY DETENTION CENTER

Bernard D. Smith, Warden

401 East Eager St.
Baltimore, MD 21202

(410) 637-1109

The Baltimore City Detention Center, formerly the Baltimore City Jail, became part of the Division of Pretrial Detention and Services in 1991 (Chapter 59, Acts of 1991). The Baltimore City Jail originated in the eighteenth century and was replaced by a new jail on Mill Street on the east side of Jones Falls in 1802. An annex for women inmates was constructed in 1823. The jail structure served until 1860 when a new building opened at Madison Street and Jones Falls. Over the years, the building expanded. In 1960, connective north and south wings were constructed; in 1971, a separate jail for women was built. By 1991, Baltimore City Jail consisted of seven buildings. Five were maximum- and medium-security structures: the Men's Detention Center; Women's Detention Center; Jail Industries Building; Wyatt Building; and the Annex Building. Minimum-security persons were housed in two satellite facilities: O'Brien House; and the Resident Labor Facility. In 1991, the State took over administration of the Baltimore City Jail and renamed it the Baltimore City Detention Center (Code 1957, Art. 41, secs. 4-1407 through 4-1414).

The Baltimore City Detention Center is one of the largest municipal jails in the nation. Over 20,000 inmates are committed to the Center annually. The daily number of inmates averages 3,000. The Center is a pretrial detention facility for any person committed or transferred to the custody of the Commissioner of Pretrial Detention and Services. The Center, as authorized by the Secretary of Public Safety and Correctional Services, also may house any person held in custody by any agency of the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services.

The Warden is appointed by the Commissioner of Pretrial Detention and Services with the approval of the Secretary of Public Safety and Correctional Services.

DIVISION OF CORRECTION

Richard A. Lanham, Sr., Commissioner of Correction
 Melanie C. Pereira, Deputy Commissioner of Correction

6776 Reisterstown Road
 Baltimore, MD 21215—2341 (410) 764-4184

The Division of Correction originated in the nineteenth century when the first State prisons, the Maryland Penitentiary and the Maryland House of Correction, were erected. Prior to 1916, the two prisons were autonomous. Each operated under the jurisdiction of either a board of directors or a board of managers appointed by the Governor. In 1916, these institutions were placed under the State Board of Prison Control (Chapter 556, Acts of 1916). The Board of Welfare superseded the State Board of Prison Control in 1922 to administer the prisons (Chapter 29, Acts of 1922). In 1939, the Department of Correction and the Board of Correction replaced the Board of Welfare (Chapter 69, Acts of 1939).

The Superintendent of Prisons became administrator of the Department of Correction in 1953 (Chapter 758, Acts of 1953). The Board of Correction established departmental policies and appointed executive personnel for institutions under the jurisdiction of the Department on recommendations made by the Superintendent of Prisons. In 1962, the Advisory Board of Corrections replaced the Board of Correction and the Superintendent of Prisons was succeeded by the Commissioner of Correction (Chapter 123, Acts of 1962). The Department of Correction was renamed the Department of Correctional Services in 1968 (Chapter 137, Acts of 1968).

All State correctional responsibilities were assigned to the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services in 1970 (Chapter 401, Acts of 1970). At that time, the Department of Correctional Services was reorganized as the Division of Correction under the Secretary of Public Safety and Correctional Services.

The Division of Correction plans, establishes, and directs the administration of State correctional facilities. The Division is responsible for the Maryland Reception, Diagnostic, and Classification Center; the Maryland Correctional Pre-Release System; State Use Industries; and eight State prisons:

Maryland Penitentiary (Baltimore City)
 Roxbury Correctional Institution—Hagerstown
 Maryland Correctional Institution—Hagerstown
 Maryland Correctional Training Center
 (Hagerstown)
 Maryland House of Correction (Jessup)
 Maryland Correctional Institution—Jessup
 Maryland Correctional Institution for Women—Jessup
 Eastern Correctional Institution (Westover)

A new State prison, near Cresaptown in Allegany County, is expected to open in 1995.

Under Division jurisdiction, correctional institutions classify inmates to determine how they should be confined and supervised. Once the security level of confinement has been determined, the specific conditions of confinement are evaluated for an inmate and, where appropriate, programs are offered in education, vocational training, employment, substance abuse counseling, and psychological and psychiatric intervention and security.

Prisons provide education, including elementary and secondary school instruction, advanced and specialized study, and vocational and on-the-job training. Pre-release units offer instruction that prepares inmates to obtain high school equivalency certificates. Prisons and pre-release units also offer programs for inmates to develop or relearn occupational skills. Inmates are assigned to a variety of maintenance tasks, as well as to the diversified State Use Industries Program. These programs provide goods and services needed by certain public agencies. For example, several prisons operate their own laundries which also serve other State facilities.

The Division of Correction administers the Work Release Program, established in 1963 (Chapter 285, Acts of 1963). Under the Program, certain prisoners may leave confinement to work at gainful employment in the community. They return to the institution at the end of the work day. In 1968, this privilege was extended for attending school (Chapter 551, Acts of 1968). Under certain conditions, the Commissioner of Correction may authorize special leave for prisoners to seek employment or participate in special community rehabilitation programs. Weekend leaves also may be granted under certain conditions (Code 1957, Art. 27, secs. 700A, 700C).

The Commissioner of Correction is appointed by the Secretary of Public Safety and Correctional Services with the approval of the Governor and Senate advice and consent (Code 1957, Art. 27, secs. 667-679).

CITIZENS' ADVISORY COMMITTEES

Citizens' Advisory Committees for correctional institutions report to the Commissioner of Correction and the Governor about concerns of citizens residing in the vicinity of each institution. Currently, Committees serve the regions around Baltimore, Hagerstown, Jessup, and Somerset County. Each Committee has seven members appointed to three-year terms by the Governor (Code 1957, Art. 41, secs. 4-1101 through 4-1103).

MARYLAND PENITENTIARY

Sewall B. Smith, Warden

Over the years, Penitentiary buildings have altered. The major portion of the physical plant was built in 1894. A south wing was completed in 1899. The most recent additions were made in 1956. Then, the old administration building and one of the original cell houses were replaced by a sixty-bed general hospital for men in the correctional system. A maximum-security section to confine prisoners under sentence of death and an execution chamber also were erected in 1956. After the method of execution was changed from lethal gas to lethal injection in 1994 (Chapter 5, Acts of 1994), the State last executed someone in the Maryland Penitentiary on May 17, 1994.

MARYLAND CORRECTIONAL INSTITUTION FOR WOMEN—JESSUP

James A. Carter, Sr., Warden

P.O. Box 535
Jessup, MD 20794 (410) 799-5550

In the nineteenth century, women prisoners first were housed in quarters reserved for them at the Maryland Penitentiary. The Maryland House of Correction, opened in 1879, also was built with separate quarters for women. Although advocated by the Maryland Penitentiary Penal Commission in 1913, not until 1939 did the State construct a separate prison for women.

In 1937, State debt was authorized to build a separate prison for women on land adjacent to the House of Correction (Chapter 487, Acts of 1937). A grant from the federal Works Progress Administration augmented State funds and construction began in 1939. What is now the Maryland Correctional Institution for Women—Jessup received its first prisoners on October 1, 1940, and formally was established in 1941 as the Women's Prison of the State of Maryland (Chapter 71, Acts of 1941). The Prison was renamed Maryland State Reformatory for Women in 1945 (Chapter 520, Acts of 1945). In 1962, it became the Maryland Institution for Women and adopted its present name in 1964.

The Reception-Diagnostic Classification Center at the Institution receives all adult women who have been convicted of felonies and misdemeanors and sentenced to the jurisdiction of the State for terms of six months to life. After classification at the Center, women inmates are transferred to a prison to complete their sentences.

The Maryland Correctional Pre-Release System operates one medium-security facility, three minimum-security units, and six pre-release units that provide work and other rehabilitation for men, and one pre-release unit that provides such services for women. These facilities mainly house inmates in the Work Release Program. Before assignment to a pre-release unit, inmates are carefully screened at the Reception Center or at the institutions to which they are assigned.

The minimum-security pre-release units originated in 1955 as work camps (Chapter 266, Acts of 1955). Later, they became known as correctional camps (Code 1957, Art. 27, sec. 689(f)). In 1972, the camps were renamed community correctional centers (Chapter 464, Acts of 1972). Four years later, they were reorganized as community adult rehabilitation centers (Chapter 234, Acts of 1976). In July 1978, the community adult rehabilitation centers were placed under the Correctional Pre-Release System. They were renamed pre-release units in September 1978.

A minimum-security institution, the Boot Camp is a setting where staff and inmates focus on changing behavior and confronting destructive attitudes. Through disciplined activities, Boot Camp enables inmates to examine and change their attitudes and values, confront their mistakes, and accept responsibility for their acts.

To be eligible for Boot Camp, inmates must be under 26 years of age, serving 5 years or less of their first adult incarceration, and not serving a sentence for a crime of violence. Inmates must volunteer for the program and be medically, physically and psychologically fit.

Boot Camp is based on strict discipline established through regimented physical training, military drill, and comprehensive rules and regulations. Inmates labor on State highway road crews five days a week. On Saturdays, inmates work on special projects for local nonprofit organizations. Boot Camp maintenance is performed by the inmates. Academic school is mandatory each weekday evening. Counseling for substance abuse, decision-making, and behavior modification is available for each inmate. Daily, the Camp averages 300 inmates.

STATE USE INDUSTRIES

Stephen M. Shiloh, General Manager

The Committee recommends the establishment and maintenance of industrial plants and service centers within the Division of Correction to implement State Use Industries programs. Operated primarily with inmates, sites are run in a manner that benefits the State and provides training for inmates.

The Committee has fifteen members. Eleven serve ex officio. Four representing private industry are appointed by the Governor for three-year terms. The General Manager of State Use Industries serves as executive secretary (Code 1957, Art. 27, sec. 681A).

PATUXENT INSTITUTION

Joseph Henneberry, Director

Jessup, MD 20794

(410) 799-3400

Authorized in 1951, Patuxent Institution opened in 1955 under administration by the Department of Correction (Chapter 476, Acts of 1951). The Institution became an autonomous agency under the control of the Board of Patuxent Institution in 1961 (Chapter 629, Acts of 1961). In 1970, the Institution was made part of the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services (Chapter 401, Acts of 1970). Patuxent's status has continued as an institution separate from the Division of Correction, and it has retained its own board.

Patuxent Institution provides treatment and rehabilitation programs and services for eligible prisoners. The Institution offers medical, psychiatric, psychological and social casework services, as well as academic, vocational, recreational and religious services. Treatment also is provided for individuals on preparole and parole status.

The Commissioner of Correction may refer a prisoner to Patuxent Institution for evaluation when so recommended by the sentencing court, the State's Attorney of the jurisdiction in which the person was last sentenced, or the staff of the Division of Correction. The Commissioner also may refer prisoners in response to their applications. Each prisoner referred is transferred to the Institution for evaluation by a team consisting of at least three professional employees of the Institution, including at least one psychiatrist, one psychologist, and one social worker or behavioral scientist. The evaluation team assembles and reviews relevant information and examines the prisoner. The team then determines whether the individual is eligible and states its findings in a report to the Director. If not eligible, the prisoner is returned to the Division of Correction to continue his sentence. If eligible, the prisoner remains at Patuxent Institution for treatment.

To provide for continuation of treatment, the Institution operates a community clinic in metropolitan Baltimore. Here, clinic staff offer psychotherapy, job and family counseling, and social casework services for individuals and families. At the community clinic, the Institution operates a half-way house. This residence provides housing and supportive services for parolees who have no support in the community. Some work-release inmates also live in the halfway house.

Appointed by the Secretary of Public Safety and Correctional Services, the Director is chief administrator of the Institution. Of three Associate Directors, one must be a psychiatrist and one a behavioral scientist. They assist primarily in diagnosis and treatment. The third Associate Director assists in the field of custody. By law, the staff also must include at least three additional psychiatrists or clinical psychologists, at least four trained social workers, a physician, and a dentist (Code 1957, Art. 31B).

BOARD OF REVIEWBetty J. Humphrey, D.P.A., Chairperson, 1994

The Institutional Board of Review for Patuxent Institution was created in 1951 (Chapter 476, Acts of 1951). The Board was reorganized and renamed as the Board of Review in 1989 (Chapter 6, Acts of 1989).

At least annually, the Board reviews the status of each inmate at Patuxent Institution. The Board may grant leave or parole and, if it determines that the individual is no longer eligible for the Institution's programs, it may order the individual transferred to the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Correction. If a person has successfully completed three years probation without violation, the Board may petition the court to suspend or vacate the remaining sentence.

The Board is composed of nine members. They include the Director and three Associate Directors of Patuxent Institution. The Governor, with Senate advice and consent, appoints five members of the general public to serve terms of four years on the Board. One appointed member represents a victims' rights organization. The Governor designates the chairperson (Code 1957, Art. 31B, sec. 6).

CITIZENS' ADVISORY BOARDThomas F. Courtless, Chairperson

The Citizens' Advisory Board for Patuxent Institution was created in 1989 (Chapter 6, Acts of 1989).
